He asserts that people are buying wheels with money that should be used for other purposes. The Buffelo Express contains an advertisement offering to "exchange a folding bed, a child's white crib or writing desk for a bieyele." This causes the Oil City Blizzard to remark that "if the craze continues we may next hear of women trading their husbands for bikes, And in some cases they would make a good trade."

-Thomas Conley, a son of James Conley, formerly of this place, but now residing in Oil City, was seriously injured at the W. N. Y. & P. railroad yards at Titusville, Saturday afternoon last. He is employed as brakeman on the road, and was assisting to do some switching when he was struck on the head over the left eve by a freight car, cutting a deep gash, and rendering him uncouscious for ome time.
