INVASION OF CUBA ACCOMPLISHED.

The first United States Troops and Marines landed, and the Stars and Stripes now float over Spanish Forts.

The invasion of Cuba by the American forces is now a fact. Six hundred marines have pitched their tents about the smoking ruins of the outer fortifications of Guantanamo, and the Stars and Stripes for the first time float from the Spanish flag staff in Cuba. To Captain Clark and the battleship Oregon belong the honor of accomplishing the first successful landing of the war. Forty marines from the battleship went ashore Friday morning and occupied the left entrance of the bay until the troop ship Panther arrived with 600 marines.

These, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel R. W. Huntington, arrived at 3 o'clock and within half an hour they had burned the buildings of the Spanish camp and had set fire to the miserable little village which crouched on the beach under the hill top of Guantanamo. The whole operation of silencing the guns and landing the forces was as easy as playing at a Sunday School picnic. The Marblehead, backed by the Vixen and Dolphin, opened fire on the earth works yesterday.

The shores to the right of the entrance were lined with guns and rifle pits, but the Spaniards stampeded after firing a few shots. The city of Guantanamo lies four miles up the bay, and a little Spanish gubboat came down to help the shore batteries. But she stayed just long enough to turn around. Numerous shots were fired by the Spaniards, but not one landed, and no Americans were injured.

The main fort lies within the city limits and is still to be reduced, but it is not in a difficult position and the American officers say it can be taken in 15 minutes when desired. The Marblehead, Dolphin, Vixen and two colliers have been seen off the entrance to the harbor for several days, and yesterday morning they sailed into the channel. A mile farther up they opened fire, sending 50 shots at the fortifications on the left. The hills on the right of the entrance were deserted. There are no defenses on the right side of the harbor.

No attempt to land was made until the Oregon steamed in early Friday morning. Captain Clark immediately sent 40 marines ashore and 20 from the Marblehead followed. They found evidence of a very hasty departure by the Spaniards. Watches, hammocks and ammunition were scattered about the earthworks, and a Spanish flag was found in one of the rifle pits. The little detachment of marines held the place until the Panther arrived, when they were recalled and the work of disembarkation began. The first boatload had scarcely landed when the village burst into flames.

Dispatches from the U. S. camp at Guantanamo under date of the 12th inst., state that the Spaniards last night attacked the camp of the first battalion of Marines under Lieutenant R. W. Huntington, and were repulsed with heavy loss. Four Americans were killed, namely: Surgeon J. B. Gibbs, of New York City; Sergeant Smith, of Company D; Private McCallagan, of Company D; Private Dunnehy, Company D. The wounded were: Private McGowan, of Company D, hand shattered, and the pilot on the United States cruiser Marblehead, shot through the leg.

The firing began after midnight and lasted until daybreak. At times there was a heavy fusillade on both sides.

Lieutenant Neville and Shaw, of Company D, with 30 men, were on picket duty all night and were attacked by a heavy force of Spaniards.

The pickets held the Spaniards off until released this morning.

Reinforcements were landed from the Texas and Marblehead this morning. They consisted of 60 men and two rapid-fire guns. The men are suffering greatly from heat and thirst, but they are all behaving splendidly in and out of fire.

After McCallagan and Dunnehy were killed their heads were shockingly mutilated with machetes.

Late this morning the Spaniards opened fire from two guns placed on the west side of the harbor. The shots flew wild. The Texas, Yankee and torpedo boat Porter, which were lying in the harbor, opened fire and in a short time silenced the Spanish guns. The latter fired only once after the ships opened fire on them. There were no casualties on the American side.

When the Associated Press dispatch boat Dauntless left Guantanamo bay early this morning after 13 hours' skirmish between the United States marines, under Lieutenant Colonel Huntington, and the Spanish guerrillas and regulars, it was expected the fighting would be renewed. The Marblehead was landing reinforcements and nothing had been heard from the advance pickets under Lieutenant Wendell C. Neville and Lieutenant Melville J. Shaw.

At 9 o'clock the firing was again resumed by the Spaniards, who appeared off the camp on the edge of a small island about a mile to the northeast. It was promptly returned by thirteen rifles and a 3-inch field gun, and in a short time all signs of the enemy had disappeared.

To the great delight of marines in camp, Lieutenants Neville and Shaw, with 30 men of company D, returned in good shape, but much exhausted by 18 hours of picket duty. One man, Sergt Smith, of Company K, had been shot through the abdomen and instantly killed. For most of the day and night Lieutenants Neville and Shaw had been surrounded by a much superior force, but men and officers behaved splendidly, and although the firing of the Spaniards was constant and heavy, Lieutenant Neville's detachment held its own, inflicting much more damage than it sustained. It is believed the Spanish casualties were heavy.

The battleship Texas arrived this morning and sent ashore 40 marines and two automatic Colt guns as reinforcements. The Marblehead also sent an additional small detachment.

Private Bartholomew McGowan, of Company D, will lose his hand, which was shattered by a bullet. Amputation will be necessary. The Marblehead's pilot, who was shot through the leg while guiding the cruiser out of the harbor this morning, holds the rank of colonel in the Cuban service.

MONTEJO's fleet was destroyed in May, and if Cervera's meets a similar fate in June, what is slow about the war?

THE double-turret monitor Monadnock will make a long run from San Francisco to Manila, but she once two colliers have been seen off the entrance to the harbor for several days, and yesterday morning they sailed into the channel. A mile farther up they opened fire, sending 50 shots at the fortifications on the left. The hills on the right of the entrance were deserted. There are no defenses on the right side of the harbor.

Our ability to land troops anywhere on the coast of Cuba and to assist them securely is an advantage that will grow with use. When the Spaniards are hived in one place some other will be open to attack.

It was at Santiago that the Americans captured on the Virginis were executed under a Spanish decree. But for Spain's promises of reform President Grant would have exacted vengeance at that time. The Spanish pledges were violated, and retribution is at hand.

THE urgent necessity for the Americans to capture Porto Rico at the earliest possible moment is seen on all hands. The Pall Mall Gazette, of London, says "the seizure of Porto Rico and the Philippines will place America in a position to dictate the only terms she could possibly accept."

Carranza, Spain's late naval attaché in the United States, in writing to the Minister of Marine from Montreal, said he was afraid lest the Americans should seize Porto Rico before attacking Havana. We ought to have Porto Rico in our hands before we finish the conquest of Cuba. We can demand it as indemnity of course, but matters would be simplified much if we should have the island in our possession, or even have its principal port, before Spain's collapse comes. It is easier and cheaper for us to seize Porto Rico now than it will be in some future war.

S. C. P. Jones, Milesburg, Pa., writes: "I have used DeWitt's Little Early Riser ever since they were introduced here and must say I have never used any pills in my family during forty years of home keeping that gave such satisfactory results as a laxative or cathartic." Heath & Killmer.

A Hearty American Injurement.

The announcement that a new commercial convention has been negotiated with France is a welcome one. It shows that, busy as we are with Spain, we yet have time for other things, and that we are proceeding upon the confident calculation that the conclusion of the war will still find us in ship-shape for all the essential affairs of every day life. It puts a quietus on talk about foreign intervention, and confirms all previous assertions that, in the matter of hostilities, we are dealing with Spain alone.

The principle of reciprocity has a hearty American indorsement. It is the American plan, indeed, for the judicious enlargement of trade boundaries. Absolute Free-Trade has never had more than a handful of sincere advocates in the United States, but freer trade has for some years been not only a demand, but a necessity. The growth of the country in the matter both of production and consumption has demonstrated that if we are to keep up with the procession and, particularly, take and hold the place in the procession to which we are entitled, we must establish good commercial relations with the outside world.

The duty to ourselves is plainer now than ever. This war with Spain has shown us our place among the nations. Our movements are considered of world-wide importance. The bare suggestion of permanent American control of the Philippines forces a re-cast of the whole Eastern problem, with the United States reckoned as one of the foremost factors in the new commercial equation. But, leaving out the question of increased territory, the question of increased trade still remains. Consumers of the latest products are rapidly multiplying. The United States has a great deal to offer, and at the same time is seeking much. It will continue to hold the home market for the home products, but that will not interfere with opening them to many things upon terms which will induce other nations to come here to sell and increase importations very considerably.

This convention with France is the first under the Dingley law, but others are to follow, and probably here another year has rolled around reciprocity will again be, as it was under the McKinley law, a source of profit and advantage to the country in many directions.—Washington Star.

G. A. R. Encampment at Oil City.

The annual encampment of The G. A. R., Dept. of Pa., at Oil City was attended by an immense crowd of people—veterans, ladies of the W. R. C. and civilians—and the meeting was a decided success.

Heavy Damage Claims Threatened.

If the claims for damage now threatened against this Boro should by law or chance be pushed to a successful conclusion for the claimant, our people will be required to go down deep into the pocket to satisfy the demand. And if these claims shall be fairly established by law, against the Boro, those in authority must admit having been grossly negligent.

George B. Luper of Harrisburg, in behalf of his sister, Mrs. J. A. Hume, in a communication to the Boro authorities set forth a claim in the amount of $10,000 and expressed a desire for an amicable settlement without resort to law. This claim the council absolutely ignored and Mr. Luper has announced his intention of bringing suit. Mrs. Hume was injured last winter by the upsetting of a cutter in which she was riding. She was thrown against a rail of the Traction Co's line and sustaining injuries to her left limb from which she has not recovered, and is possibly crippled for life.

Another claim comes from Mrs. Robert Harper, whose husband appeared before the council at their regular meeting in April, and presented claims for damage in the sum of $2,000. About three months ago Mrs. Harper fell upon the sidewalk on Third St., near the junction of Main, breaking her leg. She claims that her fall and injuries were due to a defective sidewalk. We are informed a committee was appointed by the council to investigate the claim of Mrs. Harper.—Pleasantville Record.

In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Chamberlain's Pain Balm, at this time my feet and limbs were swollen to more than double their normal size, and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured.
