WHAT promised to be one of the greatest strikes ever known in the Connellsville coke region was begun last week, and for a time it threatened to be a repetition of the great Homestead labor struggle, with its accompaniment of riot and bloodshed, and it seemed for a time that the disturbance could only be quelled by the presence of the National Guard. But happily the local authorities by their prompt and courageous action, seconded by the efforts of the large number of deputies they had no trouble in enlisting; were able to cope with the strikers, with the effect of quickly bringing them to their senses, and there is now no apprehension of further trouble. It is bad enough as it is, however, and as a result of the trouble; L. R. Davis, district president of the United Mine Workers' Association; Daniel Derby, Secretary of the Association, and 136 of their ignorant and dangerous followers are now in jail at Uniontown, charged with killing Joseph H. Paddock, chief engineer of the H. Frick company, who was brutally murdered at Connellsville, last Thursday. It is gratifying that the local authorities were equal to the occasion and that no hiring detectives were employed and no call made upon the Governor for troops, and it leads one to question if much of the bloodshed of former labor troubles might not have been saved if the civil authorities had shown as much backbone and courage as did the Sheriff upon this occasion. The rioters almost without exception were Hungarians of the lowest type.

New counterfeit of the one dollar silver certificate have appeared in this State. The notes bear the portrait of Martha Washington, are of the series of 1891, of check letter A, and signed J. Fount Tillman as Register, and D. N. Morgan, Treasurer of the United States. The counterfeit notes have the actual silk threads in the paper, but the general appearance of the note is not good. The work appears dark on both face and back; it is similar to a badly printed note with sticky or thick ink. The centre lathwork on the face of the bill is as good as the genuine, but the stipple or other fine work about the portrait, the small lettering above it, and the whole border is bad work; and the parallel ruling for the number panel in the lower left corner is especially bad. Pay no attention to the threads in the paper as such only deceive you.

SOUTH CAROLINA has been in a condition bordering upon anarchy over what is known as the Dispensary law, which provides that the State authorities shall control the retailing of all malt and spirituous liquors and that it shall appoint all the bartenders and saloon keepers, thus taking the entire business out of the hands of individuals. There seems to be no reason why this Utopian idea should not work out all right, but theory and practice are quite different, and the people there look upon it as curtailing their liberty and are bitterly opposed to the enforcement of the law, and which so long as it is a law, Governor Tillman declares shall be enforced. The act will probably be repealed as soon as it can be done.

Kelleetville. Our little town is very quiet at present although the merchants all report as doing a good business. Mr. J. R. Osgood is in town again overseeing the rafting for T. D. Collins. Glad to have you with us John. Mrs. M. Andrews departed Monday for Buffalo, to purchase her summer goods. Our town is over stocked with one thing, and that is dogs. They have the name of being watch dogs. One thing they are good to watch is the butcher shop, when the butcher is out. Mr. L. J. Cullin is home from the McDonald oil field on a visit. The big Indian Show is in town. Every other night is free for two weeks. Remember the right night boys. WILL WALKS.

Virginia Soil too Thin for Pennsylvanians. Three years ago this spring Mr. H. McCray, a farmer living near Eagle Rock, and well known through this neighborhood, disposed of his stock and moved to Henrico county, Virginia, with a view to finding a section of country where the returns from farm labor was more abundant than in Western Pennsylvania. Mr. McCray bought a farm beautifully located, six miles from Richmond, with climate and surroundings everything that could be desired; Mr. McCray informs us that his experience in farming in that part of Virginia will teach a man more in less time, as regards the value of the land, than in any part of the country he has ever lived in. The land is porous, which renders any amount of fertilizers almost useless, as the substance will leach away from the best of fertilizer before the crop can be benefited to any extent. Truck farming near the city of Richmond would pay handsomely, if the land could be made to yield fairly, but so little can be produced that even though a man owns the land, it is by dint of the hardest struggle a person can make a living.

Mr. McCray says his first misgivings as to the situation in that country came soon after his arrival there, from the fact that so many of his neighbors who were Northerners, were anxious to sell out and go back to their old homes. Some had been there two, some four and some six years; and Mr. McCray says: "I thought it best to get out while I could." Mr. McCray has returned to the old homestead at Eagle Rock, well satisfied that there are many places less desirable than along the Allegheny, when it comes to the matter of farming for profit.—Pleasantville Record.

PATRICK WALSH of Augusta, Ga., editor of the Chronicle has been named to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Colquitt. THE evidence in the Breckinridge Pollard breach of promise case is all in and the lawyers are making their pleas to the jury. It is unlikely that a verdict will be rendered before next week. FARMERS may well remember the fall of 1892, when, during the Presidential campaign, they were told by the Free-Trade party that all they need to do in order to secure dollar wheat was to vote for Grover Cleveland for President and for every other candidate of the same political faith. Some farmers believed this dollar wheat promise and voted as they were directed. They are now reaping their harvest, as March 12 report of the statistician of the Department of Agriculture points out in the following words:

The returns of the correspondents of the department throughout the great wheat surplus States indicate a new factor in the consumption of wheat—viz, the feeding of same to hogs and other stock, a fact due as declared, to the unprecedentedly low prices, the claim being made that this mode of disposing of the cereal is profitable as compared with marketing it for human food.

WITHOUT THE Non-pull-out BOW (RING) It is easy to steal or ring watches from the pocket. The thief gets the watch in one hand, the chain in the other and gives a short, quick jerk—the ring slips off the watch stem, and away goes the watch, leaving the victim only the chain.
