CONGRESS IN EXTRA SESSION.

The extra session of Congress met at noon Monday, but adjourned about as quickly. Speaker Crisp was re-elected, and the minor officers nominated by the Democratic caucus were also elected and properly installed. In the Senate about the same routine was gone through, and then the whole shooting match adjourned till Tuesday noon, without the reading of the President's message. From sources believed to be well informed it is learned that the message will not be more than a column and a half in length and that it will recommend the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act.

Pro-silver Democrats express themselves as agreeably surprised at what they understand to be the moderation of the president's recommendations. They are informed that he recommends the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act. He, however, recognizes that silver is one of the money metals of this country which must be maintained, but points out that with the present attitude of European countries the proper ratio between gold and silver cannot be maintained by this country alone. Therefore, he does not favor the coinage of silver under present conditions except for subsidiary purposes. He thinks the European nations who are now depressing the price of silver can by the suspension of its coinage in this country, except for subsidiary purposes, be coerced into an international agreement more favorable than we have heretofore had. He is in favor of silver on a parity with gold, and stands by the platform of 1892, but says that the platform cannot be carried out for the reason that a parity cannot be maintained. Prominent leaders of both wings of the Democratic party have had conveyed to them the impression that these are substantially the views the president will express.

Hon. C. W. Stone's Record.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Times says: Congressman Charles W. Stone, of the Twenty-seventh district, in the last Congress was given one of the minority places on the Committee of Coinage, Weights and Measures. This Committee, being the one which had charge of all legislation in relation to free coinage, Mr. Stone at once took hold of that subject in earnest, and soon developed into one of the ablest advocates of the gold standard in the house. His speech against the Bland free coinage bill last July was a splendid effort and attracted attention to Mr. Stone from all over the country. Before the close of the session he easily ranked as the ablest opponent of free coinage on that Committee. Then during the closing days of the Congress Mr. Stone secured the passage, almost unaided, of the bill authorizing a standard gauge for sheet and plate iron and steel. Mr. Stone will undoubtedly be re-appointed to this Committee and also to the minor Committee of Expenditures in the State Department.

News from Washington indicate that the Republicans propose to make the fight for tariff along the lines suggested by the Telegraph some time ago. The Telegraph then advised Southern methods of fighting the free traders, and if these methods are adopted and persisted in, there will be no Anti-American, Pro-British, Free Trade legislation in this Congress. The protection policy of the Republican party gave the country thirty years of unparalleled prosperity. The fear that the Democrats will force upon the country their policy has already made 100,000 workmen idle, closed banks, shut up shops. Against further destruction along this line, the Republicans in Congress have a right to fight with every weapon they can command. And we hope they will so fight.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

HE WILL RETIRE.

Frank Willing Leach to Give Up the Republican State Committee Secretaryship.

His Health Completely Broken Down by Overwork in the Party's Service.

He Has Had an Interesting Career in State and National Politics, and Has Made a Reputation as a Clever Tactician and a Skillful Organizer.

Frank Willing Leach, who since 1885 has been secretary of the Republican state committee, has determined to be relieved of the responsibilities of that position. He has announced that owing to the condition of his health he will not be a candidate for re-election to the secretaryship under any circumstances. The retirement of Mr. Leach from this important role will be felt by the Republican organization throughout the state. He has long been in touch with the active party men in every county in the commonwealth, and much of the responsibility of the direction of party affairs has fallen upon his shoulders.

Upon the advice of his physician Dr. Leach has gone to the mountains. Naturally of a nervous temperament, he has succumbed to the strain upon his overtaxed system. He attempted more than he was physically able to endure. He has not been in good health since he broke down in the campaign of 1891. During this campaign he not only satisfactorily filled the position of real estate deputy to the sheriff of Philadelphia, but, besides performing the exacting work of the secretaryship of the Republican state committee, he acted as assistant secretary of the Republican national committee. Frequently he was in his office until long after midnight engaged with a stenographer on correspondence covering every state in the union. Owing to the condition of his health Mr. Leach wanted to retire last year. General Leach was unwilling to accept the chairmanship, however, unless Mr. Leach became his chief of staff.

FRANK WILLING LEACH. He attempted more than he was physically able to endure. He has not been in good health since he broke down in the campaign of 1891. During this campaign he not only satisfactorily filled the position of real estate deputy to the sheriff of Philadelphia, but, besides performing the exacting work of the secretaryship of the Republican state committee, he acted as assistant secretary of the Republican national committee. Frequently he was in his office until long after midnight engaged with a stenographer on correspondence covering every state in the union. Owing to the condition of his health Mr. Leach wanted to retire last year. General Leach was unwilling to accept the chairmanship, however, unless Mr. Leach became his chief of staff.

Reader's Splendid Tribute. "I recognize in Mr. Leach one particularly well qualified for the position," said General Leach in announcing his appointment. "In fact," he added, "I do not know another man in the whole state who is as well fitted to look after the important detail work of the secretaryship. He has had long experience in this particular field, and I have a very high opinion of his ability and aptitude for the trying and responsible duties of the position."

While Mr. Leach has been secretary of the state committee since 1885, part of that time he was not actively engaged on the routine duties of that office. Although still holding the position of secretary during the state campaigns of 1888 and 1892, Mr. Leach was devoting nearly all his time to the work of assistant secretary of the Republican national committee. In the Delaware campaign, but a month before the election, he returned to Philadelphia, and at his suggestion the city committee, of which he was a member, organized a special canvass of the Third Congressional district, with Mr. Leach as chairman of the committee in charge of the party organization. The Republican forces made a masterly battle and reduced the Democratic majority in this district by about 5,000 votes.

Perilous Work in the South. In the national campaign of 1888 Chairman Quay assigned Mr. Leach to an important and perilous canvass of North Carolina. Mr. Leach took entire charge of the Republican campaign in that state. He made an effective still hunt. His mission was only discovered a few days before the election. Although his life was threatened he held his ground until the close of the polls. He perfected an organization such as had never been known in any southern state before. Mr. Leach had the satisfaction of knowing that, though the state was lost, three Republican congressmen were elected, which really saved the house of the Fifty-first Congress to the Republican party, for, despite the Democratic wholesale counting in tactics, the Republicans secured the house by a majority of three. Chairman Quay, of the North Carolina Republican state committee, in a cordial letter assured Mr. Leach that without his help he doubted if one of the three Republican congressmen could have been elected.

A Tactician and Organizer. Although he must relinquish the details of organization work for a time Mr. Leach proposes to continue an active interest and participation in state politics. He expects to be able to attend the coming state convention, to which he is delegate. As secretary of the Philadelphia delegation, and of the committee having charge of the canvass for the supreme bench in charge, Mr. Leach has a particular interest in the gathering at Harrisburg on Aug. 30. There is no doubt that it will be difficult to find a man as capable as Mr. Leach for the secretaryship of the state committee. As best it is a thankless task, there being no salary attached to the office, and the onerous duties and great responsibilities of the position are seldom appreciated. Mr. Leach is admittedly one of the cleverest tacticians and most skillful organizers in the state.

WHEN the fact that Secretary Carlisle had consulted with Tammany leaders in New York became known, public confidence was at once restored. As Artemus Ward would say, this is "sarkasum."

The fear of free trade is the cause of the business depression. The Sherman act is only a tributary incident. Make a note of that.

An exchange puts it: Cleveland, the Change, Calamity, Collapse.

FARMERS were promised $1.25 for wheat by the Free-Trade scouts who were vote hunting in November, 1892, but we hear nothing about the price of wheat now since it has dropped to 56 1/2 cents at Chicago. This is part of the kindergarten "object lesson" from teacher Cleveland. It may be a hard lesson to learn, but then the farmers are likely to remember it in 1896.
