An inventive genius who suffered from attacks by stray dogs when riding his wheel, set his wits to work to devise something which would be an efficacious, and yet comparatively harmless, means of defense. As a result he has brought out and patented a pocket pistol which will shoot ammonia, water or other liquid. The most vicious dog cannot withstand a few drops of ammonia in his mouth or eyes, and vet there is no danger of actually injuring a valuable animal which might playfully annoy a rider. The weapon has proved so much of a success as a defense as well as fun-mak ing, that the lucky inventor is realizing much money from his device.

Turning Horses Out to Grass

Horses are exceedingly fond of grass. Yet no horseman who has experienced the evil of changing horses from old hay to new, even when the latter was thoroughly cured, will think of giving fresh grass to horses that are hard at work. It is so succulent and innutritious that it inevitably throws working horses into a diarrhoea, and incapacitates them for hard labor of any kind. So soon as a horse is set to ter how well he may be fed. As for farm horses, they should be allowed no grass at all when they are working. If their feed is too constipating, give them a bran mash on Sunday, when they have nothing to do. Put some linseed meal into it. This is far more strengthening than grass, and it will keep their bowels open without provoking a strengthexhausting diarrhoea, as grass will surely do. - American Cultivator.

Growing Squashes.

The squash is a heavy feeder and must have an abundance of fertilizer to do well. Applying good, fine, well rotted barnyard manure is the best method of furnishing plant food. At the outset do not think of saving manure. If you can possibly get it, apply not less than ten cords to the acre. Put the bulk of it on broadcast, plowing it in, reserving only one good shovelful to place in each hill. Let the hills be made ten feet apart each way. It is important to allow plenty of room, as crowding means an excess of vines and a loss of fruit. Plant not fewer than ten seeds per hill, as it is necessary to allow for some losses from depredations of bugs. Of course not over three or four good strong plants are to be left in each hill.

The squash is badly troubled by at

The Army and Alcohol.

Captain R. G. Dr. Woodson has re-cently been acting assistant quartermaster, and will be in charge of the ambuiance train of the Fifth Army Corps of the army of invasion. In his report, Dr. Woodson has this to say about the use of alcohol in an army campaign in the tropics;
"Yellow fever is certainly the greatest

"Yellow fever is certainly the greatest danger that confronts us. It is to be remembered that the mortality of this affection among the troops from Northern elimates, who possess absolutely no contra-immunity, will be exceedingly greater should the disease gain access to our midst. Yellow fever, being a disease which attacks essentially the liver and kidneys, will prove particularly fatal to those whose habits of life have reduced the vital resistance of these organs. Especially is this axiom these organs. Especially is this axiom applicable to soldiers with cirrhotic livers and kidneys from alcoholic excesses, and those with lithemia from over-induigence in highly nitrogenous foods. The term lithemia is intended to define that condition of men ordinarily spoken of as 'thil habit'. 'full habit.'

A Victim of "Whiskey Biscuits." An eight-year-old schoolboy who was caken to Believue Hospital last week to be examined as to his sanity and who was sufexamined as to his sanity and who was suf-fering from neurasthenia, according to the diagnosis, was a victim of what his mother called "whiskey biscuits," which are sold on the siy in some cast side bakeshops. The boy's mother described a whiskey biscuit as a composition of cake, jelly, and alcohol, and she said that the boy had bad dreams during the night after eating it. A man whose work for several years has compatibat whose work for several years has compelled him to spend most of his time on the lower east side, said yesterday that he had heard of whiskey biscuits, but that he had never

I don't believe that the practice of selling alcoholic candies and cakes to children is very general because a portral dren is very general, because a normal child does not care for such things. It is an acquired, but very rarely an inherited, an acquired, but very rarely an inherited, taste. The selling of brandy drops was discouraged a few months ago, when several of the sellers were arrested. The "whiskey biscuit" is the successor of the brandy drop, and if alcohol is used instead of brandy, I don't wonder that its effects are deadly."—New York Sun.

Treachery of the Saloon.

In the city of Minneapolis some years ago a young man of high standing and excellent abilities was trapped and ensnared by the saloon. His life was wrecked and dishonored. That accursed institution in the histories of those years was a those years was a those years was the control of the co years. The blackness of those years was due to the saloon, was caused by the sa-loon, would not have been without the sa-loon. The day came when, by the grace of God, that man broke the shackles of his God, that man broke the shackles of his slavery, came out of the saloon's prison house, and for ten years has lived a free man, has won for himself honor and the respect of his fellow men, a clear head, a clean heart, and a happy home. And these things have been it spite of the saloon, and constantly opposed by that damnable institution. And now, when the friends of that man propose to do him honor for the service that he has wrought for his fellow men in these ten years, saloon fellow men in these ten years, saloon organs are busy repeating the story of the dishonor of those years for which the saloon was responsible. It makes very little difference what the liquor papers say, for very few people outside of the "trade" read them, but their utterances are an exhibition of the spirit of that institution that has in it not one redeeming feature or characteristic—the American feature or characteristic—the American feature or characteristic - the American saloon. - The Voice.

What Temperance Brings.

We love to see young men with a noble carriage, and with blooming health. We cannot bear to see young men, that have every reason for building up a noble manhood, walking with a discolored face and an unwholesome skin, which are signs of intemperance. Perhaps there is nothing more disreputable than for a young man to present himself a miscrable wreck of what he might have been, and a burden to the state and to the age in which he lives; and perhaps there is nothing more creditable to a young man than to present himself What Temperance Brings. ble to a young man than to present himself to the state and to the age in which he lives a monument of health and vigor and true manliness. The Snake Hunter of Snaggy Mountain From the far purlieus of Snaggy Mountain, above where the pellucid waters of Sang Bun pour their cur rents down the pine-clad crests of the Alleghanies, "Si" Summers, the ven erable snake hunter of the Virginia mountains, has been heard from and reports that he has not killed a snake this season. That this will be bad news for the friends of "Si" will be better understood when it is known that the killing of snakes is the crown ing labor of "Si's" existence. He would "sooner kill a snake than figh: Spaniards," not meaning any reflec-tion on his loyalty, either. He is making money out of the rattlesnake business by extracting the oil from them and selling it as an infallible remedy for the rheumatism. He also sells the skins for belts, and "nobby neckwear," and, altogether, "Si" is ar institution that Snaggy Mountair would do well to supply with snakes at all sessons for fear that he will go entirely out of the business. It is not stated that "Si" is the originator of the only bona fide American snake story, but he comes pretty near furnishing the subject for the championship snake story himself.-Baltimore

A Naval Hero's Story.

From the Times-Herald, Chicago, RI. Late in 1861, when President Lincoln is sued a call for volunteers, L. J. Clark, of Warren, Trumbull Co., Ohio, was among the first to respond. He joined the mortar fleet of Admiral Porter just before the memorable operations on the Mississippi River began. It was at the terrific bombardment of the Vicksburg forts, that the hero of this story fell with a shattered arm from a charge of schrapnel.

After painful months in the hospital, he recovered sufficiently to be sent to his home at Warren, Ohio. Another call for troops fired his patriotic zeal and Clark soon enlisted in Company H, of the 7th Ohio Vol-unteers. In the army of the Potomac, he was in many engagements. Being wounded in a skirmish near Richmond, he was sent to the hospital and thence home.
