LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Oil market closed yesterday 68 1/2.

Buds are bursting.

The fragrant arbutus is in full bloom now.

There are no ripe strawberries in this market yet.

Onion sets are rapidly going down into the ground.

The borough schools close for the season next Tuesday.

Mill Village, Erie county, Herald: "William Holmes, Forest Co., is visiting relatives and friends in this place.

The Lawrence House front is being repainted, the coat put on last summer having been ruined by the fire of December last.

Kingsley township will erect two new school houses the coming summer.

The birth of a fine girl baby to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ross, of Hickory, last Friday, makes Squire Hoovler, of Tionesta township, grandpa once more.

Did you plant a tree or shrub on last Arbor Day? If you forgot it, you have one more opportunity to redeem yourself. May 1 will be the second Arbor Day.

Marionville has bargained for a $4,400 school building in place of the one burned there last winter.

There will be a special examination for teachers, held in Tionesta, Saturday, May 2, at which only teachers bringing a request from directors will be allowed to enter the class.

Mrs. Bovard has just returned from the city with a large stock of delightful things in the millinery line, and will be pleased to see her lady friends and show them the latest of the season.

The trout season was opened in fine shape last week, but who caught the big string is still a somewhat mooted question, and perhaps will remain so till all the liars die—or quit going a-fishing.

The Hardison well, on the Hunter estate, near the depot, is u. g. The drill was stopped at about 550 feet, and Mr. Hardison has some notion of pulling up the hole and cutting it up into powder horns.

Hopkins & Co. come to the front this week with a new ad. in which they give some pointers on where to buy, that may be well enough to investigate. These people are always prepared to back up just what they say.

The whippoorwill's voice was first heard in this section last Saturday evening, and was a most welcome sound. He's somewhat ahead of schedule time but he perhaps knows best when to risk this climate, and more'n likely we're to have summer weather right along now.

The latest Senatorial apportionment bill puts Forest in the 38th district, with Clarion and Elk. Congressionally we are placed in a district with Erie, Warren and Venango counties. These are bills introduced by Republicans and may pass, but it is thought the Governor will veto them.

The concert of the New Orleans University Singers at the school house last Wednesday evening was the best entertainment of the kind ever given in Tionesta, but was only fairly attended. Many a 10-cent note has carried away far more of Tionesta's shelds. This is not creditable to our town but it's true just as hard.

The Mail is glad to note the good fortune of our citizen, Geo. H. Higgins, Esq. It's impossible to keep a good man down. In company with Mayor Clark, of Erie, and Alfred Short, of North East, he owns 5,000 acres of gas territory in Butler Co., Slippery Rock Tp., on which a big gasser was struck last week of at least 800 pounds pressure. A stock company will be formed at once, of $400,000, other wells put down and the gas piped to Greenville, Pa., and Warren, Ohio.—Warren Mail.

—Dick Davis, who "took a trip down the river" on a raft last week, just to keep his hand in, returned Tuesday morning, "all broke up." Besides having the skin all burnt off his nose and his face badly tanned, he was caught in the coil of a cable while "snubbing" a raft, and came near having his left leg taken off below the knee. He is able to hobble around on it, but it is not likely that he'll make any more runs this season.

—A Marienville scribe writes: Mr. F. M. Lillibridge, the superintendent of the Acme Extract Works, has resigned his position. Mr. L. is highly esteemed by all who had any dealings with him.—Mr. Albert Smith was awarded the contract of building the new school house which is to have six rooms. Consideration, $4,390. Albert is a good workman.—Mr. M. Levy has gone East to purchase his spring goods.

—"Printers' Ink" is a neat, compact, well edited pamphlet, brim full and running over with the choicest hints to all who advertise or ever expect to. Geo. P. Rowell & Co., New York, far famed for reliability and accuracy as advertising agents, are the publishers, and the cost of the publication, which comes weekly, is two dollars a year. Printers' Ink is strictly the best journal of its kind that circulates on the globe to-day. This is a challenge chip placed squarely on the shoulder, and if any nation or set of nations attempts to knock it off all Yankeeedom is ready to take up the gauntlet and make the assertion good.

—We see by a Grove City, Mercer Co., correspondence in the Mercer Dispatch, that J. B. Pearsall, of Clarington, will erect a $5,000 brick residence in that place the coming summer. This means, we presume, that we are going to lose Mr. Pearsall's as a citizen of our county, and that is a much greater loss than we feel like accepting very gracefully. Forest county holds no better citizen than he, and when one such leaves us the gap that's left is hard to fill. Prominently identified with all the affairs that tend to the betterment and elevation of the community in which he has so long held his residence, Mr. Pearsall's removal will be a severe blow, not alone to Barnett township, but the entire county as well. We surely wish him a pleasant future in his new place of abode.

A DROWNING ACCIDENT.

George McIntyre Meets Death While Attempting to Get off a Raft.

Last Friday evening about five o'clock George McIntyre, a young man aged about nineteen years, lost his life by drowning, while attempting to get to shore from a raft that had lodged on a bar above the head of Var's island, half a mile below this place. He, with two or three others, was on a creek raft that was being dropped from the mouth of the creek to the "harbor," and which lodged on the bar mentioned. One end of the raft lay about fifty feet from the shore, and there being no boat handy the men were building floats, out of some loose lumber that was piled on the raft, in order to reach the shore. A float had been built and the young man started for shore, but the current being very swift, the water deep, and he not any too well accustomed to handling such a craft, was unable to manage it properly, and when he had been carried a few rods below, the float began to sink, or capsize, throwing the occupant into the rapid current. Before assistance could reach him he sank beneath the surface and was lost sight of. The last seen of him was at a point of rocks about a hundred yards below the raft, where the water was eight to ten feet deep. Search was immediately instituted for the body and kept up till late in the evening, renewed again on Saturday and again on Sunday, when no less than a hundred people engaged in the work of dragging the bottom with all kinds of grab hooks. The cannon was taken down and many times shot over the water; some dynamite shots were used in the hope of raising the body of the unfortunate victim, but all to no purpose. The bottom of the river for two miles below was thoroughly raked over, but no signs of the drowned were discovered, nor has there been up to this morning, excepting that his hat was found in the "harbor" about a mile below where he went under.

The young man was the son of Mrs. Hugh McIntyre, formerly Mrs. George Saylor, and was a half brother of Mrs. Pritner Agnew, Mrs. M. Hepler, and Mr. John Saylor of this place. His father died last fall, and he had come to this place from his home near Sigel, Jefferson county, about three months ago, and was stopping with his brother-in-law, Mr. Agnew. He was a quiet young man, industrious and of good habits. His aged and grief-stricken mother is almost prostrated over the sad affair, and would be willing to reward any one to the extent of her ability who should recover the body of her beloved boy, who was about her only comfort left in life.

WARREN LICENSES.

The question of licenses or no licenses was settled in the courts at Warren last Saturday when Judge Noyes delivered the opinion of the Court on the subject. Out of fifty applications thirty-five were granted, the balance being refused. Warren borough gets ten—three wholesale, four restaurant, and three hotel. Tid-ouate was dry before, and is in the same condition now, both applications being refused. The Derrick gives a partial synopsis of Judge Noyes' opinion, and as the question is just now one of the interesting topics, we reproduce it:

"The opinion is an exhaustive one and reviews thoroughly the question of license. The act regulating licenses previous to 1887 is stated. The provisions then in force required the licensee to be engaged in some stated business, while in each license the kind of liquor to be sold was specified. It is decided by the Court that the act of 1887 authorizes every licensee by the Court to sell spirituous liquors as well as malt, and that the Court has no power to license the keeping of a hotel or eating house, but that the sale of liquor in less quantities than one quart is unlawful by hotels, etc., unless a license under the second and third sections is taken out, and these sections apply not alone to hotels, but to any other 'house, room or place.' This ruling is given in view of the fact that certain applications had been protested on the ground that the requisites of a hotel had not been met.

"It is further ruled that while the character of an applicant should be set forth on his papers, it would be unjust to reject an application because of this omission, when the character of the applicant is not ascertained and is personally known to some member of the Court.

"As to the necessity of a license in a given case, the Court holds that its discretion is to be exercised, not in an arbitrary and wilful, but a judicial manner, as other questions are determined on. The Court must take the petitions and remonstrances as evidence, giving due weight to the character of the signers as well as the number, and weighing equally such other evidence as may be presented, with facts that may be in the possession of the Court. The Court holds that it must judge the fair preponderance of evidence. It is held to be the duty of the Court to grant licenses when all the requirements of the law may be made to appear, and a general remonstrance protesting against all license because the signers think the law an iniquitous one, has but little weight as against such fulfillment of prerequisites and where a reasonable necessity is shown.

"It is held by the Court that a reasonable necessity is not an absolute, but a special one. That 'indispensable,' as a definition would render the law prohibitive, as it is held that a case cannot be conceived in which license is indispensable. It is the view of the Court that 'necessity' within the meaning of the law is covered by the phrase 'necessary for the accommodation of the public,' or a portion thereof. That, if a portion of the public is accustomed to the use of liquors, such persons are not accommodated unless licenses are granted, in such numbers and to such persons as may seem necessary upon a preponderance of evidence, similar in character to that stated above, for the accommodation of the persons who are accustomed to the use of liquor.

"The Court states that it has no alternative but to administer the law as it is found upon the statute books, and without reference to its personal belief on the matter.

"In closing, Judge Noyes refers to the number of private letters that have been sent to him in his private capacity, urging his action for or against license, and states that he considers the sending of such letters a grave offence, and while he makes allowance for the deep feeling and pure motives of the senders, he gives notice that any such efforts in the future, will not be held privileged or confidential.

The boy who never told a lie, the girl who doesn't giggle, the man who never did a mean act, the woman who doesn't gossip, the honest politician, and the editor who can run a paper to suit everybody, could, if gathered into one vast combination, star the country and attract more attention than all the world's circuses combined.

The following recipe for home made ice may be found of use: Take a cylindrical vessel and pour 3/4 ounces of commercial sulphuric acid and 1/2 ounces of water into it, and then add 1 ounce of powdered sulphate of soda. In the center of this mixture place a smaller vessel containing the water to be frozen; then cover the vessel, and, if possible, revolve the whole with a gentle motion. In a few minutes the water in the small vessel will be converted into ice. The same mixture can be used a second or a third time for making a block of ice. The operation should, if possible, be performed in a cool place—in a cellar, for example.

According to instructions issued from the U. S. Internal Revenue Department, on and after May 1, 1891, the law requiring a special tax heretofore from dealers in and manufacturers of tobacco and cigars is repealed, but every dealer in leaf tobacco, or every manufacturer or peddler of tobacco, snuff, cigars or cigarettes, must register with the collector of Internal Revenue of his district his name, residence, and place where the business is to be carried on, and procure and keep conspicuously displayed a certificate of registry. A non-compliance subjects the dealer to severe penalties. Dealers in manufactured tobacco are not required to register.

The May Peterson is at hand with a large inventory of good things. "Marguerite in Her Garden" is a charming picture, and the engraving of the harbor of "The Isle of Wight" is very striking. The opening article "Some Curious Rocks and Waterfalls," by Rodney T. Waterman is capably written and the illustrations are interesting in the extreme. "The Romance of an Old Red School House" by Elva J. Smith is a story quite out of the common. A sketch of "Madame de Lafayette" is a timely contribution. "Some Spring Flower Notes" by Ray Joyce, will be found full of useful information for all amateur gardeners. "A Mercenary Young Woman" by Robert G. Graham is a very clever story and is admirably illustrated. "Margaret V. Payne shows how an ingenious woman furnished a parlor with wonderful cheapness and the illustrations prove that she made it look exceedingly pretty and artistic. There are two excellent serials running and the remaining articles of the number are all valuable. The fashion plates give new and effective dress designs and the Household department is filled with things worth knowing. Terms $2.00 a year. Address Peterson's Magazine, Philadelphia, Pa.
