-Franklin News: Benj. May, Esq., came from Tionesta on Saturday to attend the funeral of his old friend, Wm. Raymond, Esq. His acquaintance with the deceased extends away back to 1823. Mr. May's father, Rev. Hezekiah May, had at that time been a resident of Franklin for two or three years, and when Mr. Raymond came in 1823 and opened a general store on the present site of the Dodd block, clerk, remaining for a year. The friendship then formed remained warm and unbroken throughout the long stretch of 69 years, and yesterday Mr. May performed the closing act in that friendship by taking his place as a pall-bearer at his old friend's funeral. Although the junior of Mr. Raymond by about ten years, Mr. May has reached a venerable age, and he resembles his friend in the remarkable retention of his faculties and his vigor. Both men lived to see the passing away of every man who was in business in Franklin when they were in the same store together.

Quality to the World's Fair was made without any condition as to Sunday closing. They laugh too quickly. The appropriation act provides explicitly that "the said exosition shall not be open to the public on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday," and if the appropriation is accepted it is made the duty of the National Commission to make such rules as shall close the exhibition on Sunday. That is what the people have demanded and what they propose to have.

Camping on Chantauqua.

Imagine a one-horse wagon loaded with boxes big and little, on top of these arranged with comfortable seats seven eager people from 38 to 2 years of age. All being securely stowed away, quietly we drove out of the town of Warren at the refreshing hour of 3 a, m. on Aog. 9th, bound for a jolly two weeks' outing. Not a peep was heard from the "kids" aboard from their slumber rudely waxened, and as far as we know, only one wakeful neighbor viewed the procession. The moon being at the full, the drive was pleasant and the heat not at all oppressive till we reached Jamestown at 10 a. m. Here after a bountiful dinner the mother and children took train for our present location where we all arrived in good spirits, and had a floor laid and tent pitched in time to catch a mess of fish for supper. This is an ideal camping ground and while I write, heavily laden steamers go putting by and mingled sounds of music and laughter come floating to us on the breeze. The Chautauqua Lake R. R. Station is at our door, Bass fishing is good and the younkets A. L. Weller has his new barn about have lively times catching sun fish off the premium as we are already seven in a bed, which allows one and five-sevenths feet to a person, in width. Provisions cheaper than at home, lake flies which buzz but do not bite, free panerama on the tent at night. Let all who love a good time go and do likewise. X. Camp Comfort, Chaut. Lake, Aug. 15.
