She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Stella Hazeltine, wife of Dr. Hazeltine, of Jamestown, N. Y., and three step-children.

—Here are a few points in a little drama recently enacted, says the Bradford Era. A bad drummer handsome and attractive, comes to Bradford. He sees a pretty girl on the street. A flirtation begins which ends in the usual way. The girl is lured to a big town in New York State and remains there for a time with the commercial man. He skips out in the shadows of a great city. Certain.

—State Sup't of Public Instruction Schaeffer has appointed Miss Aggie Kerr, sister of the late County Superintendent G. W. Kerr, to fill the unexpired term as Superintendent of schools of Forest County. No better selection could have been made, as Miss Kerr is thoroughly acquainted with her brother's affairs and can take up the work left undone by him better than any one we know of. Mr. Schaeffer is deserving of much commendation for his wise selection.

—The Meadville Tribune says: "June 27 of the present year will be one of the greatest days Meadville will have seen in a number of years. It occurs in the annual commencement week of Allegheny college, and will witness the annual gradulatory exercises of that valuable institution. It will also witness the annual reunion of the Northwestern association, G. A. R., Department of Pennsylvania, and the presence in our city of Governor William McKinley of Ohio, and many other noted men of church and State. It is estimated that if the weather is pleasant there will be 20,000 visitors in Meadville on that day."

—An exchange says: "Did you ever notice when a man drops a piece of meat on the floor, no difference how clean the floor may be, he gives it a kick or lays it to one side. He will never eat it. But let him drop his plug of tobacco on the street, and no difference how dirty the street may be, he will pick it up, give it a careless wipe on his coat sleeve, or on the bosom of his pants, and then take a chew from it with a keener relish than ever. And did you ever notice that a man will hardly ever drink out of a cup of water that some one else has been drinking from, but he will turn up the same man's whisky flask and gurgle it down without a thought on the matter."

—What might have resulted in a serious accident, but luckily did not, occurred a few days ago about three miles above town. Mr. Abe Hepler, accompanied by an eight-year-old boy, were attempting to ford the river with a horse and wagon when they unexpectedly got into a deep hole and the water turned the wagon over and threw the occupants into the water, and as neither of them could swim, their situation, for a time, looked serious. The boy clung to the horse and Mr. Hepler to the wagon until they floated about ten rods down the river where the water was shallow enough for them to wade ashore. The horse was so badly tangled up in the harness that it was about two hours before he was rescued, but all finally escaped with nothing more than a good soaking.

Death of Mrs. Jacobs.

Mrs. Elisor Jacobs, wife of Thomas W. Jacobs, aged nearly 51 years, a direct descendant of the famous Cornplanter, chief of the Cornplanter Indians on the upper Allegheny, died at her home in Nebraska, Pa., last Saturday. Mrs. Jacobs was the daughter of a Presbyterian minister on the Reservation and connected herself with that church early in life and has always lived a consistent devoted christian.

She was especially interested in the foreign mission work and temperance, being a member of both these societies in her former home in Corydon, Pa. On different occasions she was selected to represent the missionary society at meetings of Presbytery at Warren, Titusville and other places. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn their loss. The funeral service, which was largely attended, was held in the M. E. Church in Nebraska on Sunday and was conducted by Rev. J. V. McAninch. Interment in the Cemetery at this place.

Mayburg News.

Mr. Jas. Haslet is drilling for Wm. Richards this summer.

Mr. J. C. Perry and J. H. Brennan swapped watches. John is a good trader. He got a ladies' gold watch and a silver watch for his.

Mr. John Brennan is going to the upper oil field to work in a few days. He has a job there waiting for him.

W. A. Kribbs is hauling brick for the new boiler.

Mr. J. C. Collins is surveying out the new railroad of Mayburg.

Mr. W. H. Dosmer cut his leg quite quite badly last week.

Death of John S. Muse.

John S. Muse, an old and respected citizen, died suddenly Saturday afternoon at the Galena House, where he boarded. Mr. Muse was afflicted with paralysis of the heart. This together with his age, was the cause of his death. During the day he was about as usual and walked to Dr. Glenn's office in the morning. After eating a hearty dinner he sat down on the sofa in the sitting room and soon after was noticed by another boarder to be working in spasms. Before a doctor could be summoned he died. Mr. Muse was born one mile from Mercer on the road leading to Stoneboro, at the old home, about seventy-four years ago. When he was twenty-five years of age he came to Franklin and commenced working at his trade of cabinet making and painting for the late Benjamin Alexander. After leaving this employment he continued the trade of painting until about seven years ago, when he was appointed tipstaff at the Court House by Judge Taylor, who has always been a personal friend. Mr. Muse was a Democrat and frequently held important positions in the party. Always industrious and straightforward he was regarded as an exemplary citizen. Mr. Muse was married three times, but all his children, with one exception, are dead. James B. Muse, editor and proprietor of the Tionesta Vindicator, is the only surviving son. In response to a telegram he immediately came and made arrangements for the funeral. Mr. Muse was a consistent member of the M. E. Church. Rev. Miller officiated at the funeral obsequies this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in the Franklin Cemetery.—Franklin Cor. Bazaar.

Mr. Muse was well known in this vicinity and has done considerable work here. He is a brother-in-law of Daniel Walters of this place.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to Brother Muse of the Vindicator in the sad loss of his father and last remaining member of his family.

Court Proceedings.

Court convened Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Judge Noyes and associates Clark and Nash on the bench.

The constables from the different townships made their returns, and Constable J. B. Eden was appointed to wait on the grand jury.

The first thing in order was the hearing of license applications, and this took up the time of the court for two whole days and it was remarkable what a number of witnesses there were from the other end of the county, on both sides of the question, who knew nothing about the matter. The applications were all argued last night but the decisions were reserved until later in the week.

All civil cases were continued except the Salmon Creek Lumber Co., vs. Tionesta Lumber Co., which it is expected will come up Thursday.

The grand jury has been very busy for two days and it is still in session and may be to-morrow. Following are a few of the findings, so far.

Commonwealth vs. Chas. Walter and W. H. Dunkle, charge, disturbance at an election, true bill.

Com. vs. Odley Hunter, Michael, Robert and James Fitzgerald, charge, larceny, true bill. This case was continued until next term.

Com. vs. Robert and James Fitzgerald, charge, breaking open cars, etc., true bill.

Com. vs. W. D. Bucklin, Chas. Black and Geo. Huribert, charge, larceny, not a true bill.

This has been an unusually busy court and if all the work is done that should be done it would take three weeks to get through.

There is a large crowd of people in town and the hotels are filled to overflowing, but all are being accommodated.

Kellettville.

After taking a vacation of several weeks we again take up the quill to acquaint the readers of the REPUBLICAN with the doings of our busy ville.

Everybody who was looking for that job has found it, as very few idle people are seen on our streets of late.

Bark peeling is now in full bloom, but there isn't much to be peeled this year. Perhaps 2000 cords will be the extent peeled in this proximity.

Work of grading the extension of the S. C. R. R. from Kellettville to Mayburg is in progress. It will be several months before the work is completed.

Mr. Collins intends to add a planing and lathe mill to his saw mill at this place. The work of building the same has commenced. There will also be a track laid from the main line to the lumber yard, the grading of which is completed.

A. M. Hunter has recently added to his mill road a new span of mules and a canopy top for his road wagon, all to be used for the convenience of his many customers.

A. L. Weller has a contract of filling in and straightening a piece of public road at Frog Hook.

Miss Rose Sprague of Smethport is visiting at Mrs. Andrew's for a few weeks.

J. N. Heath is stopping at this place, and as a business, is handling fresh fish. John sells fish on the nursery plan, namely: "true to name." Give him your order.

Since our attention has been called to the fact that Kellettville is still gaining in population. The news may be a little old, of course, but it is still news to some that a son was born at the residence of B. F. Winans, and a girl at George Decker's.

Jim Cooper, who has been a contractor for Collins & Siggins at Fools Creek, has moved to Buck Mills, where he will operate for Mr. Collins. He will manufacture lumber as soon as the mill and other things are in shape.

WILL WALKS.

Eightieth Anniversary of the Birth of Hon. J. G. Dale.

This event was celebrated at his pleasant home in Tionesta borough on Wednesday the 15th inst., at 5 o'clock p. m. This hour being arrived, his friends, to the number of sixteen, headed by his old friend and lifelong acquaintance, Benjamin May, went to his residence, and were received and welcomed by the host himself, who did the honors of the house with his old fashioned, genuine hospitality. He did not know until shortly before the old friends began to gather that they were going to celebrate the happy event by meeting him at his mansion.

To use the slang phrase of the day, "he was not onto it," but his family—his good wife and two sons—were parties in the conspiracy, as they willingly and eagerly entered into the spirit of the event on a plan in all respects worthy of the occasion, by their cordiality and attention to the guests, who can all testify to the excellence of the culinary preparations, which shortly followed the meeting, arranged by one so well qualified to supply them as the good hostess of the occasion.

Among the guests and landlady there was a regular feast of reason and a flow of soul, and although none of the guests were spring chickens, by any means, yet they acted like boys. The host and guests told their queerest stories, the past was talked over and a little said about the future. All enjoyed themselves and felt it was good to be there.

Soon came the announcement that a repast was ready and the guests, headed as usual by Benj. May, made a break for the dining room where the feast was prepared, at which all sat down and regaled themselves. The two sons, J. T. and Alex acted as waiters in a manner that showed they were in full sympathy with their mother, the guests and the good parent whose birthday all were celebrating.

After the good entertainment all went back to the parlor and sitting room, where Hon. S. H. Haslet, in a neat little speech, presented an antique oak rocking chair to Judge Dale, on which was a card bearing the names of the donors—G. W. Boyard, A. B. Kelly, W. A. Grove, S. H. Haslet and Samuel D. Irwin. The Judge made a characteristic reply to Mr. Haslet's speech, which was well received.

After another pleasant hour spent, the guests took their leave of the host and hostess and congratulated again the worthy judge, each wishing him and his good wife many happy years under a good Providence.

This is not a proper place to give an account of his long and useful life—space will not permit—yet it might be proper to say that on Dec. 24, 1826, he married Nancy, daughter of Hon. Alex. Holman, raised four children—Mrs. Belle Dewese and Mrs. Jane C. Partridge, John T. and Alex H. On Dec. 24, 1890, Judge and Mrs. Dale celebrated their golden wedding, an event that occurs but few in this world, and of which an elaborate account appeared in the press at the time.

Stewart's Run.

The nomination passed off very quietly here. There was a very small vote polled, S. S. Canfield receiving 23 and McCray 2.

Chas. Zahniser arrived home from Bradner, Ohio, where he has been working at rig building.

Stewart & Son will build a rig on the old Siggins farm near the Temperance house next week. They drilled a dry hole on this place last fall.

Mrs. O. B. McIntyre is still confined to her bed.

Bert Thomson visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson last Sabbath.

Homer Bryner has gathered up a crew and is rig building. Rufus Copeland and James Tromley are working for him.

Mr. Philip Walters and Miss Bessie Green were at Enterprise last Sabbath.
