The Post's publishing an account of the great growth of the tin plate industry, which it declared could never be established, is a sight to make the angels weep.—Pittsburg Times.

The war cloud in Europe this spring instead of the usual Dardanelles lining, has a new variation in the shape of a Franco-African edging. It is still the same old cloud however, but is not likely to frighten anyone.

If guns and ammunition are being shipped from ports in the United States to Cuba, Spain has herself to blame, since by the action of her martinet navy officers the sympathy of the people of the United States is wholly with Cuba's down-trodden citizens.

The imports of woollen cloths through the New York custom house during the first five months of the Gorman Tariff reached 6,155,229 pounds as compared with imports of 2,090,546 pounds during the corresponding five months a year earlier.

A NEW license bill is to be introduced in the Senate at Harrisburg reducing the fees for license to one half the present figure and allowing the retailer to keep his bar open every night until 12 o'clock. The bill is to prohibit the sale of liquor by any unlicensed person, firm or club, if it passes and the bottle's license is to be abolished.—Blizzard.

DETROIT has furnished the country with many political sensations and vagaries. The latest development is a suit brought by an unsuccessful candidate against a preacher for libel, the divine having declared from the pulpit it would be a public calamity if the plaintiff was nominated or elected. It is not probable any jury can be found to award damages against the preacher in such a case. The pulpit is privileged to condemn men and measures in the effort to conserve public morals, just as the press is. In political campaigns any citizen is privileged to inveigh against the policy of electing any candidate. But in Detroit the politicians have old ideas about some things including the American type of political liberty.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

WHERE BUSINESS IS BOOMING.

A stroll through the wholesale dry goods district of New York city will convince the most skeptical that wholesale houses, large and small, are taking advantage of this era of Gorman free-trade to buy everything in their line anywhere but in the United States. The sidewalks along the dry goods sections are blocked with those strong, heavy boxes bearing the inscription "Made in England," "Made in France," "Made in Germany," &c. This looks to the casual observer like good times and prosperity, but when we consider that each of these foreign boxes and bales throws a dampening shower on our own furnace fires, and that the prosperity is over the water and not here, the whole business assumes another aspect. An employe of the New York Custom House has stated that during his twenty years of service he has never before seen such a volume of imports as is now entering the country. The whole custom house force, as well as many substitutes, are employed on full time. This is prosperity for the custom house employe, but it is destitution for the American workman.—American Economist.

NEW JERSEY IN THE LEAD.

The first annual report of Edward Burroughs, State Commissioner of public roads for New Jersey, is a notable publication and ought to attract general attention. It is evidence that the gospel of good roads has been practiced with efficacy and success in New Jersey and that its faith in it has been kept alive and strengthened by good works. While other states, including Pennsylvania, are still talking of good roads, are still taking the necessary steps to secure them lest it may cost some money New Jersey is already in the enjoyment of them, and every succeeding Legislature seeks to strengthen, enlarge and improve the original law which opened up an era of good roads in New Jersey.

The Good Roads Association should publish the road laws of New Jersey and Commissioner Burroughs' report on their successful operation and circulate it broadcast over the Union. The letter from farmers testifying to the benefits which they receive from good roads ought to be read at grange meetings everywhere. In eleven of the twenty-one counties of New Jersey macadam and telford roads have been substituted for the old mud and dust strips that served as highways and the change gives infinite satisfaction to the people. The cost is not excessive and is money well spent. Says Commissioner Burroughs: "The money expended on our public roads by the state brings the best return to the people direct of any money appropriated by the State Treasury, and the enjoyment and benefits arising therefrom are accessible to all citizens. We are buying the greatest amount of comfort and permanent good with the money thus expended."

The doctrine of good roads means free roads. Toll roads and toll bridges are a relic and survival of a lower stage of civilization. They should not be tolerated in the country any more than in the city. Commissioner Burroughs recalls the fact that toll bridges became free bridges in New Jersey because of the popular opposition to them, and for the same reason he urges that the counties buy up all the toll roads and make them free to all. New Jersey will doubtless effect this reform, for her eyes are open to the value of highways unobstructed by mud or toll gate. Eventually Pennsylvania will reach the same stage of development, but the dawning of that morning does not appear to be close at hand.—Philadelphia Press.

DOINGS AT HARRISBURG.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 1, 1895. The progress of legislation has not been exceedingly swift during the past week, owing to a number of bills on the second reading calendar upon which the friends and foes were about evenly divided. Although last Monday was the last day, according to resolution, for the introduction of new bills in the House, quite a number have been read in place, nevertheless, by courtesy of unanimous consent. The number of bills now on the calendars of both branches is upward of ten hundred, which does not include the regular appropriation bills, nearly three hundred of which are still in committee. For the latter class of bills a special calendar will eventually be arranged, but not one-fourth of the general measures will ever reach the governor, and perhaps it is just as well.

The Ways and Means committee has been giving hearings for the past three or four weeks to the different interests throughout the State on the new tax conference revenue bill. The manufacturers are arrayed against the bill, claiming that it does them injustice. The bill is the result of the work of the tax commission for the past two years, and will likely pass substantially as it is, and whatever differences of opinion as to its beneficial workings will have to be settled by a trial. Many fear it may not be an improvement on the present system, but it won't hurt, probably, to try it.

A bill came up on second reading in the House a few days ago, which if enacted into a law would virtually paralyze the lumbering industries of our country. It prohibited, under heavy penalty, the allowing of any sawdust, shavings or slabs to enter into any of the streams, great or small, in the State. The bill was killed, but not until after a tough fight, the vote standing 53 for, to 66 against.

The Judicial Apportionment bill passed finally in the House Tuesday, after several attempts to amend. Representative Smith of Jefferson offered an amendment detaching Clarion from Jefferson, and made a strong plea to the House for its adoption, but no amount of persuasion would induce the members to change the bill in any particular. Elk county is attached to Warren and Forest. It is hinted that the Senate will make some changes when the bill comes up in that body, but judging from the temper of the House, when it was under discussion there, it will not permit the Senate to make any material change.

The Gould bill revolutionizing the poor laws of the State, met a Waterloo defeat in the House on Tuesday last week. The bill provided that each county should have a poor house whether they needed it or not. Other expenses connected with the new system would run the figures up to large proportions for the smaller counties, and prove a hardship on them which they could scarcely bear.

Among the interesting scenes in the House during the week was the fight on the Quay county bill, which seeks to make a new county out of parts of Luzerne and Schuylkill counties. It was up on special order for third reading Wednesday, having passed the second reading stage the previous day with amendments which would effect every county with 40,000 inhabitants or over. This was a little too far reaching for most of the counties, and the friends of the bill in its original form found they had bitten off too much, and proceeded to retrace their steps and undo their work of the previous day in order to save their measure from ignominious defeat. When this had been done, and the bill put back in its original form, the opponents of the bill began filibustering tactics which consumed the entire day. The bill got through second reading, but by a hair's breadth, and unless its friends show up much better when it comes up for final passage, the bill cannot pass. A bill which compels the charitable institutions which receive State aid to purchase only such meat and poultry as has been slaughtered in Pennsylvania, has passed the House. Salt pork, ham and dried beef are exempt from the provisions of the bill. Mr. Seaton of Indiana county is the father of the measure.

An act to "encourage the use of wide tires upon wagons," is up for final passage in the House. Should it become a law all public highways with tires not less than four inches in width for hauling loads of not less than two thousand pounds weight, shall receive a rebate of one-fourth on their road tax. It is believed the rebate on taxes provided in this measure will be more than made up in benefits which will accrue to the roads by the use of wide tired wagons.

There is considerable uneasiness over the proposed new apportionment of the legislative districts, the bill on the calendar affecting a number of counties adversely, reducing their representation. Crawford, Lawrence, Somerset, Bedford, Mercer, Clarion and a number of others, each lose a member, and will fight the bill to the end, while the cities gain; Allegheny, for instance, gains four. Among the rural counties not affected either way there is a strong feeling that the cities already have too much swing, and they don't believe the load should be made any more top-heavy. No material harm would come of it if the apportionment were to be left as now constituted, and the bill fall of passage.

Little or nothing, except the introduction of collection bills, has been done in the matter of congressional and senatorial apportionments. They will all come up on special calendars possibly in the next two or three weeks.

Final adjournment seems to be about as indefinite now as at the beginning of the session, and it is looking very much as though there would be business going on "on the Hill" when the June roses are in bloom. J. E. W.

Eureka Chemical and Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis. Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being, at least. I tried the so-called "Kooly Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured!
