A Correction.

An omission occurred in the list of voting places as published last week, which is this week supplied. Brookston, in Howe township, was inadvertently dropped out. The error was our own.

When will Pennsylvania have a day at the big fair, and who is going to settle this matter?

The Governor's approval of the smaller charity appropriations meets with the approval of the people.

The Governor approved over one hundred appropriation bills on the last day of the legislative session. This was quite an event for Governor Pattison, and those institutions and localities which are benefited by the appropriations are giving him a good deal of taffy for his generosity.

The Republican primaries will be held a week from next Saturday, 17th inst. The canvass thus far has been quiet, orderly and honorable, and we believe it will continue so to the end. Every Republican should turn out and vote for his choice. And then every candidate should be satisfied with the result.

GOVERNOR FLOWER, of New York, has been to the World's Fair and after he looked over the waltzers of the white city he went back to his hotel and talked, saying: "That fair is good for the blues, I can hardly say enough praise of it. I hope that the people in the East, and particularly in New York will come to Chicago this year instead of going to Europe. If they do this, and I believe they will, they will see by far more things of beauty and interest than they would in Europe." The good old Governor should give this hint to the New York newspapers that have been abusing the fair ever since it started. The great fair is an object lesson, and those who miss seeing it will miss the greatest event of their lives.

THE features of the amendments to the Baker ballot law, as passed in the last hours of the legislature, are as follows: The group markings are abolished and instead one mark in a large circle at the top of the ticket will vote the whole ticket. The section amended in regard to assistance now reads: "If any voter declares to the judge of election that by reason of any disability he desires assistance in the preparation of his ballot, he shall be permitted by the judge of election to select a qualified voter of the election district to aid him." The other amendments are those which have been popularly demanded, changing the time for filing objections, certifying official ballots, reducing the expense of printing and distributing tickets, and decreasing the percentage of votes to entitle minority parties to a party column on the ticket.
