"The Republican party stands for honest money, and the chance to earn it by honest toil."—William McKinley.

SEE that your taxes are paid, or you will lose your vote. Don't put this matter off, Republicans.

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON, in his New York speech, expressed an unanswerable truth when he said: "My friends, as a Republican, I am proud of many things, but I can sum up as the highest satisfaction I have had in the party and its career that the prospect of Republican success never did disturb business."

MR. BRYAN is right in stating that his election to the Presidency would abolish the gold standard of money in this country. It would require no act of Congress to enable him to carry into effect that promised change.

GEN. JNO. M. PALMER of Illinois and Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner of Kentucky, two white-haired veterans of the war, rival commanders of the blue and gray, were nominated Thursday at Indianapolis by the national Democratic convention for President and Vice President.

The Lesson of 1892.

What happened in 1892? Everybody had money, plenty of money; and then they came to you and whispered in your ear that although you had plenty of money and plenty of work that you were not buying what you bought cheap enough; that they were taxing the many for the benefit of the few.

It reminds me of a colored gentleman who wanted to cross the Arkansas river, and had no means. He sat down awhile upon a log and waited until someone should come up. Shortly a white gentleman approached. He says: "Boss, I want to cross this river; will you please give me two cents? I haven't a cent in the world."

"Well sir," he said, "if you haven't a cent in the world it don't make a damn bit of difference which side of this river you are on." And so it is with all cheap goods that these gentlemen furnish us.

They fill the stores with their clothing, made of shoddy, brought in under an ad valorem law by which the importer is made to swear that it is worth nothing, and it is worth nothing. It is made out of old hats picked up out of the streets and allies of our foreign cities, of rags from Switzerland and rotten socks from Italy.

What Blaine Said.

In the same speech from which Candidate Bryan quoted to show Mr. Blaine favored free silver are the following emphatic declarations: "At current rates of silver the free coinage of a dollar containing 412½ grains, worth in gold about 92 cents, gives an illegitimate profit to the owner of the bullion, enabling him to take 92 cents worth of it to the mint and get it stamped as coin and force his neighbor to take it for a full dollar. This is an unfair advantage which the government has no right to give to the owner of silver bullion and which defrauds the man who is forced to take the dollar. It assuredly follows that if we give free coinage to this dollar of inferior value and put it in circulation we do so at the expense of our better coinage in gold; and unless we expect the inevitable experience of other nations to be in some mysterious way suspended for our peculiar benefit we inevitably lose our gold coin. It will flow out from us with the certainty and the force of tides. What gain, therefore, should we make for the circulating medium if on opening the gates for silver to flow in we open a still wider gate for gold to flow out? If I were to venture upon a dictum on the silver question I should declare that until Europe remonetizes silver we cannot afford to coin a dollar as low as 412½ grains."

And yet Candidate Bryan would give the impression that Mr. Blaine, the great statesman, was a silverite at the ratio of 16 to 1.

The Vermont Settler.

The Vermont election on Tuesday more distinctly marked the beginning of the end of the Bryan campaign than has ever been indicated in any of our past contests by preliminary State elections. When Vermont polls the largest vote ever cast and gives nearly or quite 40,000 majority instead of from 18,000 to 25,000, it means not only that the Republicans of that State are thoroughly and earnestly united in support of their national candidates and cause, but that the Democrats are disintegrated and demoralized, with a very large percentage of their voters deserting to the Republican ranks.

The Vermont election is specially significant as it is the first expression from the farming element of the country. Vermont is more distinctly an agricultural state than any other state between Maine and Mississippi. Nearly or quite one-half the election districts of Vermont have a population wholly devoted to agriculture, and yet in not one of these districts did the Republican party fail to largely increase its majority.

McKinley on Free Coinage. [Letter of Acceptance.]

The character of the money which shall measure our values and exchanges, and settle our balances with one another and with the nations of the world, is of such primary importance and so far reaching in its consequences as to call for the most painstaking investigation, and in the end, a sober and unprejudiced judgment at the polls. We must not be misled by phrases nor deluded by false theories. Free silver would not mean that silver dollars were to be freely had without cost or labor. It would mean the free use of the mints of the United States for the few who are owners of silver bullion, but would make silver coin no freer to the many who are engaged in other enterprises. It would not make labor easier, the hours of labor shorter, or the pay better. It would not make farming less laborious or more profitable. It would not start a factory or make a demand for an additional day's labor. It would create no new occupations. It would add nothing to the comfort of the masses, the capital of the people or the wealth of the nation. It seeks to introduce a new measure of value, but would add no value to the thing measured. It would not conserve values. On the contrary it would devalue all existing values. It would not restore business confidence; but its direct effect would be to destroy the little which yet remains.

WHAT FREE COINAGE MEANS.

The meaning of the coinage plank adopted at Chicago is that any one may take a quantity of silver bullion worth 53 cents to the mints of the United States, have it coined at the expense of the Government, and receive for it a silver dollar which shall be legal tender for the payment of all debts, public and private. The owner of the silver bullion would get the silver dollar. It would belong to him and to nobody else.

Family Scrap Basket.

Vaseline makes the best dressing for russet shoes. Use milk pudding and stewed fruit for bilious dyspepsia. After washing never wring worsted dress goods. Shake them. Spirits of turpentine is the thing with which to cleanse and brighten patent leather. Moderately strong salt and water taken by the teaspoonful at intervals is a cure for catarrhal cold. Soak black calico in salt and water before washing, and so prevent its fading. Toilet vinegar, cologne water, alcohol and red wine are good for oily and moist hands. An exchange says: Apply castor oil once a day to warts, two to six weeks, and they will disappear. No receipts for soiled clothing, even if handsomely decorated should be kept in a sleeping apartment. The dirtiest frying pan will become clean if soaked five minutes in ammonia and water. Old feather beds, if left on a grass plot during a summer shower and allowed to get thoroughly wet, will when dry and beaten, seem fresh and new again. Whiten yellow linen by boiling half an hour in one pound of fine soap melted in one gallon of milk. Then wash in suds, then in two cold waters with a little bluing. A skewer will be found to be of great assistance in sweeping a room. Nothing else can so thoroughly dig out deposits of rust from rusty corners. For still smaller recesses a bit of twisted wire that started life as a hairpin will be found equally effective.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of Tionesta Lodge, No. 329, I. O. O. F., Tuesday evening, Sept. 1, 1896, a committee was appointed to draft resolutions relative to the death of Brother C. R. Davis. Resolved, That we extend our thanks to San Diego Lodge, No. 155, I. O. O. F., of California, for its fraternal kindness to the deceased in his last illness and death. Resolved, That these resolutions be published in both county papers, and copies be sent to the family of deceased, also to San Diego Lodge, No. 155, of California. J. D. DAWSON, Com. C. W. CLARK, Sec.

It is not unusual for druggists to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their customers. Many of them have used it themselves, or in their families, and know from their own experience its great value in the treatment of coughs, colds and croup. They know too that their customers are their best friends and naturally wish to give them the most reliable medicine they have for those ailments.

Free silver means the debasement of our currency to the amount of the difference between the commercial and coin value of the silver dollar, which is ever changing, and the effect would be to reduce property values, entail untold financial loss, destroy confidence, impair the obligations of existing contracts, further impoverish the laborers and producers of the country, create a panic of unparalleled severity, and inflict upon trade and commerce a deadly blow.

GEMS FROM McKINLEY.

Terse Truths from the Candidate's Great Letter of Acceptance. EFFECT OF CHEAP MONEY. The Debasement of the Currency Means Destruction of Values. THINGS IT WOULD NOT DO.

It would Not Make Labor Easier, the Hours of Labor Shorter or Pay Better. It would Not Start a Factory or Make a Demand for an Additional Day's Labor—It would Not Make Farming More Profitable.

The letter of acceptance penned by Major McKinley is full of terse sentences. Nuggets of thought are sometimes overlooked in the perusal of so long a document. We lift out a few of these nuggets and give them separately:

Debasement of the currency means destruction of values. The owner of the silver bullion would get the silver dollar. It would belong to him and nobody else.

It is a mere pretense to attribute the hard times to the fact that all our currency is on a gold basis. Good money never made times hard.

It would restore business confidence, but its direct effect would be to destroy the little which yet remains.

The government would get nothing from the transaction. It would bear the expense of coining the silver, and the community would suffer loss by its use.

If there is any one thing which should be free from speculation and fluctuation it is the money of a country. It ought never to be the subject of more partisan contention.

When we part with our labor, our products, or our property we should receive in return money which is as staple and unchanging in value as the ingenuity of honest men can make it.

Until international agreement is had it is the plain duty of the United States to maintain the gold standard. It is the recognized and sole standard of the great commercial nations of the world.

Let us hold fast to that which we know is good. It is not more money we want; what we want is to put the money we already have to work. When money is employed men are employed.

It would not make labor easier, the hours of labor shorter, or the pay better. It would not make farming less laborious or more profitable. It would not start a factory or make a demand for an additional day's labor.

No one suffers so much from cheap money as the farmers and laborers. They are the first to feel its bad effects, and the last to recover from them. This has been the uniform experience of all countries, and here as elsewhere.

We cannot restore the public confidence by an act which would revolutionize all values, or an act which entails a deficiency in the public revenues. We cannot inspire confidence by advocating repudiation or practicing dishonesty.

There would be no obligation resting upon the government to maintain parity, and if there were, it would be powerless to do it. The simple truth is we would be driven to a silver basis—to silver monometallism. These dollars, therefore, would stand upon their real value.

Free silver would not mean that silver dollars were to be freely had without cost or labor. It would mean the free use of the mints of the United States for the few who are owners of silver bullion, but would make silver coin no freer to the many who are engaged in other enterprises.

Mexico and China have tried the experiment. Mexico has free coinage of silver and gold at a ratio slightly in excess of sixteen and a half ounces of silver to one ounce of gold, and while her mints are freely open to both metals at that ratio, not a single dollar in gold bullion is coined and circulated as money.

It is not an increase in the volume of money which is the need of the time, but an increase in the volume of business; not an increase of coin, but an increase of confidence; not more coinage, but a more active use of the money coined; not open mints for the unlimited coinage of the silver of the world, but open mills for the full and unrestricted labor of American workmen.

Free silver means the debasement of our currency to the amount of the difference between the commercial and coin value of the silver dollar, which is ever changing, and the effect would be to reduce property values, entail untold financial loss, destroy confidence, impair the obligations of existing contracts, further impoverish the laborers and producers of the country, create a panic of unparalleled severity, and inflict upon trade and commerce a deadly blow.

The poor and not the rich are always the greatest sufferers from every attempt to debase our money. It would fall with alarming severity upon investments already made, upon insurance companies and their policy holders; upon savings banks and their depositors; upon building and loan association members; upon the savings of thrift, and upon the wage earners and the purchasing power of their wages.

Every attempt to array class against class, "the classes against the masses," action against action, labor against capital, "the poor against the rich," or interest against interest in the United States, will fall the highest degree reprehensible. It is opposed to the national interest and interest, and should be resisted by every citizen. We are not a nation of classes but of sturdy, free, independent and honorable people, despising the demagogue and never capitulating to dishonesty.

How Much Is There In It? Before you for 50-cent dollars, would it not be well for the man who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow to require some sort of security from the popocrats that when they come in to common use he will get at least two where he gets one now? The mine owner will get his profit first, and such a thing might happen as his refusing to divide with the rest of us, and then we would be in a "box." Better have the contract all drawn up and signed, then we will know just how much there is "in it" for all of us.—Bradford Republican.

R. H. STILLSON. Jesse L. Test, Esq., an old resident and highly respected citizen of our town, called this morning and after purchasing a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, said: "If any one asks you if this remedy will do what is claimed for it, tell them yes, and refer them to me." H. Alexander Stokes, Reynoldsville, Pa., says: "I can't doubt the value of this medicine after giving it a fair trial. Then it is pleasant and safe to take, making it especially valuable for children. For sale by G. W. Bovard."

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneous relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrhoea it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. Heath & Killmer.
