

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, one inch, one insertion	$ 1 00
One Square, one inch, one month	2 00
One Square, one inch, three months	5 00
One Square, one inch, one year	10 00
Two Squares, one year	15 00
Quarter Column, one year	20 00
Half Column, one year	30 00
One Column, one year	40 00

Legal advertisements ten cents per line each insertion.
Marriages and death notices gratis.
All bills for yearly advertisements collected quarterly. Temporary advertisements must be paid in advance.
Job work—cash on delivery.

A literary genius remarks that Japan needs an epic and China an epitaph.

New Mexico ranks eighth in its output of silver, and seventh in its output of gold.

Strange to say, the improvement in firearms has not increased the murderous result of battles.

A French picture dealer says that all of his unsold pictures are sent to the United States, where they bring fancy prices.

A recent parliamentary return shows that there are upward of $21,000,000 of unclaimed money in various Government departments of Great Britain.

Of the 12,000 miles which form the land giraffe of China, 6000 touch Russian territory, 4800 British territory, and only 400 French, while 800 may be described as doubtful.

The warden of the Missouri Penitentiary feeds the 2000-odd convicts in his charge at an average cost of eight cents each a day, and, according to the New Orleans Picayune, they live reasonably well, too.

The deliberate judgment of Judge is "that the continuance of the Turkish Government after the last slaughter in Armenia is an insult to decent humanity the world over, and the European politics that treats it feebly or overlooks it is a hideous crime."

The mountainous regions of the western part of North Carolina truly afford a typical section for both summer and winter resorts. This fact has been taken advantage of by Northern people, who are now found in large numbers, enjoying life in this most delightful spot.

Land suitable for fruit culture in California commands a much higher price per acre than in New York. Anywhere near railroads the price is from $100 to $300 per acre, without any improvements, and of course if there are buildings and fruit trees planted, the price is more.

Dr. Joseph Parker, of the City Temple, London, is warping with the reporters for reporting his sermons. He thinks that newspaper reports interfere with the profits of his published sermons, and has been asking advice as to how he can prevent reporters taking notes of his addresses. It is believed his only remedy is to make a contract with his auditors that they will not publish his sermons.

The age limit in the Chinese army is elastic, if there is any truth in an edict which is attributed to the Chinese Emperor. The document grants a piece of silk, ten bushels of rice and ten pounds of meat to soldiers upward of eighty years of age. A double quantity is allowed to those who have reached ninety years. A patent of nobility is granted to those who have survived their hundredth year.

A man in Australia had a new and brilliant idea not long ago in regard to the interpretation of the clause in his marriage vows: "Till death us do part." His wife died, luckily for her, as the following facts demonstrate, and since he was bound only till death to his wife, the husband refused to pay her funeral expenses. The court promptly decided that a husband's duties only cease when the undertaker's bills are paid.

Says the Electrical Review: In 1891 a young electrician, now in Paris, on looking through Carnegie's great steel rail plant at Braddock, Penn., casually suggested that electricity could be made to operate the widely separated pieces of machinery at a saving of many thousands a year. Recently Andrew Carnegie visited the plant for the first time in two years and saw electricity doing the work. This movement, together with other "HOR"es it possible for eight men to do the work 500 did in 1891.

An unusual thing, related by the Cleveland Plain-Dealer, in connection with the court is the holding, by the United States Grand Jury, that Scriptural quotations may be libelous. H. A. Budy, of Meigs, Harrison County, was indicted for writing letters and postal cards to David Handley, of Columbus, Ohio. On the envelope of the letters were the quotations: "Owe No Man Anything," "Let Us Walk Honestly," and "Many Years Thou Shalt Be Troubled." He was indicted on four counts on the ground that the language used was libelous and calculated to injure the character of Mr. Handley.

THE TELEGRAPH.
The darkness and the silence lie
Between your soul and mine,
Like some great river rolling by
Beneath a night of stormy sky,
Where not a star may shine.
But, as beneath the silent brims
Twixt lands of kindred speech,
There runs a slender, living line
O'er which there flash by lightning-arms,
The thoughts of each to each,
So, 'neath the parting flood of death
There runs a living line
Of steadfast memory and faith,
Of love not born for mortal breath,
Between your soul and mine!
—Samantha W. Shoup, in Independent.

AS IN A LOOKING GLASS.
SEEN—Boudoir and toilet of a society belle. The belle, who, besides being very beautiful, is still young and fresh, is seated in front of her dressing-table under the hands of her maid, who is preparing her hair for the night. On the dressing table are a mirror and various articles of the toilet.
THE Maid—"Mademoiselle was a great triumph to-night, no?"
The Belle (abstractedly)—"Yes, Celeste, I think so."
The Maid (with pride)—"The men all fall down and adore mademoiselle; no?"
The Belle—"No, not all the men. Some of them. Enough of them. (Sighing.) Too many of them."
The Maid—"That is good. Mademoiselle has embarrassment of choice."
The Belle—"Yes, an embarrassment of choice. You speak truly, Celeste. (Sighing again.) It is that which makes me—bah! why think of it all? I suppose it is the experience of all girls like me in society, with a fortune, a face and a facile tongue. There! That will do for to-night, Celeste; I am going to sit up for a little. I may read and I may write, I cannot say."
The Maid (horried)—"But mademoiselle has already lost so much of the beauty sleep."
The Belle—"I am restless. Besides, if all be true that men have told me to-night, I do not need it. Good night, Celeste."
The Maid—"Good night, mademoiselle!" (Exit maid.)
The Belle (alone)—"Five proposals in one night. That is, counting one that I suppose does not—ought not to count. Four of them at any rate such as a girl in her second season should jump at. As for the fifth—well, I won't think of it, I mean, if I can help it. I won't. Yet—but what nonsense! Let me review the others. First came old Totterly. Sixty years old he said he was. He is eighty, if he is a day. Worth four millions, he said. That part is probably true. But, oh! Let us pass on to the next. Philip Egerton Denning, the writer and thinker; the literary lion of the season. Fanny he should fancy me. I like him, too, myself. I cannot help admiring his intellect, and I feel that I should always respect him. Yet—(nurses several minutes, then sighs.) Who next? Oh, yes. (Laughing heartily.) I must not forget him. Lord Tuffnut, the latest British importation, who did me the honor to offer me, with a monocle in one fishy eye, his title, his mortgaged estates and the family tree that, in its time, has borne an abundance of just such overripe fruit as he is. And for what? My youth, beauty, and money. Nonsense. Next. Ahem! The same thing, in a measure, only of our own manufacture. Tracy de Puyster Van Treffer, of the most certain of the blooded Knickerbocker stock. Truly our country has reached a wonderful height in her industries when she can turn out anything so nearly like the English article, even to his morals, as Tracy de Puyster Van Treffer! There they are, all of them, labelled to the best possible advantage. All—except Jack. Poor Jack! Well, I might as well list him. Jack Willoughby. Something down town. Poor as a church mouse, handsome as Apollo, and true as steel. Ah, well! (sighing) I suppose I must not think of him. It is lucky, though, that some one interrupted us when he proposed, or I might have said yes. I was overcome with the heat of the ball room; and when he put his arm around me, and whisperingly begged for an answer, I felt so weak, for the moment, that I don't think I should have had strength to refuse him. But somebody came, somebody always does, and I suppose I am safe. I promised them all an answer in a week. An embarrassment of choice, Celeste said. (Closes her eyes and thinks.)
A half hour or more passes, during which the belle appears to sleep. Suddenly she opens her eyes.
The Belle—"I must have slept. But nothing in my dreams seemed to offer me any help. Oh, dear! Is there anything or anybody that can show me what to do?"
A voice—"There is."
The Belle (startled)—"Good gracious! What was that?"
A voice—"Don't be frightened. It was I."
The Belle (still more alarmed)—"But who are you? Where are you?"
A voice—"Your mirror."
The Belle—"But, good heavens! Mirrors cannot speak."
The Mirror—"Mirrors can do a great many more things than people give them credit for. We reflect; why should we not speak? That we can do so is proved by my talking to you now. I have listened to all you have thought and would help you."
The Belle (trembling)—"Was I thinking aloud?"
The Mirror—"No. But you cannot think and look into my face without every thought being known to me even though I may not reveal what is in your mind. I want to help you to decide your future. Are you willing, that I should?"

The Belle—"You mean with regard to—"
The Mirror (blandly)—"I mean with regard to the five proposals you received to-night."
The Belle (after a pause)—"Which shall I accept?"
The Mirror—"That I may not tell you. I can simply help you to judge for yourself."
The Belle (anxiously)—"How can you do that?"
The Mirror—"By showing you yourself, your surroundings and your condition of mind, five years after your marriage with any one of your would-be husbands of this evening."
The Belle—"Oh, dear! This is worse than chiro-mancy. Wouldn't it—wouldn't it be wicked?"
The Mirror—"Not so wicked as it would be to marry the wrong man."
The Belle—"I suppose that must be true. Well, what must I do?"
The Mirror—"First, turn down the gas. Then place yourself facing me, and light the spirit lamp of your curling-iron apparatus. Now, take some of your pearl face powder, sprinkle it on the flame, and wait. (She does so.) The surface of the mirror becomes heavily clouded. Which would you see first?"
The Belle (laughing hysterically)—"Oh, take them in their regular order."
The Mirror—"Then, Mr. Totterly, the eighty-year-old millionaire, first. What can you see? Speak!" (The cloud on the face of the mirror gradually clears in the centre, disclosing a picture.)
The Belle (in a low voice)—"I see myself, handsomely dressed, covered with jewels, at an evening reception. Many men are around me offering me attentions. For some reason I dare not accept them. In a corner, jealously watching me, I see Mr. Totterly. He scowls every time a man pays me a compliment. Everything is bright around me, but the very brightness seems to weary me, and remind me of something lacking."
The Mirror (grimly)—"Are you happy?"
The Belle (shuddering)—"No. Although bored to death where I am, I dread to go home, because I shall be alone with him, my husband. I see nothing but despair and waiting, constant waiting for release." (Picture vanishes.)
The Mirror—"You will not forget that. Now look upon this. (Again a picture forms.) What do you see?"
The Belle—"I see myself again, but alone. I have been reading, but having tired of it. There is something I want to do, something I want to feel, but I cannot. In a little room nearby I see Philip Egerton Denning, my literary, intellectual husband. He is very busy, writing, in my utter loneliness, I get up and go to him. Stooping over, I gently kiss him on the brow. He frowns, pushes me away, and tells me I destroy his ideas. I sign, turn away, and go to bed."
The Mirror (ironically)—"Are you happy?"
The Belle (bitterly)—"No. All the warmth in my heart is gradually being frozen by the cold indifference of the man I have married. He is too brainy to lavish any affections on his wife; his growing fame is more important than domestic ties. Show me the next."
The Mirror—"Well, what see you here?"
The Belle—"Another reception. I am sitting alone, however, utterly ignored by the many women present except in the way of an occasional supercilious glance at my gown, or a whisper to some one else about me behind a fan. I think it must be in England. Some of the women have red noses, and they all look tired and bored to death."
The Mirror—"It is the fifth year of your reign as Lady Tuffnut."
The Belle—"I see myself moving into another room where everybody is playing cards. His Lordship, my husband, is there, gambling like the rest. I tell him I do not feel well and would like to go home. He advises me to go home alone or amuse myself in the conservatory. He says there is too much of his money on the table to go then. He means my money. I have seen enough of this."
The Mirror (mockingly)—"Are you happy?"
The Belle (sighing)—"No, but I am gradually becoming despondent to my misery."
The Mirror (as a new picture appears)—"Now you are Mrs. Tracy de Puyster Van Treffer, a member of the aristocracy of New York. Can you see yourself?"
The Belle—"Yes. I see myself once more alone. The room is handsomely furnished; everything looks rich and good. But I am waiting anxiously and listening intently. At every sound I get up and look through the blinds into the dark night. At last, as dawn is breaking, a cab drives up. I hear it. A few minutes afterward my husband enters the room. He scowls me in a thick robe for remaining up. A quarrel ends in my bursting into tears. He stoops over me to kiss me and I nearly faint with a gasp."
The Mirror—"Are you happy?"
The Belle (derisively)—"No, I am humiliated by his neglect, disgusted with his manner of life, and harassed with constant suspicion. I am utterly wretched."
The Mirror (slyly)—"There is only one more picture. Do you want to see it?"
The Belle (confusedly)—"Yes, I suppose I may as well. It is probably like all the rest."
The Mirror (as the last picture appears)—"Then behold! And tell what you see."
The Belle (very softly)—"I see myself again. I am sitting in front of a cozy fire of soft coal, sewing something light. Near me is—near me is—yes, it is Jack. Mr. Willoughby. I mean. He is talking to me very gayly, and I am smiling and listening. Now the door opens and two children come bounding into the room; a boy and a girl. They want to bid us good-night, they say. They look so much like Jack they might almost be—almost be—his new-born and niece."

The Mirror (gently)—"Are you happy?"
There is no answer from the belle, for she wakes up with a start.
The Belle (after looking earnestly at the mirror, which is as bright as crystal)—"I have been dreaming and it is nearly five o'clock. But I am not sorry. An embarrassment of choice, Celeste said. I thought so, too, but we were both young. I told her I might read and I might write. (Smiling.) Well, I have read a great deal; I think I will write a little. (Writes.)
My Dearest Jack: I don't think I will keep you waiting a week for my answer. I am yours as soon as you come to claim me.
Ereuz.
—Life.

WISE WORDS.
A rogue is a roundabout fool.
A full jail is better than an empty one.
Gossip is generally a desire to get even.
A drop of ink may make a million think.
It is a rare man who can do a favor delicately.
You seldom admire a man you see a great deal of.
Rank and riches are chains of gold, but still chains.
It is not hard to forgive a lie told with good intent.
One drop of scandal will spread over a whole life-time.
What we place most hopes upon generally proves most fatal.
Everything a man likes to do a woman can prove is wicked.
The man who knows the world and is not a cynic is usually a fool.
An evil intention perverts the best actions and makes them sin.
In the meanest hut is a romance, if you but knew the hearts there.
The fools are not all dead yet, and, what is more, they never will be.
Every human heart ought to be a bird cage with a singing bird in it.
Of all virtues justice is the best. Valor without it is a common past.
The happiness of your life depends upon the character of your thoughts.
The wise man expects everything from himself; the fool looks to others.
The people pay more for love than for any other necessary evil on earth.
The more friends a business man has the more things he sells below cost.
The trouble with most people's economy is that they don't save any money by it.
The younger a woman is the more indignant she is when she hears of a bad husband.
It is all right to vote for the country's prosperity, but you must work for your own.
What is birth to a man if it be a stain to his dead ancestors who have left such an offspring?

A Remarkable Fall of Stone.
M. L. Fletcher, an English mineralogist, tells of a remarkable fall of stones which took place at some early date in the history of Mexico. He describes fourteen huge masses in all, and advances the very likely theory that they originally formed a single meteoric mass that was shattered by the intense heat engendered while passing through the earth's atmosphere. The fragments of this immense meteoric are scattered over a section of country sixty-six miles in length and twenty-two in width, and it is estimated that its total weight was but little short of 20,000 pounds. One piece of it, now in the National Museum at Washington.—Atlanta Constitution.

How Horses Sleep.
When the horse sleeps, one ear is directly forward, why it is not known. A naturalist thinks this is to guard against danger, being a survival of their original wild habits. He says: "Watch a horse asleep through the window of his stable, and make a faint noise to the front. The ear will be all attention, and probably the other will round sharply to assist. Now let him go to sleep again, and make the same noise on one side. The forward ear will keep his guard, with possibly a lightning flick round, only to resume its former position."—New York Dispatch.

Tamed a Pair of Elk.
A Chehalis County (Wash.) farmer has lately been creating a good deal of interest with a pair of elk which he had tamed and trained to do many things usually done by horses. A few days ago a traveler offered him a good price for his elk, but the farmer refused to part with them. The same sight a cougar got into his barn and ate up one of the creatures.—Chicago Herald.

Wroth Silver.
"Wroth silver," from the several parishes of his hundred of Knightlow in Warwickshire, in England, was collected a few days ago by the Duke of Buccleugh as lord of the manor. The custom dates back to feudal times. For every penny not forthcoming the prescribed penalty on the delinquent is $5 or else the forfeiture of a white bull with a red nose and ears.—Chicago Herald.

THE MERRY SIDE OF LIFE.
STORIES THAT ARE TOLD BY THE FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Better Than the Bee—Abusement—Litteral—The Point of View—Adds Nothing to It, Etc., Etc.
How doth the little busy ad improve each shining minute, And gather dollars, dimes and cents For the merchant who is in it.
THE POINT OF VIEW.
Carson—"To what school of writers does Serawia belong?"
Vokes—"He poses as a realist; but his creditors say he is a romancer."—Truth.

ABUSEMENT.
Penelope (freezingly)—"You do not love me."
Tom Brooke (convincingly)—"I worship the very ground that you inhabit."—Life.
ADDS NOTHING TO IT.
"The telephone is like a woman; it tells everything it hears."
"Yes, that's so. And it's unlike a woman, too; it tells a thing just as it hears it."—Life.
NOBLE SELF-SACRIFICE.
Friend—"Does Arthur smoke?"
Sweet Girl—"No; he never smoked in his life, and he has promised that if I marry him he will never learn. Is it noble?"—Paek.

LITERAL.
"It's a good idea to make light of your troubles."
"I do," replied Hapigo; "when-ever a creditor sends me a letter I burn it."—Washington Star.
GOT IT.
Hoggood—"Yes; Jobson had no peace of mind until he married that girl."
Dewberry—"Well, last night I heard her giving him a piece of hers."—Truthful.

TRUTHFUL.
"Waiter, is this cheese imported?"
"Yes, sir; part of it."
"What do you mean?"
"Well, sir, the holes came from Switzerland, but just the substance was made here."
TWO STRINGS.
"Why is Charley letting his hair grow?"
"For two reasons. He intends to try football, and if he's not a success at it he's going to join the woman's rights party."—Judge.

A MATTER OF INDIFFERENCE.
"Do you take any interest in the problem of whether or not Mars is inhabited?" asked the young man.
"Oh, dear, no," replied the young woman. "Even if it were the people wouldn't belong to our set."—Judge.
GETTING EVEN.
Jones—"I told you that I would get even with Smith, and I have."
Brown—"How did you do it?"
Jones—"I made my wife put on her new two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar sealskin as soon as I got call on his wife."—Paek.

A SATISFACTORY SUBSTITUTE.
Irate Woman—"Get out of here, you dirty Injun! Is it dinner you have the face to beg for? I'll sic one of the dogs on you!"
Chief Meech—"Irad-of-water (pleadily)—"S'pose sich fat dog on big Injun; him heap glad."—Judge.
RESIGNATION.
"Is your wife lecturing on the destiny of woman?" was the sympathetic inquiry.
"Yes."
"Isn't that a pretty heavy subject?"
"Yes. But it could be worse. She might be at home making biscuit."—Washington Star.

AN AUTHORITY.
"Football, sir, is brutal. It is based largely upon the exercise of brute force, and the opportunities of unfair tactics are such—"
"Oh, say—hold on. Have you ever seen a game of football?"
"No; but I hold clinics in three hospitals in a college town."—Chicago Record.
GOOD TO THROW AT THE CAT.
Book canvassers should take courage from a story told by an English lecturer on "The Art of Bookbinding." A man of their profession had called at a house whose occupant met him with a growl.
"It's no use to me, I never read."
"But there's your family," said the canvasser.
"Haven't any family—nothing but a cat."
"Well, you may want something to throw at the cat."
The book was purchased.
HE DIDN'T WAIT.
"Mary!"
It was the voice of the old man in the upper hall.
"Yes, pa."
"Is Mr. Simpson still there?"
"Y-yes, pa."
"And didn't the clock just strike one?"
"I—I rather think it did."
"Well, you just tell him if he is there in ten minutes from now that is just what I shall do, and—Mary!"
Fifteen seconds later the front door opened and a stout, softy and Mary was alone in the hall.—New York World.

SCIENTIFIC AND INDUSTRIAL.
Imperfect clothing is a cause of much bad health.
A Swedish musician has had a violin made of aluminum.
In Berlin they are making nutritious bread from flour and sawdust.
An English paper contains the announcement of a cure for blushing.
The very latest astronomical works catalogue between 6000 and 7000 "double stars."
The Somerset Railroad of Maine has purchased a snow plow weighing twenty-three tons.
If a can of milk is placed near an open vessel containing turpentine, the smell of turpentine is soon communicated to the milk.
Bulbs of incandescent lamps are now blown with artistic designs in relief, thus obviating the use of a shade and increasing the beauty of the lamp.
An electric street sprinkler is in use in Philadelphia. It has two thirty horse-power motors, holds 2700 gallons of water and runs fifteen miles an hour.
Platinum has been drawn into smooth wire so fine that it could not be distinguished by the naked eye, even when stretched across a piece of white cardboard.
In Sweden a new electrolytic process is being used in the extraction of zinc from ores which have hitherto been considered worthless. It is said that pure metallic zinc has not been produced in Sweden for thirty years.
The greatest astronomers, in speculating upon what there is in space and the distance of external galaxies, calculate that the nearest external universe is so far distant that light from it, travelling at the speed of 186,000 miles a second, would take nearly nine million years to reach us.
A Mexican paper states that a new project for the sanitation of the sewers in the City of Mexico, at a cost of about $25,000, calls for the building of some twenty-five windmills in different parts of the city to rotate paddle wheels in the sewers and quicken the current to one metre per second.
Six devices for the humane slaughter of domestic animals, four for horses and two for cows, have just been imported from Paris by the Connecticut Humane Society. A hood which blinds the animal is put on, and attached to it is a spike which when driven in with a hammer pierces the brain and causes instant death.
A meteorite, weighing 198 pounds, has been found on the salt marsh east of Mulga Downs, Northwest Australia. It was an iron-stained mass of bright, pure metal, not a particle of stone being visible, and when struck with any hard substance rings like an anvil. It is two feet long, one foot at its greatest width and eight inches thick.

Uncle Sam's Farm.
The following are the numbers of miles in each State and the Territories:
Alabama, 52,250 square miles; Alaska, 577,390; Arizona, 113,020; Arkansas, 53,585; California, 158,360; Colorado, 103,925; Connecticut, 4,990; Delaware, 2,050; District of Columbia, 36,870; Florida, 58,680; Georgia, 59,475; Idaho, 84,080; Illinois, 65,650; Indiana, 36,350; Iowa, 56,025; Kansas, 82,980; Kentucky, 40,400; Louisiana, 48,720; Maine, 33,040; Maryland, 12,210; Massachusetts, 8,315; Michigan, 58,915; Minnesota, 83,365; Mississippi, 46,810; Missouri, 59,415; Montana, 148,080; Nebraska, 77,510; Nevada, 110,700; New Hampshire, 9,905; New Jersey, 7,815; New Mexico, 152,580; New York, 49,170; North Carolina, 62,250; North Dakota, 70,795; Ohio, 41,060; Oklahoma, 39,030; Oregon, 96,030; Pennsylvania, 46,215; Rhode Island, 1,250; South Carolina, 30,570; South Dakota, 77,650; Tennessee, 43,950; Texas, 265,780; Utah, 84,970; Vermont, 9,695; Virginia, 42,450; Washington, 69,180; West Virginia, 24,780; Wisconsin, 56,040; Wyoming, 97,890. The total area of the United States is 3,602,990 square miles.—New York Dispatch.

High Smokestacks for Factories.
Aside from the fact that tall chimneys are better for the public health, by lifting the deleterious product of combustion far into the upper air, it would seem that technical considerations alone might recommend them. But there has been a sad lately for low chimneys in factories, and W. B. Le Van expresses the weighty opinion that they are a mistake. As to first cost, there is no saving over a high, well-proportioned chimney, and the entire drift of manufacturing requirements demands the building of high chimneys so as to enable more fuel to be burned in a given time and space, thus increasing the power and output of the boilers. A rapid draft is equivalent to a large fire-grate area, and has the advantage that the heat is transmitted much more rapidly to the boiler by reason of the higher temperature obtained. Moreover, in many industries, the goods produced are liable to be spoiled by smoke and smut permeating the lower strata of the atmosphere.—Atlanta Journal.

Wild Animals in Texas.
Sheep and cattle ranchers in South-west Texas are asking the State to help them to exterminate or keep down the wild animals that are playing havoc with stock in that region. So far from the advent of settlers thinning out the panthers, wolves, and coyotes, the animals are increasing greatly in numbers through the plenty of food afforded by the vast herds of cattle and sheep. The ranchers have spent thousands of dollars in trying to abate the pest, but without avail, and now they want the State to take a hand.—Chicago Herald.

Loaf Sugar in Morocco.
An important article of trade in Morocco is loaf sugar, which is in general demand for presents. Every person approaching a superior, whose favor or good will it is desired to propitiate, is bound to bring a gift. He cannot appear empty-handed, and the form that is most commonly taken by the gift is loaf sugar.—New York Dispatch.

A Stern Disciplinarian.
General Count von Hessler, of the German Army, is a stern old soldier and a strict disciplinarian. He has been known to stop a subordinate in the street and make him remove his boots and stockings to see if his feet were clean.—Chicago Herald.

LULLABY.
Dear little girl, good-night, good-night!
The pretty birds in their nests are still;
We watched the sun as he sank from sight,
O'er the tree tops on yonder hill.
Two stars have come since the daylight went,
A way over there in the sky's dark blue,
They must be angels that God has sent
To watch my baby the whole night through.
Dear little girl, good-night, good-night!
I hear the frogs in the meadow call;
They croak and croak in the evening light,
Down in the pond by the old stone wall.
I think, perhaps, that they tell the flowers
Never to fear, though the world is dark,
They know the dew-drops glisten the hours
All night long with his cheerful spark.
Dear little girl, good-night, good-night!
Dear little head, with your silky hair,
Dear little form that I hold so tight,
Cozy and warm in the nursery chair!
White lids are closing the eyes so clear,
Over their blossoms the fringes are slow,
Slower and slower I rock you dear,
My little girl is asleep, asleep.
—Good Housekeeping.

HUMOR OF THE DAY.
Only the untried man wholly trusts himself.—Dallas News.
What nine men out of ten want is a home with toilet comforts.—Paek.
A proffered creditor is usually one that doesn't fight for prompt payment.—Paek.
These balloon sleeves evidently come of a desire to widen woman's sphere.—Boston Transcript.
A man who is a complete failure is nearly always particularly fond of giving advice.—Athenian Globe.
It was a junior in the Abilene High School who wrote "Evening Dawned at Last."—Leavenworth Times.
An egotist reminds one of a lizard; lop off a bit of him, he squirms a little and straightway grows on again.
Some future generation.
If I could do no mistake,
Will kick about the biscuits
That papa used to bake.
—Detroit Tribune.

If you can't remember what the string tied on your finger was to remind you of, you are getting old.—Athenian Globe.
"That must be a very good book Jumper is reading." "Impossible. He seems to be profoundly interested."
—Chicago Inter-Ocean.
A housekeeper up town says her crocer is so slow with his delivery that when she orders eggs the boy brings her chickens.—Philadelphia Record.
Morton—"Are you sure that Penam is really reconciled with his wife?"
Crandall—"Yes, I am sure of it, for she reads what he writes and he eats what she cooks."—Truth.
"They say it is electricity," said Pat, as he stepped before the incandescent street-light, "but I'll be hanged if I see how it is they make the hairpin burn in the bottle."—Yale Record.

Sympathy—"My lord," said an overworked parson to his bishop, "I have not had a holiday for five years."
"I am very sorry for your congregation," replied his lordship, with a smile.—Tit-Bits.
Hostess—"I am going to ask you to take a charming widow down to dinner. Will you?"
Barrows—"Certainly. I'll take her anywhere that there is a crowd to protect me."—Boston Transcript.
Loud sobbing trump; the great wet tears
Left large and briny tracks.
"Pray what," quoth I, "if not too bold,
Your heart so sorely racks?"
"It's sobbing and weeping, just as I told
About this income tax."
—Boston Budget.

We often sneer at the Egyptians for being a slow people, but on the contrary they must have been a very busy race. Even the mummies appear to have been pressed for time.—Rockland (Me.) Tribune.
"But, Emma, how can you prefer the plain and shabbily-dressed Julius to my elegant and handsome brother?"
"That is quite simple; your brother is in love with himself, and Julius with me."—Life.
"I think Miss Smith and Mr. Jones must be engaged; they have had their portraits taken together." "Indeed? I am glad to hear it. I knew when I introduced them that she would be taken with him."—New York Press.

A Huge Moose-Head.
What is probably one of the finest moose-heads in the world was taken by Bangor, Me., this week by G. H. Crocker, of Pittsburg, Mass. The animal was shot up in Aroostook County at the Otter Bow, and the moose weighed 1400 pounds. It is about absolutely perfect in size, shape and spread of the antlers. The antlers spread sixty inches, and when it is considered that fifty-one inches is a large spread, some idea of the immense antlers of this moose is obtained. The largest set of antlers of which there is any record is sixty-one inches, and this moose surpassed that animal in the shape and formation.—Boston Herald.

Loaf Sugar in Morocco.
An important article of trade in Morocco is loaf sugar, which is in general demand for presents. Every person approaching a superior, whose favor or good will it is desired to propitiate, is bound to bring a gift. He cannot appear empty-handed, and the form that is most commonly taken by the gift is loaf sugar.—New York Dispatch.

A Stern Disciplinarian.
General Count von Hessler, of the German Army, is a stern old soldier and a strict disciplinarian. He has been known to stop a subordinate in the street and make him remove his boots and stockings to see if his feet were clean.—Chicago Herald.