

THE FOREST REPUBLICAN.

J. E. WENK, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1895

To INCREASE our bonded indebtedness rather than the revenue has always been true Democratic policy.

HISTORY will say of Cleveland that he hunted more ducks and disgusted more Democrats than any other President.

CONTRACT the currency and increase the national debt is the President's remedy for his administration's ills. As a new method for paying old debts, it is worthy the attention of all bankrupts.

In the last five months France has bought from us $6,000,000 less and sold us $12,000,000 more than in the corresponding months last year. We are getting hold of the markets of the world, but it is by the hot end.

THE President asserts that the revenue from the present tariff law will increase "under normal business conditions," which is about the same as saying that good weather is to be expected when it doesn't rain or snow.

SENATOR QUAY effectually squelched the talk of making him a candidate for the Presidency a few days ago, in a very few words: "I would not take it on a gold plate," said the Senator, "for two reasons: First, I am not fitted for it, and, second, I would not live thirty days in the office."

THE first domestic tea raised in the State of Arkansas and put on the market has recently been sold at Memphis, Tenn., by a planter to the extent of 300 pounds. It has been pronounced by experts to be of excellent quality, and it is likely that its cultivation will be gone into to some considerable extent in Arkansas in the coming year.—Iron Age.

THE Executive Committee held a meeting in Philadelphia last week and decided to hold the Republican State Convention at Harrisburg on Thursday, April 23, when two candidates for Congressman-at-Large will be nominated, also thirty-two candidates for Presidential Electors and eight Delegates-at-Large to the National Republican Convention to be held at St. Louis June 16.

THE death of Hon. Allen G. Thurman at his home in Columbus, Ohio, on the 12th inst., removes another of the great statesmen of this century. He was familiarly known as the "Old Roman of the Senate," in which body he gave so many years of his useful life to the service of his country. He had attained the ripe age of 82, and his latter years were spent in quiet retirement. The world is better for having had Judge Thurman.

AMBASSADOR BAYARD's latest utterance concerning the "silly season" in America interprets his other remarks. It is time for Mr. Bayard to come home and get acquainted with American sentiment. It is safe to say if Sir Julian Pauncefote should talk home rule in Philadelphia in the same strain that Bayard has been discussing free trade in Edinburgh, he would not have to wait long for an official invitation to go home.—Pitts Dispatch.

THE reports from the corn districts indicate that the farmers propose to hold a large portion of the crop for higher prices. It was expected that the market would be flooded as soon as the fields were gathered, but so far the shipments have been comparatively small and the product is being cribbed in great quantities by those who are not willing to let it go until they can realize a fair profit on it, which is right. Let the farmer have the profit instead of the speculator.

THE New York Press points out a few of them, contained in his recent message as follows:

Mr. Cleveland says that the McKinley bill was "inefficient for the purpose of revenue."

It produced a surplus from the day of its passage to the day when he and his party secured power on the threat to repeal it.

He says it "curtailed our trade relations."

Never, before or since, have we had such a volume of trade as during the life of the McKinley law.

He says that it "impeded our entrance to the markets of the world."

Our exports under the McKinley law were greater than they had ever been before or than they have been since.

Is a man privileged to bear false witness because he is president? Is he not rather under the highest bond that can be given to be truthful and fair?

The next tariff will be made by the party of protection. It will be an American tariff, framed with a view to give American industry the first chance in the American market. It will lack the sweet simplicity of ad valorem duties, which hold out the largest rewards to exporters and importers who do the tallest swearing.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

THE Philadelphia Press says it is astonishing the effect the recent elections have had upon the next Democratic Presidential nomination: Hill won't have it. Whitney wouldn't take it. Stevenson doesn't want it. Carlisle laughs at it. Morrison says it would be no good. While Cleveland, the long time consecrated candidate, wonders how he is going to get out of it.

Off Hunting.
The New York World has the following editorial:

"The people of the United States pay their president 50,000 a year, or $166 66 for each working day, to attend to the country's business. There is just now exceedingly important and pressing public business for the president to attend to. Congress is waiting to know what the British answer to Mr. Olney's note is in order that Congress may know what its duty is in the premises. There is a very serious currency problem to be solved. Gold is still leaving us at a time of year when we should be importing gold. With a divided authority there is vitally important business for the President and Congress to do in agreeing upon some policy that shall save the country from a further increase in its bonded debt, or at the least save it from that waste of millions in meeting emergencies which has three times occurred. There is very pressing and immediate need to provide in some way for the protection of the treasury against another 'hold-up' by a syndicate, which is obviously impending. Yet at this crisis the president has gone off duck-shooting for a week or two. The fact is not encouraging to those who concern themselves for the public welfare."

Cameron Will Not Run.

It is now settled past all controversy that Senator Cameron will not be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate. The following letter addressed to Senator J. S. McCarroll, of Harrisburg, dated December 9, settles that question beyond all doubt. Senator Cameron's letter is as follows:

"My dear Senator—I am in receipt of your letter of the 7th. You will remember that in a conversation to my home in Harrisburg just after my election to the Senate I told you as well as many other friends that under no circumstances would I again be a candidate for re-election. Since then nothing has occurred to change my mind. Many friends from every section of the State are writing me, making inquiry as to my wishes and intentions, and cordially offering their support. It is due to them that a public announcement should be made in reply to their inquiries, and I take this opportunity through the Senator from my native county to thank you and my friends in every county in the State for their more than generous support for more than a third of a century, and to say that I have not been, am not now, and will not be a candidate for re-election to the Senate of United States. Not being in office, better opportunity will be afforded me to serve those who have served me, and that I will do so there can be no doubt."

It is not supposed there will be any lack of candidates for the Senator's place, a large number having already been "mentioned" for it. Senator Cameron was chosen to fill the unexpired term of his father in 1877, and was re-elected in 1879, 1885 and 1891. When his term expires in March, 1897, he will have served an even twenty years.

The Philadelphia Press
For 1896.

Pennsylvania's greatest Republican family newspaper, The Philadelphia Press, will enter upon the new year under the most favorable conditions of its history.

A powerful agent in the national community, it is now more than ever a leader in news and able comment.

Its various departments have during the past year been greatly strengthened.

Pennsylvania is covered county by county, city by city, town by town. No other newspaper covers the State so well.

The Woman's Page of The Press has become one of its most prominent features and is eagerly sought by ladies.

In the matter of Amateur Sports The Press is also far in the lead and publishes more news on that subject than any other paper in the country.

The subscription price of The Press, per year, is: Daily, six dollars; Daily and Sunday, eight dollars; Weekly, one dollar.

The Press is the greatest want medium in Philadelphia and gives the lowest rates on that class of advertising.
