Prayers by Telephone.

At a small dinner given recently in a Western city the guest of honor was a young married woman who is the proud mother of two handsome boys, both under five years of age. In their education she endeavors to follow a system, after the manner of most young | beyond thirty. They are taken on as mothers, and is very particular to live up to any rule she has made for them.

During an early course in the din-ner, and in the middle of an animated conversation with her host, she suddenly paused with a startled look and cried:

"There, if I did not forget those boys again! Have you a telephone in e house, and may I use it?"

She was taken to the telephone by her host, and the murmur of her voice in earnest conversation floated back to the dining-room. After a short pause she returned.

"I do hope you will pardon me," she said, "but, you see, I always have George and Eddie say their prayers for me before they go to sleep. I forgot it to-night in the hurry of coming away, so I just called up their nurse. She brought them to the phone, and they said their prayers over the wire, so my mind is relieved." -Chicago Post.

In a deep dish, well buttered, sprinkle a halfinch layer of cracker crumbs; on these place a layer of tomatoes dotted with a teaspoonful of butter in tiny pieces; continue in this fashion until the dish drain the shrimps and cut in two.

Salted Nuts-Put half pound of almonds in a saucepan, cover with boiling water, let it boil three minutes, drain in colander and free the nuts from the skin; this is done by pressing each nut between two fingers, L. W. Camp on oath says that the foregoing statement is true.

Remove, put the almonds in a bowl, sprinkle over one tablespoonful of oil, mix well and serve when cold.

Egg Croquettes-For six croquettes take six eggs, one tablespoon of butter, half a pint of milk, two tablespoons of flour, a tablespoon of chopped parsley, ten drops of onion juice, a teaspoon of salt and a small pinch of pepper. Put the milk in an enameled vessel over the fire, rub the butter and flour together, add them to the milk and boil the whole till a smooth paste has resulted. Chop up the hard-boiled eggs. add the seasoning to them and mix with the milk and flour already boiled. Set aside to cool and harden, and then form into croquette shapes, dip each in egg and bread crumbs and fry in very hot fat. Serve dry with a garnish of lemon rings, or with a tomato sauce.

Stuffed Cabbage-Select a large, perfectly-shaped cabbage, wash it in salt and water, cut off the coarser outer leaves and cut a hole in the centre, but carefully, so that the shape of the vegetable may not be injured. Beil that portion which has been removed, and when tender chop it up with a pound of raw real, the same quantity of bacon, a dessertspoonful of minced parsley, three small sliced onions, a sprig of thyme and the usual seasoning of salt and pepper. Moisten the whole with the beaten yoke of an egg, and paint the inside of the cabbage with the beaten white. Fill in the sperture with the prepared mixture, tie the cabbage firmly in a pudding cloth and boil it till quite tender. Then remove the cloth without breaking the shape of the cabbage and serve as an entree.

When sifting flour for cake it is more convenient to sift it on a large sheet of white paper than into a bowl, especially when sifted several times. It can be quickly gathered up in the paper and turned into the sifter again. When you wish to freshen salt fish, like mackerel, or codfish to be boiled whole, put it in the water with the skin side up. Otherwise the salt, more dense than the water, settles against the skin and it takes longer to freshen.

A teacher of laundry work tells her class that "if in ironing a shirt bosom you find a little dirt, don't stop to wipe it off until the whole shirt is finished. Then it will come off easily. The damp cloth, not wet, is your best friend when doing fine ironing.

Although courtplaster is useful in protecting small scratches or abrasions of the skin from harm, it should not be used over any considerable cut or wound in process of healing. These will heal much faster if simply covered with a bit of soft linen held in place at the ends with strips of surgeon's plaster. An expert housekeeper says rancid butter may be sweetened by putting fifteen drops of chloride of lime to every pint of cold water and working the butter in the water till every particle has come in contact with the lime water, then work it over in pure, cold water. It is much better not to let the butter get rancid. After the egg-beater has been used, if it is put at once into clean, cold water and given a couple of quick turns, then into hot water and again revolved, then shaken free of moisture and put in the warmer for a few minutes, it is very easily made clean. But if the egg is allowed to dry on first, the cleaning is much more difficult. Pork Cutlets-Have the cutlets cut from a good loin of pork, take away all bone from the meat and trim each cutlet neatly; also remove most of the fat, then season the meat with pepper. Place a gridiron over the fire and let it get hot, then put on the cutlets and broil them about fifteen minutes, being careful to turn them several times. When properly cooked, the pork cutlets should look a rich brown, but not burnt and dry. Sprinkle salt over when dishing and pour round a tasty tomato sauce.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson has thrown off the following lines, called forth by a letter which recently appeared in the Liverpool Dally Post, on the subject of a publication in a certain town, who combined in a double-fronted establishment the business of drink seller and funeral undertaking:

We quote briefly from speeches and letters:

True, but we have indicated a fact more to the purpose—that the wicked interests of the world have sown tares while the virtuous people siept; they have been allowed not only to "arrange," but to establish and entreach, in law, the kingdom of the devil, and thus to thwart and defeat the mission of Christ.

The Spirtual Side.

The curse of drunkenness on the side of its physical devastations has been abun-dantly depicted by the advocates of the tem-perance reform. The amount of grain con-sumed in the manufacture of intoxicating liquors; the number of men whose labor is worse than wasted in producing and vendthem; the number of paupers and persons whose woes are traceable to this source; the effects upon the health of in-dividuals—all of these things are frequently set forth with sufficient fulness in im-pressive rhetoric. Some allowances must be made for the overstatements of zealous advocates, but there are facts enough of an appalling nature in these representations to call for the most serious thought. But the worst side of drunkenness is not that which appears in these familiar figures. The most frightful effects of the drink habit The most frightful effects of the drink habit are not those which can be tabulated in statistics and reported in the census. It is not the waste of corn nor the destruction of property, nor the increase of taxes, nor even the ruin of physical health nor the loss of life, which most impresses the mind of the thoughtful observer of inchriety. It is the effect of this vice upon the characters of men as it is exhibited to him day him. ters of men as it is exhibited to him, day by day, in his ordinary intercourse with them. It is in the spiritual realm that the ravages of strong drink are most terrible

The Other Side.

A gentleman said to us, "I do not favor prohibition—it would be an injustice to the men in business; besides, it would hrow thousands out of employment."
We replied, "You do not look at this same from the right side. You take a con-

A lady passenger, clad in weeds of mourning, rose to her feet, and, with tearful voice, said: "Sir I have a brave boy and a husband sleeping the sleep of death in a soldier's cemetery. I have only one boy left, and he is in front of the foe. Oh, God! I wish the cruel war would close

How Rails Are Injured. While on steam roads the tracks are not injured by locomotives running at high speeds, street railway men com-plain that their tracks are torn to pieces by the electric cars. The reason for this is that the plunging and rearing of cars mounted on fourwheeled trucks pound the tracks and loosen the joints. Cars on short-base single trucks often plunge sufficiently to throw practically all the weight on to the front and rear wheels alternatively, and the damaging effect of this can easily be realized.
