VERY likely the Democrats of Pennsylvania will soon begin to feel gratified if Mr. Cleveland does not give the offices in this State to Democrats and Mugs in other States.

THE State Legislature has practically agreed to finally adjourn May 20th. The passage of this resolution has had a tendency to hurry up matters, and there will likely be some work done from this on.

THE dedication of the Pennsylvania building at the World's Fair has been indefinitely postponed, but the building will be there, and wary Pennsylvanians can rest their tired feet whenever they feel like it.

It is announced that President Cleveland will be present at the naval review on the Dolphin. We wonder that he is not afraid to trust himself on a vessel which his former Administration rejected as "structurally weak" thereby throwing its heaviest weight, the late John Roach, into bankruptcy.

ONE of the curious "come-rounds" of politics, as the Elmira Gazette observes, is that Walter Q. Gresham, a Republican, commissioned in the army by Abraham Lincoln and a United States Judge by Ulysses S. Grant, should be, as a Democrat, superceding Lincoln's son at St. James and Grant's son at Vienna.

Mrs. CLEVELAND saw several hundred callers Tuesday, but the press report significantly adds: "It is understood that this is the last reception Mrs. Cleveland will hold this spring." This is doubtless a mistake. There will, in all probability, be at least one more reception—a kind of a birth-day party.—Blizzard.

It is an easy matter for Mr. Cleveland to knock out the Congressional combine now, but along some time next fall the Congressmen will assemble around Washington and have their "innings," and perhaps it won't be half so pleasant then. Cleveland, or any other President, can not well afford to be on the outs with the Congressmen of his party. They're a very necessary article to an administration when it wants to make a record on something besides turning out officeholders.

A LONDON newspaper sent a special commission to Chicago to report on the drainage and sanitation, with a view to learning whether there is danger of an epidemic in that city during the fair. This commission reports that there is every reason to hope that there will not be an outbreak of an epidemic. All of this is very gratifying, and it will help the fair in England. About the only thing that needs to be feared in Chicago this year is Carter Harrison, the new mayor.

LAWRENCE MAXWELL, JR., of Cincinnati, Ohio, has been nominated by President Cleveland for the position of Solicitor General. This is the position held by G. A. Jenks at the close of Mr. Cleveland's last administration, and his conferring the honor upon an Ohio gentleman is conclusive that as far as the President is concerned he has no intention to make an exception to his rule against ex-officers in this case. Further there are good reasons for believing that Mr. Jenks would accept no place at Mr. Cleveland's disposal below the rank of a Cabinet position.—Brookville Republican.

Those who want to see what the President is doing for Pennsylvania have to use a microscope.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?" is answered by the introduction of the rank or title of Ambassador into the diplomatic service of the United States. Although the constitution authorizes the President to appoint "Ambassadors" and other public ministers, yet the first title was not employed because some stickler for exactness discovered that an ambassador was the personal representative of his sovereign, it was considered out of order to call the Nation's representative an Ambassador. However, as Cleveland has assumed to be a "Dictator" to Congress and to state authorities it is, perhaps, not improper that he should have Ambassadors to foreign Courts.—Citizen Press.

THAT distinguished Democrat, General Bragg, of Wisconsin, who loved Cleveland for the enemies he had made, is now roasting the administration because he cannot get what he wants. He was first offered the Austria-Hungary mission, but that did not suit him, and then Cleveland sought to get rid of him by an offer of the Argentine Republic mission, but this is not what the old man was after. He wanted the Chinese mission or nothing, and as he can't have that the indications are that he will not get anything, and that is why he is hot in the collar. Mr. Bragg is a very tiresome old man, and he can go and suck his paws and growl and nobody pity him. It is probable that before he is through, he will be willing to accept an internal revenue collectorship, and be mighty glad to get it.

THE compulsory education bill, which has passed the House, provides that children between the ages of 8 and 12 years shall attend at least for 16 weeks each year a school in which the common English branches are taught unless such child or children are excused by the school board for satisfactory reasons. There is to be an annual enumeration of the children between 8 and 12 years by the assessors. The bill prescribes a penalty of $2 to $5 for each violation by neglect or refusal. It does not interfere with the right to educate children in private schools. The argument used by the supporters of the bill is that there are 100,000 children in this State between 6 and 12 years who are not receiving any school benefits, and that it is unfair to these boys and girls to allow them to grow up without some measure of education, which is a very common sense and reasonable argument.

SPEAKER THOMPSON of Warren, is a full-fledged candidate for State Treasurer. In response to a question he said: "Yes, I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Treasurer, and I make this announcement in accordance with the wishes of my friends. Left to my own choice I probably would not have come out for a State office, but a public official cannot disregard so hearty an indorsement as the mere mention of my name has brought to me. I am very grateful for this, and I feel that I owe it to my people that I accede to their wishes. From Philadelphia, Allegheny, the oil regions, the northern tier and southern counties of the State I have received letters pledging the support of my party friends, and I feel that I will be well equipped to enter in the contest. The question of geographical location has been discussed and the effect my nomination might have in the selection of a candidate for Governor. Those with whom I have consulted, together with myself, are of opinion that the selection of a State Treasurer will have no bearing whatever in the choice of a gubernatorial candidate. Two years ago I was a candidate for the nomination for State Treasurer, and Morrison was the successful aspirant. An honorable defeat of that kind did not in any manner disconcert me, and I put forth my best effort for the ticket. In any event this year I will do the same. I expect to win, of course. Every man expects to win who expires for an office, and I have the promises of hearty support not only from the leaders of the party, but from the men in the ranks who have sent many kindly letters with their pledges of support."

Mr. Thompson is a man of great ability and popular with the party in the State. He has three times been honored in his county, and twice a Republican house has given him the signal honor of an election as Speaker. Two years ago when defeated for the nomination for State Treasurer he gracefully bowed to the inevitable and worked manfully for the ticket. Should he be nominated he would make a strong candidate and there could be no doubt of his election. The movement to make him Treasurer is spontaneous and promises of support come from all parts of the State.—Harrisburg Telegraph.
