

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

NATIONAL DELEGATE.

The friends of J. C. Campbell, of Jenks Township, present his name as a candidate for delegate to the Republican National Convention...

THE Kaiser, of course, is for peace, only he has his own way of getting at it.

It wouldn't be quite so exciting, but there would be more money in it for us to supply commissaries to Germany and Great Britain than to take a hand in a big war ourselves.

KAISER WILHELM will probably tell his grandmother that she isn't the only one in the king business, and that he is doing something at the royal stand himself.

THE Democrats in the Ohio Legislature seem to have had a post-mortem over the Brice Senatorial prospects the other day.

SENATOR GRAY of Delaware of course doesn't want the Senate to speak too harshly on the subject of Monroe. It might interfere with Ambassador Bayard's dining out.

MODERN banking facilities were illustrated in the recent transaction in the Bank of England, by which China paid to Japan an indemnity of $24,500,000 in gold.

FREDERICK R. COUDERT, of the Venezuelan commission, says it would be strange if the United States and England should come to blows about a refusal to arbitrate a boundary question when the two nations concerned have both placed themselves on record for years past as favoring the settlement of international differences by arbitration.

THE Constitution of Utah contains several new features. For instance it provides that juries shall consist of eight men instead of twelve, and that in civil cases three-fourths of the number may render a verdict.

While the Senate is on this subject, it should afford Comptroller Bowler an opportunity to explain his veto of the sugar bounty act, and his retention of the money appropriated by Congress for the encouragement of American sugar producers.

In view of the fact that the commerce of the great lakes in forty years has increased tenfold, a bill has been introduced in Congress to investigate the feasibility of maintaining a uniform lake level by a system of dams.

A London dispatch under date Jan 12, says: A Constantinople correspondent, telegraphing under date of yesterday, says that more complete tables of the persons killed and property destroyed in the provinces of Harpoot and Diarbekir show that 176 towns and villages, containing 8,650 Armenian houses, were burned.

That it is the intention to faithfully carry out the pledges of the last Republican state platform, in regard to the reform legislation to be adopted by the next legislature, is shown in the appointment by Chairman Quay of a Committee to formulate such necessary measures for the consideration of the next Republican convention, to be held in April next.

THE Turkish legation gave at the following official communication Monday afternoon: "The imperial government will not permit any distribution among his subjects, in his own territory, by any foreign society or individuals, however respectable the same be (as for instance the Red Cross Society) of money collected abroad. Such interference with independent government has never allowed, and especially

Jackson and His Example.

Eighty-one years ago on the 8th of this month occurred the battle of New Orleans, celebrated in the history of the United States and known to every school boy as the place where Andrew Jackson met the British, saved New Orleans with his Tennessee rangers and whipped the splendid British regulars.

It is now a good time to remember what sort of a Democrat and what sort of a president was Andrew Jackson. It has been the habit in the past of some of these Democratic worshippers of Mr. Cleveland to liken him to Jackson in his Democracy. However, this idea has been rudely shocked on several occasions, and only when the recent message on the Monroe doctrine came out have we thought of him in this connection.

Jackson had that strong common sense, that iron will, that keen insight into affairs, which comes not so much from education or the study of books and theories on finance, but by hard headed knocks in the rough and tumble work-a-day world. Jackson was not a financier and yet he maintained the finances of the government in a manner which might be of great value to Mr. Cleveland were he to read the annals of those times.

The Senate Wants to Know.

Secretary J. Sterling Morton will have an opportunity to explain to the Senate his great reform of suppressing the gift seed enterprise of the government. This has been Mr. Morton's most effective piece of work since he took hold of the Agricultural department. He points to it with pride. He tells his friends how much money he has saved for Uncle Sam by discontinuing the operations of the seed bureau. It mattered not to Mr. Morton that the law was mandatory. It had been enacted by Congress and approved by the President; but it was disapproved by the Secretary of Agriculture, and by him pronounced a dead letter.

A committee of the Senate had prepared a resolution directing the secretary to resume the distribution of seeds, as required by law, but before passing it, decided to hear what Mr. Morton had to say for himself. His explanation of his power to set aside a statute is awaited with curiosity.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowis, of Holland, Va., has to say below, will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had in grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle I so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by Siggins & Herman.

Fifty Thousand Killed.

A London dispatch under date Jan 12, says: A Constantinople correspondent, telegraphing under date of yesterday, says that more complete tables of the persons killed and property destroyed in the provinces of Harpoot and Diarbekir show that 176 towns and villages, containing 8,650 Armenian houses, were burned.

THE Turkish legation gave at the following official communication Monday afternoon: "The imperial government will not permit any distribution among his subjects, in his own territory, by any foreign society or individuals, however respectable the same be (as for instance the Red Cross Society) of money collected abroad. Such interference with independent government has never allowed, and especially when the collections are made on the strength of speeches delivered in public meetings by irreconcilable enemies of the Turkish race and religion, and on the basis of false accusations that Turkey repudiates. Besides, the Sublime Porte is mindful of the true interests of its subjects, and distinguishing between the real state of things and the calumnies and wild exaggerations of interested or fanatical parties, will, as it has done heretofore under its own legitimate control, alleviate their wants of all Turkish subjects, living in certain provinces irrespective of creed or race."

War Clouds Scattering.

LONDON, Jan 13.—The political crisis has reached a stage when "further developments" must be awaited before the general public can form a definite idea of how the wind is blowing. The uncertainty prevailing in unusually well-informed quarters is well illustrated by the fact that today while the Standard says it is authorized to declare that the German Emperor's telegram to President Kruger was almost an expression of a feeling of a momentary irritation, which has now passed away, leaving the relations between Germany and England as friendly as heretofore.

The Westminster Gazette this afternoon, touching upon the misunderstanding between Great Britain and the United States, says it sees a distinct break in the clouds and hopes that a settlement satisfactory to Great Britain and the United States will be effected with Venezuela direct and intimates that the Brazilian Minister is closely identified with the latest proposed solution of this controversy.

STATE creation has been proceeding rapidly in recent years. Four new states—the two Dakotas, Montana and Washington—were made in 1889, two—Idaho and Wyoming—in 1890, and one—Utah—in 1896. Probably 1897 will see another state—Oklahoma—added to the list.
