In important business matters you do not entrust your affairs to anybody else. You attend to them yourself. Make the matter of being registered a personal one and attend to it at once.

An exchange remarks that the Democrats are out on a still-hunt this fall. We have no doubt of it, and can safely predict that after election they'll be still hunting—for the fellow who hit Bobby Pattison.

SPEAKING OF Mr. Blaine and the Administration—he is still in it by a considerable majority, as our friends the enemy will observe. Their efforts to drive him out of it were overloaded, and the only injurious effect of the discharge was at the breach.

SENATOR CARLISLE has partly promised to deliver a free-trade speech this fall in Pennsylvania in favor of Candidate Pattison. In behalf of the Republican ticket we venture to express the hope that Mr. Carlisle may find it convenient to keep his appointments.

THE attempt to transfer the farmer vote of Pennsylvania to that horny-handed agriculturist, the Hon. Robert E. Pattison, is not making as much headway as its leaders had hoped it might. The fact is, there is some doubt in the rural mind as to whether the hayseed in Mr. Pattison's hair is genuine, or merely an imitation worn for political effect.

REPRESENTATIVE ROGERS, of Arkansas, abuses Speaker Reed with all the vehemence of a man who, having been defeated for re-nomination, realizes that he has but little time left in which to achieve enough notoriety to supply himself for a long period of enforced retirement. The cold, dark waters of oblivion await the roaring Rogers, and ere many moons have waxed and waned he will drop into them with a deep and melancholy plunk.

THE Hon. Chauncey F. Black denies that he wrote a letter to Chairman Kerr threatening to withdraw from the Democratic State ticket unless the issue of ballot reform should be made more pronounced by the party leaders. Furthermore, Mr. Black says he is going to remain on the ticket and win. Oh, Mr. Black, you don't mean it. You know that your ticket and your party is going to be pounded beyond all recognition in November, so what is the use of your deluding yourself with false hopes and declarations?—Harrisburg Telegraph.

THE York Gazette, in a long article on ballot reform, which naturally will be credited to the pen of ex-Lieutenant Governor Black, promises that when the time comes for the Democratic candidate for Governor to speak he will not disappoint those who want a Constitutional Convention. The promise is not very explicit as to just what Mr. Pattison will say, but after he had caused the Scranton platform to be so changed that it did not demand a Constitutional Convention it would be exceptionally grotesque to see him shifting about now. Mr. Pattison was against the Constitutional Convention at Scranton, as has been made plain time and again.—Phila. Press.

Get Registered.

The last day upon which a citizen can be registered in order to entitle him to a vote this fall is September 4th, next. Republicans should not lose sight of this fact and see at once that their names are on the list. It is the first imperative duty in the campaign, and should not be neglected a day. Committeemen should see that this matter is promptly attended to.

THE Pennsylvania Mugwumps of 1890—Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, and Glorious Old Tom Marshall, of Allegheny—are teetering on the opposite ends of a plank which is balanced on the rump of the Allegheny Mountains. Each of these influential Bolters should see to it that his partner is firmly strapped to that plank—for if one should crawl off, think what would become of the other! And if the plank should wear thin in the middle—think what would become of both!

It is interesting to learn that Captain Barclay, the Democratic candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs, does not think his venture with a notorious lottery company a sufficient reason why he should decline to run on his party ticket. He seems to have got the other Democratic State candidates into the same way of thinking. Popular taste is a little uncertain, and as the campaign progresses we may expect to see some of the Democratic literature take the form of lottery tickets with the portraits of the Democratic candidates to set them off. The demand will then go up that Democrats shall vote the lottery ticket.

THERE is some talk in Washington to the effect that President Harrison contemplates sending a special message to the Senate in which he will point out the importance of passing the Federal elections bill this session. It is hardly possible to realize that an American citizen imbued with wholesome ideas in relation to the right of suffrage and the sanctity of the ballot box should object to a measure, the sole purpose of which is a free ballot and an honest count. It is equally remarkable to find even the slightest apathy on the part of Republicans who have preached so long and so persistently the doctrine of majority rule. Yet both these statements, we regret to say, are to a certain extent true. A special message from the President at this time, on this subject, would indeed be opportune; and The Press, in common with all true Republicans, would welcome any earnest encouragement which the President feels it his duty as Chief Magistrate of the nation to give this important bill. To allow the Federal election bill to go by default would be a fatal mistake.—Phila. Press.

THERE ought not to be any trouble over Mr. Blaine's project for reciprocity. If sugar can be placed on the free list and in return we can secure a more extensive market for our breadstuffs, that is plainly the thing to do. The Republicans of the House have passed the best bill they could formulate under the circumstances. It protects all classes—the farmer, the mechanic and the manufacturer alike. Mr. Blaine shows conclusively how the bill can be improved, and his suggestion should receive most serious attention. The object of the McKinley measure is to secure the greatest good to the greatest number. That is the policy of the Republican party, and by an intelligent application of this policy the bill can be vastly strengthened. It is within the power of the Republican majority to accomplish this result, and personal differences should be sunk for the benefit of all. The Republican party, always a party of progress, will advance with long strides if Mr. Blaine's advice is heeded.—Phila. Inquirer. Surely the Inquirer puts the question down very pat in these few sentences, and voices the sentiment of the party almost unanimously.

KEMMLER, the Buffalo murderer, was killed at Auburn prison by electricity on Wednesday morning last at 6:40—literally roasted, as it were. Up to the very moment he maintained that same stolid indifference which has all along characterized his demeanor, and at the last he assisted in adjusting the straps which bound him to the death chair, cautioning the executioner to be careful to have everything right. The current which was to put an end to his existence was 1000 volts strong, and was turned on and allowed to remain 17 seconds. After the doctors had pronounced life extinct, to the horror of the witnesses present the doomed man gave signs of life by heavy respiration. The current was again turned on after more than a minute's delay, and ran up to 2000 volts, and kept at that point till the body began to smoke, thus literally broiling the victim. It will never be known whether, after the first shock, the man lived or realized what had happened, but the fact that he breathed or showed the least signs of life is a most sickening thought, and must have filled the witnesses with a horror which they will never want to experience again. It is the opinion of many that the law will be repealed as soon as the legislature meets.
