The Forest Republican

Is published every Wednesday, by

Office in Smearbaugh & Co.'s Building ELM STREET, TIONESTA, PA. Terms, . $1.00 Per Year.

No subscriptions received for a shorter period than three months.

Correspondence solicite I from all parts of the country. No notice will be taken of anonymous communications.

FOREST REPUBLICAN.

VOL. XXXI. NO. 1. TIONESTA, PA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20, 1898. $1.00 PER ANNUM.

The churches of the United States and Canada are endeavoring to look after the religious interests of miners in the gold-fields of the Klondike and on their way to them.

Professor Bryce has made a bad slip in his book on South Africa. He accuses the Boers of abusing the English by speaking of them usually as "rotten eggs," whereas the Trans. Your forms in the deep water slept;
Yet the thought of your faithfulness never vael phrase is root nek, "red neck," and applies to the British complexion,

A striking admission of the isolated position of England among the Europe an powers, and an indication of the many international problems that press upon the attention of the English people, is to be found in the two declarations that were made recently before Parliament by members of the cabinet, both indicative of the steadily growing pressure which foreign powers are exerting upon British territory.

Baron von Richtkoven says that at the present rate of consumption the world could draw its supplies of coal from southern Shensi alone for over a thousand years; and yet, in the very place referred to, it is not uncommon to find the Chinese storing up wood and millet-stalks for their firing in winter, while coal in untold quantities elies ready for use beneath their feet.

Hubner's Statistical and Geo graphical tables, as a result of the latest investigations, give the population of the world at 1,535,000,000. This is an increase over the figures of 1896 of 23,000,000. To this increase Europe is credited with contributing 5,700,-300; Asia, 6,200,000; Africa, 7,500,000; America, 3,200,000. The United States, with its great growth, estimated by this authority at 2,800,000. and its present population, placed at 72,300,000, represents more than fiftythree per cent, of the entire population of North and South America-a circumstance adduced as highly significant, and occurring in no other part of the earth: The population of Europe was increased to 378,600,000, which is about a quarter of the entire population of the earth.

Speaking of the work of the Red Cross Society in Cuba, the Washington Pathfinder says: "No one denies that the situation of the reconcentrados all over the island is simply appalling. Red Cross headquarters have been established at Cerro, a suburb west of Havana, where forty orphans of reconcentrados are now domiciled Applications have been filed for all the remaining space at headquarters The total of dependents, adults and children, is rapidly increasing, but he condition of those remaining is permanently improved. The municipality of Havana has donated an exsellent warehouse on the harbor, and will furnish a sufficient number of laporers to handle all arriving relief supplies. There is a favorable outook for the prosecution of the Red Pross work within its limited means. Ten thousand dollars remain in Conaul General Lee's hands of the fund provided by Congress for the relief of Americans in Cuba. This sum is desidedly inadequate."

The Louisville Courier-Journal says We have heard a great deal recently about the pride of Spain. We know that the Spaniards are a proud people, or they tell us so themselves on every occasion. But what are they proud of? There is no nation in Europe which is so illiterate as Spain, with the single exception of Italy. Of Spain's entire population sixty-eight per cent can neither read nor write. Says a writer: "Before the age of steam engines and telegraphs, when Europe was semi civilized, Spain was a great nation. She was a strong savage among savages. But this is the age not of cruelty (and how cruel Spain has been and is!). It is the age when amity not enmity rules or is making to rule. For the sake of romance I would not like to see Spain die. She is so full of color, so anomalous, so alone in Enrope, so nobly fierce, so proud among Nations that have almost given up the savage pride we had from the old times! She is like dream glimpses of Haroun-al-Baschid. And yet, with all, there is no more pathetic thing in all the world. We are impressed when we see the death of a man. How much more should we be impressed as we look thoughtfully and attentively at the quick respiration of a dying na- frightened neighbor. "I am only

That is the most charitable view the outside world takes of Spain. She has a few scholars, a few statesmen, a lew gentlemen, but they are a very small leaven in a very large lump, and | physician. the decadent Spain of to-day should be more an object of self-pity than of

MEN OF THE MAINE.

Men of the Maine, O men of the Maine, Flower of the people's life, Valiant your death was, nor suffered in Rose high with the winds and the birds.

Men of the Maine, O men of the Maine,

And our memory's faith shall be kept.

Men of the Maine, O men of the Maine, You are part of the earth and the sky. Grandly you've shown us poor fellows How bravely to live and to die.

> And, men of the Maine, O men of the When our great guns shout aloud, In peace or war, they will thunder again To the world your loyalty proud.

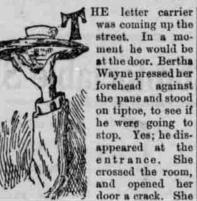

> Men of the Maine, O men of the Maine,

The sound of the sea's deep roar, As it rolls on the coast, in an endless

' Shall chant your fame evermore.

-George P. Lathrop, in New York Times.

000000000000000000 THE WRONG DOOR. Dy WALDO HARKESHEIMER. 0000000000000000000

forehead against ed. he were going to gravely. crossed the room, and opened her door a crack. She could hear his slow, even tread on the stairs. Perhaps he was only going to leave Mrs. Warren's mail, on the floor yet. If I can see you every day, I below. But, no he was coming on- presume I can help you." up the second flight. The girl's heart ly to the window. Rap-tap!

large envelope in the carrier's out- to sympathy, for he said: many hopes.

with the shutting of the door. So it sometimes worth much in this world." had come back-after these weeks of weary suspense! "I did think they go. would take it!" she said to herself, tearing open the envelope. She her pillow. glanced at the printed declination blank, and there was a slight curl of the pretty lips. With an impatient 'If they won't take that, they won't tained. The doctor glanced at it, and take anything-from me!" She gazed tucked it into his vest pocket. stolidly out of the window. For six weeks this story had been her forlorn gan hope. Never had the future looked so with fourteen dollars in her purse, you.

and no visible way of obtaining more -that was he rpresent situation. had been so far-reaching, and for the last twelvemonth the only market she whom she had counted as her best tors. Stories and poems which a cherub appeared to be that of a demon year ago would have brought liberal leering at her despair. When Miss firms that were her debtors collapsed evil face. without warning, and for two months she had not had a single article ac- at the news.

ing! There's that ugly little doctor boyish, with a face that was unde-niably plain. Having fastened his hospital." But Miss Winslow's anhorse, he swung a yellow bag from the swer had been emphatic: vehicle, and passed within a doorway.

her precious pennies on paper and was forced to lie down again. flights of stairs, only to faint at the door of her room. Miss Winslow, the A light knock sounded at the door. found her on the floor.

"It is nothing," Bertha said, trying to reassure both herself and tired. I shall be better in the morning. On attempting to arise, she

Dr. Halberta was of splendid proportions,-tall, erect, broad shouldered. As he stood in the doorway, his strikingly handsome features lighted

HE letter carrier by a smile, his patient was swept by was coming up the thrill of admiration. But at his words her face whitened.

"How -do you-know?" she falterthe pane and stood The doctor had abandoned his stop. Yes; he disappeared at the nonchalantly. "I could tell the mo-entrance. She ment I saw you. But there is no use in being alarmed; that only heightens the danger and retards recovery. "Do you think I can get well, then? she asked eagerly. "Possibly-possibly. I cannot tell

With a sinking heart Bertha saw the arouse the doctor to something akin stretched hand; but she smiled as "You must not allow this to worry brightly and said, "Oh, thank you!" you unduly. It is a hard thing to tell as heartily as if she had not known a patient what I have told you; but I toast with a poached egg for tea. She one night, leaving lots of debts, and that the brown wrapper covered the consider the truth to be best under had added the egg on her own account. story on which she had builded so all circumstances. There is a chance "I didn't know as toast was quite paid for! Strange! when he was such that I may be able to cure you-a

Bertha drew her purse from under

"How much?" "Ten dollars," carelessly. The face on the pillow grew whiter.

"Ah, well, as you please," said the Bertha Wayne's first attempts in you this much; if you have a home it seems as if such a big splendid man doctor. He looked at it, and passed

The sick girl stared at the wall. It but that I'm glad if you haven't got | ning-" editor had his own corps of contribu- Bertha looked at it, the face of the mentally incapable of continuing the A man must be, to tell things by just fight. Now she told herself, "I might looking at you. I've heard that about well give it up first as last!" him before. Isn't he handsome, Thinking her bitter thoughts, she though? But now, don't you go to looked down on the hurrying throngs. worrying! My aunt had heart disease "All with something to do!" she said. fifteen years before it killed her; so "But for me there is nothing-noth- you are not going to die yet."

The little dressmaker was shocked his patient had slept well.

alighting from a carriage. He was be- visits to break the long, monotonous structly true), "but it hasn't come." low the medium height, slender and nightmare. "If I am no better," she

"Indeed, you shall not! It is more "He is a success," muttered Bertha genteel to stay here, and I will take prices." Then he inquired into her jealously. "Only a little while ago care of you. As long as you lie abed was footing it all over town! Now you don't need much but toast and he drives everywhere. Well, he's a tea, and that's easy enough got. Nothman-and smart, I suppose; he is ugly | ing would tempt me inside a hospital,

At last she went to her writing; but toast and tea diet and Dr. Halberta's her mind was distraught, and the medicine. Every day brought instory lagged. It is not easy to build creased suffering. On the fifth morna happy romance when one's heart is ing she became desperate, and attempted to dress; but she was seized Day after day Bertha Wayne wasted with an overpowering weakness, and postage, hoping against hope. Days heart acted strangely, now beating of work and worry were succeeded by violently, now seeming to stop. Perwakeful, weary nights, until nature spiration stood on her face; breathing had her revenge. One evening the was difficult. It seemed to her that don't know whether I can ever pay ent marvelous effects has been steady, girl dragged herself home from the her last hour had come. An awful you." Her eyes filled. post office and crawled up the long numbness was creeping over her. She

The door opened. "Is this where a physician is needed?"

It was "that ugly little doctor?" Bertha was too near unconscious ness to answer; but the young man barely escaped another faint; and Miss did not wait. In a moment he was to heed. Winslow insisted on summoning a holding a stimulant to her lips. His was dving."

his car to her heart. It was slower now, and Bertha lay very still, breathing easily. "It is all right," he said, "a little weak, that's all." The girl stared. Suddenly she found her voice. "Do you mean I haven't any heart disease!" Joy and incredulity were in the tone.

"Certainly," he smiled. Then taking a stethoscope from his bag, he made a thorough examination. "There is not the least organic trouble. Did you think there was?"

In a few minutes the story was told. An odd smile played about the physician's mouth, but he said only: "I am glad you sent for me, if I have relieved your fears.

"Aren't you Mrs. Taylor?"

"Why, no! Mrs. Taylor has the room over this," The young man laughed. "I think I'll go up and see her," he said. "I beg your pardon. I supposed I was attending the right patient." "I'm so glad you came," said

"No one knows what I have suffered for the last four days. Please stev and tell me how I can get well. Dr. Malcolm attended first to Mrs. Taylor. Then he spent another quarter-hour in the room below, asking questions, arranging medicines, and giving directions and advice.

Bertha did not refer to his fee. Only thirty cents remained in her She half hoped, she half feared, that he would not come again. He told her that she had overworked, that her nerves were exhausted, and that she would probably be obliged to keep still for several weeks. There was no doubt of her being well in time. He bade her eat beefsteak twice | tle room in the apartment house. a day. He did not inquire into her household arrangements. She was here again," said Miss Winslow, grateful for the omission. When he establishing herself for a comfortable on the wall paper. The demon had been transformed into a cherub.

Bertha was thankful for the luxury.

He left some medicine, and rose to She did not mention the ordered steak.

"I don't know but what this little doctor is good enough, as far as he thing of her indebtedness to Dr. goes, "Miss Winslow remarked, watch- Malcolm. He had treated the matter ing Bertha eat her egg; "but he's very lightly when she had mentioned dreadful short and spindling. I al- it; but that did not lessen her feeling gesture she tossed the package from With trembling fingers the girl handed ways did like a big man." She sat for of responsibility. She had been home her. "There is no use!" she said. out one of the two bills the purse con- a time in dreamy meditation, evident- but a few days when the doctor came she looked up, "It was so kind of you to bring me this egg," she said; "I

The little dressmaker came back to herself, and resumed:

doctor, somewhat stiffly. "But I tell enough, and you do look brighter; but from her purse, and handed it to the a feller like him. Though I don't say

Bertha smiled. "I'd rather trust

"Well, I don't know! He's awful stylish, and he's got pretty convincing eves! Miss De Peyster says he's checks were now returned to her with Winslow came she found her with the highly connected. But I don't know!"

> 'What did you have for breakfast?" he asked. Bertha blushed. She had not anticipated such direct questioning. But "Toast and coffee."

"Wby didn't you have it?" She looked into his face. grave, but kind.

"Because I could not afford it. For four days Bertha Wayne lay in Halberta carried off most of my Will you?" "I ex-Her eyes rested on a young man despairing, with only Miss Winslow's pect more every day" (which was

> He scowled, and muttered something about "quacks" and "fancy mode of living. "You must have nutritious food. It is imperative. I think I'd better take you over to the hospital this after-

"But-how can I go?" "In my carriage. It is easy." "I-haven't enough to pay my "St. James' Church has established a free bed there, and it is unoccupied just now. The rector is a friend of little dressmaker across the hall, It aroused the sick girl, and she sum- watch. "I will come for you at three," a street with everything in motion, moned all her strength for the needed he said. "There will be plenty of and with all as clear and distinct as time," musingly. He turned to his though actually seen by the unaided patient. "I do not want you to get vision. Among the latest improveup before one o'clock. You will keep ments in this line is one by means of there was no need." The doctor put more, and a knock was followed by the entrance of a young woman with a basket.

"Dr. Malcolm sent me with your dinner," she announced, proceeding to set the dishes upon the table.

Did ever beef tea and steak taste so good! After she had eaten, the woman made her rest a little while while she arranged her clothing and the few articles which she would need to take.

"Doctor said I was to wait and help you," she said, in answer to Bertha's protestations, and she gave such efficient aid that when the sick girl was fully equipped for her little journey, she was not much the worse for the slight exertion. "How good Dr. Malcolm is!"

ventured Bertha. "Good!" echoed the other, "why,

"I didn't send for you." he is just lovely! I don't know where I'd be, if it hadn't been for him—in my grave, maybe. I broke my hip, and was a long time at the hospital. He carried me through that all right, and then got me a place with his aunt. She is a nice lady. I've lived there ever since. But I must go. You'll like it at the hospital, and I hope you'll get well fast,' The doctor was on time.

"You will be back in a little while, better than you have been in a year,' he said, as he steadied her across the Exertion made her conscious of her weakness. She stood trembling while he shut the door and locked it.

"You must not walk," he said, and before she realized his purpose he had her comfortably in his arms and was carrying her down the stairs. It seemed useless to remonstrate, so she only thanked him quietly when he set her on her feet at the street entrance. At the hospital she made fair progress towards health; but it was five weeks before she went back to her lit-

"It does seem so good to have you couldn't set myself about anything Bertha's eyes fastened themselves evenings. Queer, how Dr. Halberta petered out, isn't it? Haven't you heard? Why, he raked in the money Miss Winslow brought her a slice of right and left, and finally cleared out taking ever so many things he hadn't nourishing enough by itself, even if a good-looking man! I think sometimes you can't trust anybody. Seems as if you couldn't." Bertha took up her writing again, and worked as hard as she dared, in hopes of earning enough to pay someto take her for a drive. The fresh air would do her good, he said. They drove into the country, and talked of many things. They had grown to know each other well during these weeks of Bertha's illness, morning she had received a ten-dollar "Yes, I guess Dr. Malcolm's well check for a poem. Now she drew it

The girl flushed. "I know it isn't much," she said; "but it is a begin-"I never did like beginnings," he laughed. "But I must begin to pay you for your care of me-you have done so much, more than can be told in dollars and cents!" "The worst of a physician's life is the dollars-and-cents part," he said. "I wish the doctors were paid by the Government, and I might never have to present another bill to a patient. But I shall let you pay me, if you will. She held the check towards him. "No." gently putting her hand aside, "if you really wish to pay me, there is only way in which you can do

"How?" "Turn about and take care of me.

I have no home; but I shall have one. It will be small and plain, for I am not rich; but I think we can be happy, if you will come and care for me.

Had the wealth of the world been dropped at Bertha's feet she could scarcely have been more dazed. There "How much did that man charge had never been the least hint of the lover in Dr. Malcolm. She sat like one stupefied. "Are you not so anxious to pay me, if it be not in paper or silver?" "Oh, no, no!-I mean -yes!" she stammered, covered with confusion. The doctor lifted his hat to a party of ladies in a smart strap. Then he drew a deep breath. Bertha turned quickly towards him. "I was thinking," said he, "what if I hadn't knocked at the wrong door!"

-The Housewife.

Since the days of the old-fashioned stereopticon, the improvement of promine, and I will arrange it. I am sure jecting and moving pictures has been you will be better at the hospital," he one of the surprising advances of the added, seeing her flushed hesitation. age. From that crude and imperfect "You are very kind, doctor; but I beginning, the evolution of the presand, considering what has "That's all right!" The young man achieved, exceedingly rapid. It is tossed off the words with an impatient now possible to throw upon cauvamotion of the head. He looked at his the most perfect delineations of life-which the operator may introduce "Certainly, if you wish." There other figures into pictures already was the hint of a question in her shown. It is possible to do this with voice; but the doctor did not appear ordinary lantern slides, and change and shift . the picture in such a way that the realistic effect is enhanced, rather than diminished. The

THE MERRY SIDE OF LIFE.

STORIES TOLD BY THE FUNNY MEN

Love's Martyrdom-A Pointed Inquiry-Appropriate-Business With Pleasure -A Living Torture-Time, 2.30 A. M .-Natural-Eastly Ascertained, Etc., Etc.

Of love he sang and gladness-

Appropriate dinner of the Cold Water Society last toasts were dry toasts?"-Puck. He-"Do you know when you get a

"How do you know?" "Why, the man I offer it to refuses to A Pointed Inquiry. Stern Father-"Henry, have you and your new watch parted company

Henry (laconically)-"Broke." Father - "Which?" - Jewelers' Weekly.

Might Have Been Better Expressed. The Widow (weepingly)-"Would

York Journal. Costing Enough. "Do you think that your son's college education will amount to much, figuring. It amounts to about $6000 a year, so far." Business With Pleasure. Zim-"The doctor prescribed a five mile walk for me every day.' Zam-"Of course you enjoy it?" Zim-"Oh, yes. You see, I do the walking around a billiard table."-

A Modern Necessity. "So you're broke," said the indulgent father to the son he had started in business, "but I'll put you on your jection to my paying you visits, Miss | Agent-"That one."-Chicago News. Miss Maud-"Oh, no-but-er-I think that he'd rather you paid them

Attendant-"This patient imagines he is at a comic opera all the time.' Visitor-"You have him pretty well

Willing to Consider. She-"If you were worth the million and I was poor, would you marry sideration. Natural. "Where has Freddy gone

Aunty?" "Gone back to the country, dear." "What for, Aunty?" "Why, his health, dear!"

A Hidden Mine. Mrs. Biggs-"You call a ship 'she,' don't you, Ferdinand?" Biggs-"Yes, love." Mrs. Biggs-"Well, then, why do you call them 'men-of-war?'

Little Oscar had received a train of cars for his birthday, and he insisted on taking them to bed with him. His take the cars to bed with you," she "Why not?" asked Oscar. "These Pinches the Milkman. "Oh, mamma, cried Willie excitedly apon his return from a visit to the country, "I know now where grandpa gets his milk. He just pinches the

"Where do you suppose we get our milk?" asked mamma, mischievously,
"Why," returned Willie, thoughtfully, "I 'spose Bridget just pinches
'he milkman,"—New York Journal.

I was trying to converse with a-er-er-party just now, and all the time she was talking to me I was bothered by a perpetual, monotonous 'chug-chug' sound in my ears."

restaurant disagreed with me. I made

RATES OF ADVERTISING:

One Square, one inch, one insertion. $ 1 00
One cquare, one inch, one month. $ 300
One Square one inch, three months. 5 00
One Square, one inch, one year. 10 00
Two Squares, one year. 15 00
Quarter Column, one year. 50 00
One Column, one year. 10 00
Lecal advertisements ten cents per line each insertion.

Marriages and death notices gratis.

All bills for yearly advertisements collected quarterly Temporary advertisements must be paid in advance.

Job work—cash on delivery.

TO-MORROW'S PINS. Where is the thrill of last night's fear? Where is the stain of last night's tear?
Where is the tooth that ached last year?
Gone where the lest pins go to.
For last night's riddle is all made plain.

For past and present sorrows. But the burdens that make us groan and sweat, The troubles that make us fume and fret Are the things that haven't happened yet, The pins that we'll find to-morrow. -Robert Burdette.

He-"Is she really so curious?" She-"Curious? Why, she'd listen to advice."-Brooklyn Life.

"Two souls with but a single thought," The poem says, nor errs—
His thought is all of her, you see,
And so, likewise, is hers.
—Chicago News.

without my watch." She-"How much do they let you have on it?"-Harlem Life.

Blunt Father-"Well, sir. What does that prove?"-Philadelphia North Girl-"Why?" The Boy-"He has quit giving me money."-Up-to-Date. Helen-"Don't you think my new bonnet is a perfect dream?" Mattie-"It's more than a dream, dear; it's o genuine nightmare."-Chicago News.

"You've voted here once to-day," said the election officer. "Nonsense, an account at the bank without overdrawing it."-Columbus (Ohio) State Journal. "Do you think it is like me," she

ed. "I can almost hear it."-Indianapolis Journal. "This mandolin cost only $10, and it will last your daughter a lifetime." "A lifetime? Gracious! Show me one that will last her about ten days." -Chicago News.

before I could finish."-Puck. Traveler-"Don't you ever get tired answering so many fool questions?" Ticket Agent-"Yes." Traveler-"Which one tires you most?" Ticket try or er citizen is in hahd luck when he ain' got nuffin' much 'ceppin' his pride ter be proud of."-Washington Butters-"Come, you owe me an apology. I hear you said there was nothing in my head." Chesley-"I bune. "Joes is looking all over town for you." "So I understand; but I'm sque," remarked one young woman. "Yes," was the answer. "He strikes attitudes all the time he is awake. All he does is to pose and repose."-Washington Star.

Conclusion: Sportsman (who has bagged nothing and is bargaining for a hare)-"Seven-and-sixpence? That's rather high, isn't it?" Shopkeeper-"Ah, but see what a splendid place it's been hit,"-Pick-Me-Up.

"Really, my dear, you are not blind enough to think that the count has a real love for you?" "It does seem incredible, does it not? But he has offered to let me keep half the dowry for myself."-Cincinnati Enquirer.

Professor-"Too bad! One of my pupils, to whom I have given two courses of instruction in the cultivation of the memory, has forgotten to pay me, and the worst of it is, I can't remember his name!"-Fliegende

Pictures of Leaves in Natural Colors.

One of the most interesting experiments in photography is the photographic reproduction of a green leaf in its natural colors. To do this, take a copper plate, such as is used for process work, and have it silvered. Put it face up in a developing or toning tray, and on it place the green leaf of which a copy is desired. To hold the leaf in position lay over a piece of glass. A spoiled negative not larger than 4x5-unless the leaf is quite large-may be used for this purpose. Turn over the plate a so-Intion of hydriodate of potash containing a few grains of iodide to each ounce of solution. Cover the plate completely, so that it is at least a half inch beneath the surface of the liquid. Set the tray in the bright sunshine and leave it exposed for about half an hour, when, on removing from the tray, a most beautiful photographic impression of the green leaf will be found on the plate. - Harper's Round Table.

OF THE PRESS.

He stood beneath her easement, Knee-deep in snow and ice, And tuned his harp and sang of love With every soft device.

All joys his heart could hold; He thought to catch her fancy, But only caught a cold.

Prohibitionist-"I attended the Friend .- "Yes? I suppose all the bad coin?" She-"Why, certainly, I do."

it be too much trouble to you to ask you to call in the undertaker?" Cholly (sympathetically)—"No indeed, delighted, I assuah you!"—New

Mr. Flashly?" "I've just had my bookkeeper

New York Journal.

feet once more." "On my feet? The first thing I want is a '98 wheel." Time, 2.30 A. M. Admirer-"Has your father any ob-in instalments."-Brooklyn Life. A Living Torture.

tied up. Attendant—"Oh, yes! If he got loose he would kill himself."—Puck.

He-"If you feel like transferring the fortune to me and taking chances.

I will give the matter my serious con-

"Why! Did heleave it behind him?" New York Journal.

Biggs-"Um-because they blown up."-New York Press.

mother protested. "You should not we sleeping cars."

The Cause of the Trouble. "Hello, Central," said young Tiddicum, "what is the matter with the

"Tell the young lady," was the reply, "not to chew her gum so vigorously while she talks to you over the wire. Good-by."-New York Journal.

"Alfred, you are late this evening. What detained you?"
"Something I ate at a downtown a bet with the proprietor that he was using unwholesome chemicals in his cooking, and in order to prove it on him I had to leave my stomach at a chemist's shop nearly all the aftergoon. I won the bet, but I am fearfully hungry. Have you anything good to cat, dear?"-Chicago Tribune.

The sunshine laughs at the long past rain, The tooth that ached has lost its pain— That's what our troubles grow to.

We can stand the smart of yesterday: To-day's worse ills we can drive away; What was and what is bring no dismays

HUMOR OF THE DAY.

Fweddie-"Aw, I couldn't get along

Suitor-"Sir, I love your daughter."

American. The Boy-"I guess sister's beau must be engaged to her at last." The replied the repeater, unabashed; "you see, I'm twins."—Philadelphia Amer-"Parker always exaggerates everything so." "Yes; he can't even start asked as she showed him her latest photograph. "Like you?" he repeat-

Jones-"I started to ask Newlywed whether two could live on what one could, but-" Brown-"But what?" Jones-"But he struck me for a ten "Pride," said Uncle Eben, "am er good t'ing in its place. But er coun-hope you will forgive me. I forgot about the wheels."-Boston Traus-"Our Cousin John, who lives next ... door to us, has gone to the Klondike." 'Weren't you sorry to see him go?" "Not so awfully sorry. He took his six dogs with him."-Chicago Tri-keeping under cover. It must be that I owe him money or that he wants to owe me some."-Philadelphia North "Young Mr. Enjee is quite statu-

He-"The trouble with too many people in this world is that they never stop to think." She-"Yes, but I notice that the most successful people are the ones that don't have to stop to think."-Chicago News.

You perished for peace, not strife. Men of the Maine, O men of the Maine, Sad though your fate beyond words, Still your true souls 'mid the fire and the

"Oh, you have heart disease!" She looked at him appealingly.

on tiptoe, to see if smile, and stood considering her

A few questions followed, which beat violently. He must not find her Bertha answered lamely. Her heart waiting there, and she sped noiseless- beat wildly, and her brain was confused. There was a piteous look in went out, he said, "I'll see you again chat. "I've been so lonesome I her tender blue eyes. It seemed to to-morrow," and shut the door.

The corners of her mouth drooped chance—only that; but a chance is you are abed," she said.

"To-morrow I will see you,"he be "No," she interrupted, "I-cannot | feel better for it already." dark as now. Alone in the world, afford-I shall not be able to pay writing had been fairly successful, you better get to it as quick as you as Dr. Halberta ought to know more it back to her.

That was three years ago. Then had can!" He bowed himself out, shut- about hearts and things than a mite of The girl flush come the financial depression which ting the door with noiseless precision. was covered with a paper showing im- it-if you haven't!" She shook her had found for her literary wares had possible blue and brown flowers in im- head dubiously. been most unsatisfactory. The man possible garlands. One wreath had always seemed to represent a winged Dr. Malcolm and his stethoscope than editorial friend had died, and the new cherub in a smart bonnet. Now, as Dr. Halberta's eyes."

politely-worded circulars. Publishing blanket over her head, to shut out the cepted. It would have required a "I'm dreadful sorry," she said, her stouter heart than hers to have met eyes full of tears; "but perhaps it these days without quailing. For isn't so bad as the doctor thinks. weeks she had felt physically and Though folks do say he's awful smart. | she was honest.

her stuffy little room, exhausted and money," she added, smiling.

enough to be! I am only a girl. and you are not going?"

What's the use of living anyhow!"

But Bertha did not im But Bertha did not improve on the fingers were on her pulse. "There, you feel better?" he said. She smiled faintly, "I thought I picious concerning it. She heard of kineoptoscope accessories, which Bertha gazed at her tenderly. When

Dr. Malcolm did not appear until nearly noon. He was glad to find that "Don't you like beefsteak?" "Yes.

Half an hour later found Bertha still pondering the physician's last order. She had begun to have sus- same lantern will permit of the use footsteps on the stairs, then fragmen- add so much to the success of enter-"Were you frightened? I think tary talk near her door. A moment tainment