ALCOHOL IN COOKERY. In these days when total abstinence is becoming more popular, there is a renewed effort to introduce alcoholics into cookery. If you put the devil out of the door, he flies in at the window, and if you put him out of the window, he dances down the chimney and sets his blue lights burning on the cook stove, Caterers consider many of their most delicate dishes incomplete without the smack of alcoholics; they hide this devil in solution in their sherbet, in their pudding sauce, in their cakes, their pies. Let temperance people be on the lookout at restaurants, hotels and so-called high-toned dinner tables.—Union Signal.

GENERAL BOOTH ON THE BUM CURSE, GENERAL BOOTH ON THE RUM CURSE.

In maintaining his position as an enemy of saloons, General Booth declared that the Salvation Army, of which he is the head, is deathly autagonistic to the liquor traffic, inasmuch as they will not allow a man to say his prayers in their midst who is not a toe-totaller. "While we are saving sinners," said he in a large Geasgow meeting, "you pummed the publicans" isalookeepers.) Not even John Wesley could have been more vigorous in his denunciations: "There are rigorous in his denunciations: "There are reefs—hell-gates, if you like. There is the distillers' roefs; blow it up! There is the browery reef, in which so many widows and ladies and gentlemen had got shares, blow it up and the shareholders with it, if it would be a shareholders with it, if it would be shareholders with it. notgo in any other way! There are also the hovel reef, the sweater's reef, and all the bove rect, the sweater's rect, and all the other reefs out of which men try to become wealthy, to build palatial manaious, and to lay up fortunes to be a curse to their children at the expense of the blood and sinew of the miserable crowd. Blow them all up."

ORIGIN OF THE BLUE RIBBON. The Christian Commonicealth (London) says: "It is generally supposed that the Blue Ribbon movement had its origin in America, but such is not the case. It was started in North Wales, and an enument clergyman in the Church of England deserves the credit of having started a movement which has described in North. serves the credit of having started a move-ment which has done immense good through-out all Welsh and English speaking coun-tries. Many years ago the Rev. Mr. Lloyd, better known as 'Yr Estyn, 'Ind been work-ing hard among the drunkards of his parish, and had been the means of reclaiming a large number of them. In order to prove his sinnumber of them. In order to prove his sincerity each convert had to wear a little piece of blue ribbon, and a small army was soon formed. In the course of time a number of these left Wales for America, carrying with them the tiny bit of ribbon. The idea was soon taken up and worked out by our American cousins, and the movement rapidly spread throughout the States. Subsequently it found its way into England and other parts of the world,"

WHAT PROHIBITION DOES. There can be no manner of doubt that Prohibition increases the productive power of wage-earners. In doing that it increases the size of the profits that are available for the payment of wages. It does not stop there, however, It increases the combining power of the wage earners themselves. The power of the wage carners themselves. The greatest solvent known for a labor organization is drink. The Knights of Labor understood that when they barred saloonkeepers from among them. There is something in the devil of alcohol that destroys the associational ties of men, even those strongest possible ties of the family. In the late New York Central strike one of the very first orders sent out by Powderly to the Knights was to keep out of the saloons! Why? Because the men could not sust in the strike and sustain the saloons at the same time. They never can.

They never can.

The argument can be epitomized as fol-1. Drink, by impairing the productive power of embloyer and employe, lessens the profits of the business out of which wages

3. Drink, by wasting the means and impairing the self control of the wage-earners, impairs their power to contend, in an organized way, for their just share of the profits.

—The Foice.

WHICH SIDE HE IS ON. Rev. B. F. Mills, the evangelist, who re-cently conducted a successful revival at El-gin, Ill., took occasion at one of his meet-ings to refer to the liquor question as fol-ings to refer to the liquor question as follows:

I would like to give a little sermon on temperance, and I would like to make it so plain that everybody could understand. Sometimes a person will insult me by asking me which side of the temperance or prohibition question I am on! Which side am I on! Well, you go to the drunkards and thieves, and burglars and gamblers, and saloon keepers and the makers of the accursed stuff, and find out which side they are on, and then put me down on the other side. As you go down to that wretched hovel, where the poor woman worse than widowed, sits with her worse than orphaned babe at her breast, her heart's blond dripping away drop by drop, put your ear down close to her heart, and hear which side she is on, and then put me down on her side. Why is it that these accursed saloons exist in Eight to-day? Because men worship the god that favors hades. Suppose a man hould come here to-day and take one of your fairest and brightest children, and by making a few passes over it convert it into an idiot, the whole community would be after him. Millions of dollars would not induce you to license him to do such a thing if he could do it in ten minutes, and it is only a question of five, years, or possibly ten or twenty, and you will allow him to do that very thing, and for only a paltry few hundred dollars.

I will say one thing more: If I have over, since the day I gave my heart to God, by dred dollars.

I will say one thing more: If I have ever, since the day I gave my heart to God, by voice, or vote, or influence withheld, given the weight of one finger in support of the accursed traffic, I should deserve to have my son fill a drunkard's grave or to give my daughter into the foul embrace of one of the loathsome products of the business. Now, if any one does not understand this, let him now rise up and say so.

TRYING OUT LARD IN THE HOUSE.

I attend to frying out the lard myself nd do the most of the work, writes Mrs. W. S. Coun. I lay the leaf and fat pieces in a cool place for a day or two. and if it freezes I like it all the better, for it seems to take some of the water out of it. I first cut out all the lean nossible to lessen the quantity of scraps and then cut the fat into small bits and put it into two iron pots on the stove over a dull fire. As the lard is melted out the fat pieces settle down, and when they are pretty well browned into scraps I dip some of the melted lard out of one of the pots into the other and with a skimmer lift the scraps out of that pot into the first, so as to have them nearly all in one, until they are thoroughly I then put them into a coarse linen bag and squeeze all the fat I can out of them. If there is a cheese press that can be brought into the kitchen, it may be used for that purpose, but squeezers that will do very well can be made from two smooth pieces of boards two feet long and three inches wide, hinged with a strap of leather at one end, and shaped into handles at the other, so that a bag containing scraps can be squeezed between them with the hands. This is hard work, but if they are kept hot a good deal of grease will run out of them. The lard must then be strained to take all the floating particles out of it, and it is quite well to heat it slowly again until sure the water has all been evaporated. Lard should never be dipped out and put away to keep while the melting is going on, and before the scraps have become crisp and very brown.—New York World.

Cream soups may be made without meat, states Mrs. E. R. Parker, in the Courier-Journal, and are much more delicate than other soups, and as they furnish a variety for the table at this season of the year, housekeepers will find them acceptable to the family.

Cream of Rice Soup—Wash half a cup-ful of rice, put in a kettle and pour over a quart of white soup stock, with a stalk of celery, half of a small onion. Let simmer slowly two hours, press it through a sieve, return to kettle, add a table-spoonful of butter and a quart of milk with salt and pepper to season; stir until it comes to a boil and serve.

Cream of Salsify Soup-Scrape a dozen roots of salsify, cut in slices, cover with boiling water and boil slowly one hour, or until tender, add a quart of milk and boil slowly one hour, thicken with an ounce of butter rolled in flour, add a blade of mace, half a dozen allspice and two or three cloves; stir until it boils. Season with pepper and salt and serve.

Cream of Corn Soup-Open a can of corn. Put in a kettle and add a pint of white stock; let simmer twenty minutes and press through a sieve. Rub a table-spoonful each of butter and flour together, add to the soup and stir until thick, add to the boiling soup a pint of milk, take from the fire and stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs. Season with salt and pepper and serve. Cream of Celery Soup—Wash three roots of celery, and cut in small pieces; cover with water and boil thirty minutes; then press through a colander Put a quart of milk on to boil, add the water to the celery, with one small onion. Rub a tablespoonful of flour and butter each together, and stir in the boiling soup, and stir until it thickens. Season with salt and pepper, and serve. Cream of Tomato Soup-Put a pint of canned tomatoes on to stew with a sprig of parsley and a blade of mace and let stew fifteen minutes. Put a quart of milk on to boil. Rub butter and flour together and add to the milk, stirring until thick. Strain the tomatoes through a sieve, add half a teaspoonful of soda and a teaspoonful of sugar and stir in the boiling milk. Break a dozen crackers in the soup tureen and pour the soup over.

Cream of Cheese Soup-Put a quart of milk into a saucepan with a sliced carrot, one sliced onion and a blade of mace. Rub two tablespoonsful each of butter and flour together. Strain the soup, thicken with butter and flour and stir until it boils, then add three tablespoonsful of grated cheese and take from the fire, add the beaten yokes of two eggs, with salt and pepper. Serve.

Cress of Potato Soup-Put three good, sound potatoes on to boil in a quart of cold water. Let cook fifteen ninutes, drain off the water and pour over fresh boiling water; add a slice of a small outon, a sprig of parsley and a stalk of celery and boil until the potatoes are done. Put a quart of milk on to boil, press the potatoes through a sieve. Thicken with butter and flour, and stir; pour over the potatoes, and serve immediately.

Cream of Asparagus Soup-Wash bunch of asparagus, or open a quart can of it, and put it in a saucepan of boiling water; let simmer gently for half an hour. Take it from the water, cut off the tops and put aside. Put a quart of milk on to boil; press the asparagus stalks through a colander, and add to the milk. Rub an ounce of butter and two tablespoonsful of flour together, and stir in; let thicken; put in the asparagus tops; season with salt and pepper, and serve.

Passing of Terrapin and Canvas-backs.

If the present rate of extermination goes on the menus of the country will be deprived of the substance if not the names of some of their best attractions. Very few persons have eaten real canvasback duck or real diamond-back terrapin this season, although many thousands think that they have. With a canvasback worth almost its weight in silver and a terrapin even more precious, the bona fide article has been scarce and the names have been used to cover clever substitutes that only epicures could de tect. Indeed, with the terrapin at $60 a dozen, the only way for a caterer to serve it with financial success at the average banquet is to mix with three or four diamond-backs eight or nine of the "sliders" of the far South or the cheaper varieties of other sections. This year the intermixture of varieties so as to secure a satisfactory result at a satisfac tory price has become something of an The real canvas-back duck has appeared intermittently on bills of fare and even in Baltimore, the headquarters of moderate-priced epicureanism, a dish of it cost $4, the highest rate ever known in that city.

A man who recently returned from the Chesapeake region says that it is only a matter of time when the terrapin and the canvas-back duck will be exterminated. and the circumstances fully substantiate his assertion. Fewer terrapin have been caught this year than ever before. The best come from the Chesapeake Bay, and the eatchers all say that they never knew them to be so scarce. They have been hunted mercilessly, and, to add to the depletion, the eggs have been taken away by boys and men, who use them for food, -New York Times.
