holds out.

CHAIRMAN KISNER is determined that he must go. The task, therefore, of keeping the Republican majority in Pennsylvania below 75,000 this year, will devolve upon some new and more hopeful manager.

THE W. U. Hensel boom for Governor is distinctly a Lancaster county product, but it may yet expand and become a thoroughly Pennsylvania institution. It is small but hardy and hopeful, and, as far as it has been examined, there has been found no necessity for putting it under a net to keep off the flies.

WHEN the sod closes over us there are few to shed a tear, and not many who care to remember that we ever had an existence. This may be a sad fact, but it is a true one nevertheless, and it had a painful exhibition in the disrespect with which the memory of Mr. Randall was treated the other day. When the eulogies were pronounced in the House not more than fifty members remained to hear them, and even the presence in the gallery of Mrs. Randall and her daughter did not restrain the members in their departure from the House immediately after the memorial proceedings begun.

A FUNNY story floats out from the Tin Plate Record office to the effect that the English interests have raised $1,000,000 to defeat the tariff on tin plate as proposed by the McKinley bill. The English don't know what they are doing. They will fail as signally in this as they bave in every other design to thwart the demands of the American people. This Congress has a remarkably clean record, and it is not at all likely that at this late day it is going to allow its good name to be smirched by British boodle. This is not a good year for that sort of thing. The Democracy are not in control

THE Corry Leader, in referring to a suggestion of the Gazette, that the amount of land to be owned by one a thing as a free country being governed by law. The individual gives up his freedom for the general good, and governs his actions as directed by the judgment of the majority. If the majority think it best to limit the amount of land owned by one citizen, they have a right to do so. They have the right, if for no other reason, because they have the might. That might makes right is much more generally true than is supposed by those who do not examine closely .- Mond ville Gazette.

This is not at all improbable. These Philadelphia Democrats become inactive after the fun of a nominating convention is over for much the same reason that Berks county Republicans lose interest in a county ticket after it is chosen. They have displayed their factional until about the time of the next convention. And so with the Philadelphia Democrats. With the adjournment of the Scranton convention they will lose interest and the Republican majority will go on increasing until the sixty thousand that the Watchman THE Democratic county conventions | fears will be more than realized.
