Republican State Convention.

HEADQUARTERS REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE, 1231 WALNUT STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA., FEBRUARY 24th, 1894.

To the Republican Electors of Pennsylvania: I am directed by the Republican State Committee to announce that the Republicans of Pennsylvania, by their duly chosen representative, will meet in State Convention at Harrisburg, Pa., on Wednesday, May 23, at 11 o'clock, a. m., for the following purposes to wit:

For the nomination of candidates respectively for Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, two members of Congress from the State at Large, Auditor General, Secretary of Internal Affairs and for the transaction of such other business as may be presented. Attention is called to the rule adopted at the State Convention of 1893, providing for the basis of representation as follows:

Representation in future State Conventions shall be based upon the vote cast at the Presidential or gubernatorial elections immediately preceding, one delegate being allotted to each legislative district for every 2,000 Republican votes and an additional delegate for a fraction exceeding 1,000 votes, each district to have at least one delegate.

By order of the Republican State Committee. B. F. GILKESON, Chairman.

Attest: JEROME B. REE, A. D. FETTEROLF, Secretaries.

CHIEFMAN WRIGHT says that the reason the Republican majority was so large in Pennsylvania was because the Democratic vote did not come out. Nonsense. A great deal of the vote was out, and it was cast for Grow.

THE State's cash box is very nicely filled with a snug balance in the general fund. At the close of business on February 28th there were $4,942,979.47 in the Treasury to pay demands, all available at a moment's notice, and the State, with what she has in the general fund, could pay off every cent of debt she now owes. This is a most encouraging condition of affairs, and shows that when honest officials of the good old Republican party are placed in charge of the finances they are sure to be well handled, and the State come out ahead.

Grow's majority of 187,000 is accepted by most persons as smashing the record of majorities in Pennsylvania, but it is a mistake. The largest majorities ever given in the State was won by Henry S. Mott, of Pike county, as the Democratic candidate Canal Commissioner in 1854, when he received 274,074 votes against George Darcy, Whig who only received 85,331. Thus in a poll of 467,405 Mott had a majority of 190,743.—Democratic Vindicator.

One of our oldest citizens, who was on the ground at the time the above remarkable feat was accomplished, says it was not wholly a Democratic majority, but rather that Mott was the Democratic candidate and was endorsed by the Know Nothings, hence the fearful landslide.

THE Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Sun, who seems to be equally at home in the camp of the Regular Democracy and the Pennsylvania Democracy, as well as the White House, says in a recent dispatch:

"When Mr. Cleveland was informed that the Republican or anti-administration majority was 135,000 greater than his Pennsylvania cuckoo had assured him it would be, in the words of an esteemed friend of his, 'the old man was mad all over,' and was reckless in the use of emphatic words to express his feelings. Such is the report brought back from Washington by Pennsylvanians who cannot lie. The Keystone cuckoo are awfully flustered. They fear that a ringing of their necks will soon take place."

This would seem to be a confirmation of the report that the necks of J. Marsh Wright and John R. Reed are in danger, and that they will not be confirmed by the Senate. We doubt very little whether Cleveland would shed any tears if both were turned down.

The Republicans can almost make the Senate unanimously Republican if they try next fall, remarks an enthusiastic exchange.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Carlisle Indian School yesterday was observed in a fitting manner, and the Indian boys and girls who graduated, acquitted themselves just as well as that many white pupils graduating from any institution of learning of the same grade. It is astonishing to think how the wild, untamed, untutored and uncouth Indian child is taken charge of here, given an education, taught useful trades, and made a man or woman of, fit to fight the battles of life, and if those who do this good work have no other monument than the noble character they have moulded, it would be enough. The way to civilize an Indian is to give him an education and a trade, and he will do the rest. Many of the artisans turned out from the Carlisle School are as clever as the best of the white mechanics and hold their own with any of them any time.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Horses suffering from soreness, or any diseases horses, dogs or cattle are heir to, successfully treated.

The dentistry of the horse is a science in itself. It treats the cause of disagreeable habits. Horses having diseased teeth are hard to keep in condition, and if poor, it is impossible to fatten. There are few horses, young or old, without more or less sharp-edge or rough projections upon their molars.

The sharp edges lacerate the mouth, causing torture to the horse, and he tries in various ways to rid himself of the trouble. Some start suddenly or stop short, toss the head, drool or slobber; others shy, drive sideways or hold their head in an unnatural manner. Improper grinding of food causes indigestion, and indigestion produces loss of appetite, hide-bound, swollen limbs, starting or dead like coat of hair, coughing, discharges at the nose, running at the eyes, etc., etc.

All irregularities of molars or incisors easily removed. Practical experience enables me to give satisfaction in all cases. Have fine roomy stalls for the treatment of all disabled animals. All calls promptly attended to, night or day. No charge for examination at office.
