READ our supplement this week, and inform yourself on Protection and Reciprocity. It's chock full of meat.

THE announcement that Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, wears a swallow-tail coat has caused him to be looked upon with suspicion by certain unwashed Democrats, who believe that the national uniform should be a red wamus and gun boots.

Up to date it is not made public that Grover Cleveland has written to Henry Watterson to ask him what he meant by saying that if the Democracy nominated Cleveland it would "wade through a slaughter house to an open grave." And yet Grover is a great letter writer.

THERE'S richness in Whiskers Peffer's bill introduced in Congress recently. It is to stop the coining of gold. Peffer thinks he is getting square with the anti-silver men, but he is only making a large jack-rabbit of himself. When the United States ceases to coin gold it might as well go out of business with other nations.

ALL has been quiet at Homestead since the arrival of the National Guard, no sign of disturbance having manifested itself in any way. The soldiers have possession of the town, while the company again has possession of its works. It is hoped before another week passes all differences between employer and employee will have been amicably adjusted and the hum of industry once more enliven the scene. No further outbreak is apprehended.

A BILL has been introduced in Congress prohibiting inter-State transportation of Pinkertons. This would hardly be effective. How could a railway company know the occupation of the passenger it transports? And if the bill should pass, the men who have charge of the Pinkertons en route for any certain point would hardly send them in a body, but rather singly, so that nobody would know their errand. The only way to get around this matter is to forbid their employment.

It has been decided that Messrs. Cleveland and Stevenson shall be notified of their nomination in Madison Square Garden, New York, July 20. It seems a little hard that Grover has to drop his fishing pole and make the trip to New York in order to acquire this information. Why not send him a letter, or a newspaper marked with a blue pencil? The money which this Madison Square blow-out will cost him could be better expended in buying the drinks for Tammany.—Franklin News.

SOME quite radical legislation is being done by the Senate in connection with the appropriation for the World's Fair. On Wednesday of last week the Senate voted $10,000,000 for the Fair, to be issued in the souvenir half dollars; but attached to the bill was Mr. Quay's amendment, making this aid contingent upon closed doors at the Fair on Sunday. A second important amendment by Mr. Peffer placed 28 Senators on record against further aiding the Fair unless the sale of liquor on the grounds is prohibited. Twenty-six Senators voted against the Peffer amendment, so that a majority of only two carried it.

It fills the Democratic press with glee to announce in big type that the Republican National Committee is having trouble in securing a chairman. They do not stop to consider that Cleveland is on his knees to Whitney and Harrity begging either of them to take charge of the campaign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and that both of them are pleading business and fighting shy of the position. It may be that Cleveland will be compelled to again take Rainbow Chaser Brice as chairman, in which event the candidate from Buzzard's Bay will be in continual hot water until the campaign ends—and then he will be in the soup. At Chicago Brice was one of Cleveland's bitterest foes.

Is the entire history of labor troubles there is not an instance of a sympathy strike being successful. The men at Homestead new this, and they protested against the men in the Carnegie mills at Pittsburgh striking at this time. The Pittsburgh men could best have served their fellow-workmen by remaining at work. There may be no demand just at present for funds, but the time will come when money will be needed, and in the furnishing of finances the Pittsburgh men could best have helped the Homestead strikers. It is poor policy to destroy the source of supplies.

Must Pay a Liquor License Tax.

The Revenue Department at Washington has made a ruling on the Keeley Institutes which will necessitate the taking out by them of a revenue license hereafter. In a letter to the Keeley Co., at Dwight, Ill., Commissioner of Internal Revenue Mason says, among other things, "Your objection, it appears, is not to the payment of the sum of money representing the tax which the ruling of this office, to which you refer, holds to be due to the United States, by your Institutes, but to the declaration, under oath, in the Return, Form 11, that you are retail dealers in liquor. This, you say, you cannot conscientiously make; and, from the tenor of your letter, it would seem that you misapprehend the intent and effect of the special tax law. It is not a license law, but simply a law for the raising of revenue for the United States. It does not impose the tax merely upon those persons who engage in the business of selling liquors for profit. It goes much farther, and imposes the tax not only on those persons, but on 'every person who sells or offers for sale, foreign or domestic distilled spirits, wines or malt liquors,' and who does not come within any exemption provision. The stamp thus posted up will not indicate that you are liquor dealers in the commercial sense, as being engaged before the public in selling alcoholic liquor as a beverage, like saloon keepers. It will have no such meaning; on the contrary, it will be simply your receipt for tax paid; and evidence that you have lawfully and properly contributed your share to the revenues of the United States."

Benjamin May, Esq., of Tionesta.

Spring from a race that dared to face A dread sea on the glorious mission, Of founding a place, where at least a trace Of man's just rights, would be his in possession.

Beneath the green by Penobscot's stream, Stood the manse in which this boy was born Who, through lonely brake or by wooded lake, Could roam at pleasure, in life's early morn.

Where the Indian stalked, and the great pines talked.

In whispering tones to the little stranger, As the merry child in their mazes whiled His youthful days; nor dreamed of danger—

Though the tempest's roar on the distant shore

Re-echoed over glen and mountain, And the brown bear peeped through the foliage deep.

On streamside side, or by gushing fountain.

A woodman born: when the trees were torn From the ground on which he had played when young He turned his face, with youth's pliant grace

Toward the West—to the setting sun, In the "Groves of Penn" we find him then.

Ere the flush of youth had left his brow, A pioneer good in the land he stood, A philanthropist ever, then and now.

And though in age he may be a sage, In heart and hope he is ever young. Time has not changed, nor frost retarded The helpful sweetness that ever clung to his wild-wood heart that takes no part In that which injures. When is done His work below, may a sunset glow His memory gild, like a setting sun.
