

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

COUNTY. Prothonotary, &c. CALVIN M. ARNER, Tionesta Boro. Sheriff, HARRY MAZE, Jenks Twp. County Commissioners, W. M. COON, Barnett Twp. W. A. CONNELLY, Hickory Twp. Auditors, M. E. ABBOTT, Hickory Twp. W. L. STROUP, Howe Twp. Jury Commissioner, J. E. CARPENTER, Kingsley Twp.

Not less than 500,000 working-men are out of a job in this country. Now let the Democratic Congress meet.

Hoke Smith brands Union soldiers pilferers from the government which they risked their lives to preserve. They will have a chance to brand Hoke some day.

It is announced that since Dan Lamont has reached Buzzard's Bay Cleveland has started in to write his message. Just as if everybody didn't know that Lamont wrote the message long ago.

It is now rumored, or suspected, that the President is disappointed in Carlisle. Shouldn't wonder. The country is. Kentucky statesmen may be good judges of politics and whiskey, but they're not famous in finance.—Franklin News.

There was a banner carried in the Democratic procession a year ago which read, "Cleveland and dollar wheat." Can anybody tell where that banner is at? Or where the dollar wheat is at? Or something or other concerning the whole combine?

It is altogether probable that if a Presidential election were to be held this fall that some of the hundreds of thousands of voters throughout the country who voted the Democratic ticket "just for a change," would be found ready to experiment the other way.—Blizzard.

The New York Press truly says that nothing meaner or more unpatriotic has been witnessed in American politics than the scheme of the present administration to assail the good name of the veterans under the pretense of honesty and to plunder them of their hard won pensions under the plea of economy.

Governor Waite, of Colorado, is coming East to stump New York and Pennsylvania in behalf of free silver. We welcome him to Pennsylvania, but he must not attempt to ride in blood up to his horse's bridle while here. This is a State full of peaceable citizens, and they draw the line at wholesale gore.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

They are raking Ohio with a fine-tooth comb to get a Democrat to run against McKinley, and all the fellows who are "mentioned" have taken to the woods. Why not drive Frank Hurd up into the clearing and corral him? He is the very embodiment of free trade ideas, and the fight between him and McKinley would be interesting—for McKinley. Hurd wouldn't be in it.

By Hoke Smith's raid on the pensioners last month he claims to have saved the Government $150,000. And the poor old veterans who have been deprived of their pensions, although they were crippled in defense of the Government, will not look kindly upon that kind of saving. But the order has gone out to raid the pension list, and the first victims are those who are first considered. They will all be served alike.

Friends of Secretary Gresham are already beginning to boom him for the Democratic nomination for President in 1896. One of them, General Torrence, of Chicago, openly proclaimed in New York recently that the sole object of Gresham entering the Cabinet was to be in line to succeed Cleveland, and that he never would have given up his life position on the bench if he had not been assured by Cleveland and Cleveland's friends that he should be the nominee. It will be three years yet before the nomination will be made, and even should Cleveland and his friends succeed in nominating Gresham it will do him no good. The next President of the United States will be a Republican. No Democrat or Mugwump need apply. The present experience under a Democratic administration has opened the people's eyes and they don't want any more Democrat in theirs.

Evading Responsibility.

With the suspension of industries all over the country, with more wage workers out of employment than in the worst time of business depression for twenty-five years, with banks failing everywhere and with business and finances generally unsettled, the Democratic party will begin its complete control of the legislative and executive branches of government under logical Democratic conditions. The majority of the people wanted a change, and they are getting a sufficiency of that commodity in rapid and effective sequence.

Some of the Democratic leaders who are in Washington waiting for the return of the administration are trying to circulate a sentiment that all the disturbances are due to reaction from the high pressure of Republican ascendancy. The people, however, will know the cause. The friends of the administration have been conferring on the situation, and propose to take the edge off the unfavorable condition of the country since they came into power by making a few speeches in the line indicated.

There are a few Republicans like Speaker Reed who will make matters lively when the Democrats try to find a scapegoat for the sudden change in the prosperity of the country. Secretary Carlisle is again in Washington and is much perplexed over the general upheaval of business and industry. He sees before the administration a very serious condition of things which must be met. He has conversed freely with men from all parts of the country, and found the same feeling of distrust and uneasiness dominant everywhere. Carlisle has discovered that the financial question is in some respects simply an incident, as the industrial problem is one which will more directly operate upon political movements and popular sentiment. There exists a decidedly panicky feeling in administration and political circles. They look forward to the fall elections with great anxiety, and well they may, for their doom is foreshadowed.

The State's Health.

The State Board of Health is not doing any sleeping over its work. It has hustled to some extent in preparing for a visitation of the cholera, and has so arranged matters that no immigrant train carrying cholera suspects can get through Pennsylvania without running a gauntlet of inspectors who will have full power to act and to do whatever is necessary for the protection of public health. Furthermore the Board is about to issue a circular in which are laid down five fundamental measures for preventing or repressing an epidemic, as follows: First, protection of supplies of drinking water; second, early discovery of cases; third, prompt isolation of the sick and of those who have been in contact with the sick or with their clothing or effects; fourth, thorough disinfection; fifth, prompt and proper disposal of the remains of the dead, and full details for the accomplishment of these essential measures are given. It is gratifying to note that the Board's plans are now so nearly perfected that it is prepared for instant action in case cholera should appear within the State's borders.

At present the State's health is very good. There are a couple of localities in which contagious diseases have panicked the people, notably in Reading, where small-pox has created a scare, but the Board of Health has taken measures to repress the disease, and no further trouble is apprehended. What this country has to fear is an epidemic of cholera when the dog days set in, and the quarantine authorities in New York relax; their vigilance to engage in recreation. Pennsylvania, however, is well watched over, and it is far ahead of other States in its preparations to meet an epidemic.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Glad to hear, via Washington, that there is a general concurrence among Treasury officials that the financial situation has improved and continues to improve. Now, who will vouch for the accuracy of this information given out by the Treasury officials?

And, by the way, what has become of that report on tin plate industries, prepared by Major Ayres, and presented to the Treasury Department? Carlisle promised to make it public as soon as he got through examining it, but he has evidently forgotten his promise. It is an unfair suppression of information that concerns an entire nation, but what else could one expect from a rank free trader like Carlisle. Fortunately, a live trades-paper, Tin and Terno, has secured the tin statistics from the manufacturers themselves, and made them public, so that Major Ayres' figures will not be news when given out, unless some of Carlisle's henchmen have doctored them to suit their own ideas of what tin plate manufacturers should be in this country.

It is said that Mr. Cleveland is apprehensive about the result of the elections this fall and is especially anxious to be sustained in his own State. There may be some doubt about New York, but the other States North will make Mr. Cleveland open his eyes very wide.
