TEXAS isn't hankering for the "free and unlimited." She has been too intimately associated with the 50-cent Mexican dollar for that.

MR. BRYAN is on the defensive. His speech was an apology for the Populist party, founded upon the ruins of Democracy.

SOMEONE, in commenting on Bryan's speech, says it resembles the principal river in the "Boy Orator's" State—the Platt, which is about sixteen hundred miles long, six inches deep and somewhat roily.—Blizzard.

WHEN the free coiners talk about the necessity of restoring silver to the position that it occupied prior to 1873, they ignore the fact that the Government has done that very thing fifty times over by the coinage of more than fifty times as many silver dollars as were coined in the whole previous history of the country.

EX-GOV ANTHONY, of Kansas, who died the other day, left behind him a forcible illustration of the difference between two kinds of money. "Suppose," he said, "that a person had a $10 bill issued by the Roman Government at the time of its greatest power and glory. How much would that bill be worth to-day and who would redeem it? But if the same person had a Roman eagle coined at that time it would be as it was when Caesar rode at the head of the Roman legions."

THE Democrats are industriously engaged in circulating the falsehood that James G. Blaine advocated the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. It is not strange that men who denounced the great statesman while living in unmeasured terms as the embodiment of everything wrong in politics, should now attempt to misrepresent his views on any question. Blaine was a bimetalist. He favored gold and silver coin just the same as the Republicans do to-day, but he didn't favor the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

"In the first place, I think we ought to remove certain elements of passion and feeling that have been connected with this debate. I suppose that if I have listened once, I have a hundred times to the declaration in congress that silver money was stealthily demonetized. Well, now, I, myself, in the house of representatives, produced the volume of the Congressional Record which contained the debates on the change in 1873, and there were 196 columns, made up of speeches that were actually made on the subject, and it was up twice, and, I think, three times. And yet they say it was done in a corner. Then they have declared it was done by an emissary from abroad, and they even went to the extent of giving the name of Ernest Seyd. Ernest Seyd was always a silver man, and was not there when the thing was done.—Thomas B. Reid.

SOME of our country contemporaries are still crediting the crown of thorns metaphor to W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska. Mr. Bryan himself has placed it in quotation marks and now admits that it belongs to Mr. McCall, of Massachusetts.

EX-JUDGE PEARSON CHURCH, of Meadville, one of the most influential Democrats of Pennsylvania, presided at a non-partisan Honest Money League meeting in that city on Monday night last. The meeting was composed of business men of both political parties, who have organized in opposition to the Chicago nominees. Messrs. Bryan and Sewall, and the platform on which they stand. Judge Church was made President of the League.

CANDIDATE BRYAN has opened his campaign as he promised in the heart of "the enemy's country," but he doesn't seem to have captured the country or frightened the enemy. As the result of Mr. Bryan's first onslaught on the enemy his campaign has suffered more damage than that of his opponents. This condition of damage to the cause of free silver and unlimited coinage is likely to increase as the campaign progresses, for Mr. Bryan's opponents have got his guage now and the next onslaught will be made by them.

THE straw vote is beginning to operate, and it is getting in its work on Bryan. For example, a canvass recently made of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway's employees shows that 90 per cent. of them favor the gold standard and 3 per cent. the silver standard, the remaining 7 per cent. being undecided. Returns received at Republican headquarters from Lincoln, Neb., show that in Bryan's own home he is hopelessly in the minority, and that his vote in that vicinity will fall below that cast for the Prohibition candidate.

THE imports of woolen goods for the second fiscal year under the Wilson law ending June 30th, '96, were 46 per cent. larger than those of the last calendar year, and the latter were 242 per cent. larger than the imports for the last year of the McKinley law. The increase alone in the imports of foreign wools since the repeal of the McKinley law represents a quantity of woolen goods which, if made in America of American wool, would have absorbed more wool than is now annually raised in the United States. This is the way the tariff has worked which the Hon. Wm. J. Bryan supported, "in order that our manufacturers might manufacture for a wider market." Under it they have not only had no wider market, but have been deprived of our home market, thereby destroying the only customer that the American wool grower ever had.

Mr. Blaine's Speech.

The other day an intelligent Republican of a Western state was asked how he stood on the silver question. He answered that he stood where Mr. Blaine stood. He had read extracts from Blaine's speech of 1873 which the silverites had garbled and perverted, and in which the great Republican leader was made to appear as advocating free-silver coinage just as the Bryanites now advocate it. Without a word of argument this misled Republican was handed a full copy of Mr. Blaine's speech and asked to read it. The next day he came back and broke forth: "Why, these fellows are deceiving the people; they have deceived me, they have garbled and falsified Mr. Blaine's position; they have picked out one or two sentences which, standing by themselves without the accompanying text, give some color to their claims; but the whole speech is a powerful and conclusive argument on the other side." No person can read Mr. Blaine's speech and believe that he favored the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, although at the time he delivered it silver bullion was only at a slight discount and the condition then was more favorable than now to silver in every respect. Read the speech in full. Don't be deceived by a few extracts.

Something to Think About.

Hon. E. R. Tarver, a member of the Texas Legislature who lives near the Mexican border and has spent much time in Texas, in answering a letter addressed to him on the subject of American and Mexican silver, makes some statements that American workingmen should think about. He says an American $12 1/2 grain silver dollar will purchase anywhere in Mexico $1.00 in Mexican silver. Although they have free coinage of both gold and silver, a gold dollar is a curiosity there and the silver dollar is constantly fluctuating in value from 47 to 55 cents, and that is the only kind of money used.

In concluding a long and interesting argument every word of which is an argument against the silver standard, he says:

"I will, my dear sir, give you another fact which has an important relation to this subject, and that is, the Mexican laborers on the Texas side of the Rio Grande have from time immemorial been paid in Mexican money, and in all this fall in the value of the Mexican dollar they have continued to receive the same number of dollars per month. That is to say, they got from $9 to $15 per month in 1870 when Mexican money was worth $1.10 and are getting the same wages to-day in the Mexican money when it is worth only fifty-three cents on the dollar and everything they buy on this side is priced in American money.

One more fact and I am through. American ingenuity, pluck and capital, with the assistance of improved machinery and methods, can now convert mountains in Mexico into silver, and make a profit in selling their bullion at 30 cents an ounce, and all they need is an unlimited market to increase the output of these mines to almost any amount."

A little daughter of Mr. Lewis Dayton, an old and much respected citizen of Barnitz, Pa., occasionally has trouble with her stomach which gives her considerable distress. In speaking of it Mr. Dayton said: "As soon as she has an attack we give her a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and it has never failed to relieve her promptly. We all use it in our family with the same good results." For sale by G. W. Bovard.
