If you knew the dreadful story of that sparkling cup you're draining.
How it drags a man from virtue down to dark perdition's brink.
Yes, and wreeks his brain and body, leaves no trace of good remaining—
You would never dare to touch a drop of the accursed drink.

If you knew the crime it genders, how it makes a man a devil,

How it prompts to deeds of evil such as mind could hardly think,

If you knew the sickening scenes that mark
the drunkard's midnight revel—
I know you'd never touch a drop of the accursed drink.

If you knew the grief, the anguish, if you

lieard the bitter crying
Of the pitcous, pleading hearts now doomed in black despair to sink.

As you saw that host of victims on Rum's bloody airar dying
You'd swear to never touch a drop of the accursed drink.

If you knew how many souls were hasting on to woes internet,
If you knew how hell rejoiced as each form
staggers o'er the brink
You would piedge your sacred honor at the

That you'd never, never stain your soul with the accursed drink. God forgive the man or woman who by thoughties word or doing Dares uphold the glittering wine cup! Let that man or woman think.

BFIN IN SMALL DOSES. The small doses frequently repeated, small glasses of liquor regularly taken every day, are what make of an honest citizen a victim of alcohol without his having ever, perhaps, passed through a state of complete intoxication, and without his having suspected the danger to which he was exposed.

HE COULD DRINK WHISKY. Bernard Fluck, thirty-four, a laborer, died recently, and the neighbors are telling a good many stories about the circumstances that are supposed to have led to his decease. Fluck was known to have drunk seventeen glasses of whisky on a wager a few days before his death. Dr. Meyer assigned the cause of death as kidney disease, caused by alcoholism.—Cincinnati Inquire.

BEER AND SOUND HEARTS.

The "finest" lager beer made anywhere in the world is the Munich beer, of Germany. But now comes from Dr. Bollinger a very strange statement. It is that there are few adult persons in Munich with sound hearts and kidneys, and he attributes it to Munich beer. It overloads the heart and the strain weakens it. It overloads the heart and the strain weakens it. It overloads the heart he bealthy peasants from the country came into the city in numbers sufficient to keep up the stamina of the citizens, but now the beer is sent into the country and the peasant population have weak hearts and kidneys too. There is no remedy for this but total abstinence. So long as people believe in its harmlessness BEER AND HOUND HEARTS. long as people believe in its harmlesaness they will use it. It seems an absolute ne-cessity to spread a knowledge of its effects, and then if people go on using it they must suffer the consequences and can biame only themselves.

The Westminster Gazette gives an account of the following scene recently observed by a correspondent in the southwest of London: A crowd of children, mostly dirty and ragged, jostling at the entrance of a public house; two bigger girls, one with a shawl over her head and a baby in her arms, abusing each other, and breaking off to dance. Packets of sweets in most of the hands, some scrambling for the dropped ones. I asked, "Where did you get all those sweets?" Silence. Then a taller child said, "From Mr.—; he guv 'em as a Christmas box;" sol opened the door and watched. The public was full of children, and Mr.—was handing out his packets, and apparently trying to prevent repeated applications. This is how we make our paupers—just as the constant music at the doors of the publics draws children and lads and girls, who end by going in. I have watched them often. If the publicau wants to give sweets, why doesn't he do it elsewhere than across the bar." HOW PAUPERS ARE MADE IN LONDON.

THE CHUECH AND THE LIQUOR TRAPPIC.

In respect to the attitude of the Church relating to this question, it would not be true to say that, as a body, the Church has surrendered to the liquor oligarchy. It is true to say that it is so seriously crippled as to prevent any successful warfare. Let us, however, be just: the Church is the greatest foe the liquor dealers face to-day; the deliverances of its chief councils are strong and unequivocal; its ministry as a body is by no means tongue-tied or paralyzed, but its weakness lies in its want of unity and in the application of practical remedies. When it attempts to marshal its forces to attack this greatest foe of society, these forces scatter; they have not yet learned the art of Christian soldiery, nor the full meaning of Christian soldiery, nor the full meaning of Christian soldiery, nor the full meaning of Christian citizenship. Practically the interests of the kingdom yield to the demands of party. It is much easier to put into the ballot-box the printed party ballot than it is to put in the Sermon on the Mount, or even the resolutions passed by ecclesiastical councils.

What is most wanted is a sturdier type of Christian principles practically applied. The Church and its members individually must be raised to that high level.—Rev C, H. Payne, D, D. THE CHURCH AND THE LIQUOR TRAP

GENERAL SCOTT AND TEMPERANCE. General Scott was in command at Rock Island when the cholera broke out there,

General Scott was in command at Rock Island when the cholora broke out there, and, after various injunctions in his order as to sobriety and cleanliness, he added this curious paragraph, which was recently printed in the Magazine of American History: "In addition to the foregoing, the senior surgeon present recommends the use of flannel underclothing, and woolen stockings; but the commanding general, who has seen much of disease, knows that it is intemperance which, in the present state of the atmosphere, generate and spreads the calamity, and that when once spread, good and temperate men are likely to take infection. "He therefore peremptorily commands that every soldier or ranger who shall be found druk or sensibly intoxicated after the publication of this order be compelled, as soon as his strongth will permit, to dig a grave at a suitable burying place, large enough for his own reception, as such grave cannot faffsoon to be wanted for the drunken man himselfor some drunken companion. This order is given as well to serve for the punishment of drunkenness as to spare good and temperate men the inbor of digging graves for their wor bless companions."

MADAME PATTI ON ALCOHOLIC STINULANTS. MADAME PATTI ON ALCOHOLIC STINULANTS.

Madame Patti has uttered some strong convictions on the effect of alcoholic liquors on the human voice. She thinks anyone who aspires to success as a vocalist should be a total abstainer. She says: "Alcoholic stimulants of any kind tend to irritate the throat, and should be entirely abstained from. Even light wines are no exception to this rule. Most people are familiar with the hoance voice of the hard drinker, and it is often said of such an individual that he has burnt his throat with drink. Even a moderate use of alcohol may, therefore, tend to make the voice nucky." Thus all indications point to total abstinence. point to total abstinence

A YOUNG GIRL'S TRIALS. NERVOUS TROUBLES END IN ST.

VITUS DANCE. Physicians Powerless--- The Story Told by the Child's Mother. (From the Reporter, Somerset, Ky.)

Among the foot hills of the Cumberland Mountains, near the town of Flat Bock, is the happy home of James McPherron. Four months ago the daughter of the family, a happy girl of sixteen, was stricken with St. Vitus' dance. The leading physicians were consulted, but without avail. She grew pain and thin under the terrible nervous strain and was fast losing her mental powers. In fact the thought of placing her in an asylum was seriously considered. Her case has been so widely taked about that the report of her cure was like modernizing a miracle of old, To a reporter who visited the home the mother said: "Yes, the reports of my daughter's sickness and cure are true as you hear them. Her affliction grew into St. Vitus' dance from an aggravated form of weakness and nervou rouble peculiar to her sex. Every source of elp was followed to the end, but it seemed that physicians and medicine were powerless. Day by day she grew worse until we despaired of her life. At times she almost went into convulsions. She got so that we had to watch her to keep her from wandering away, and you can imagine the care she another case, almost similar, that had been cured by a medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost in desperation I secured some of the pills and from that day on the wonderful work of restoration commenced; the nervousness left, her checks grow bright with the color of health, she gained flesh and grew strong both mentally and physically until to-day she is the very picture of good health and happiness.

"It is no wonder that I speak in glowing terms of Pink Pills to every ailing person I meet. They saved my daughter's life and I am grateful."

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfalling blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (30 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Scheneotady, N. Paper guns have frequently been suggested as feasible, but have, until now, existed only in theory. Paper pulp, when compressed, is more elastic than metal, and can be made practic-ally as durable. Only the body of the cannon of which I am speaking is of paper, the core being of metal, and the outside wound round with five layers of copper, brass, and steel wire, and a final covering of brass bands. With a gun of this kind the chances of its bursting are considerably less than they are with metal cannon, by reason of the tendency it has to expand when fired. Moreover, it comparative lightness commends its use for field service and for rapid transportation and all that sort of thing .-New York Dispatch.

It is the intention of the Government that the sea-otter should be left to the Indians, that this helpless people, often starving on their bleak wintry islands, might receive some remuneration from the valuable pelt. But the charitable design of the department will fail of realization. Huntng vessels clearing for the Alaskan coast make a pretense of employing native hunters and often carry two or three Indians among the crew for the edification of the revenue officers.
