True Greatness In Medicine

Is proved by the health of the people who have taken it. More people have been made well, more cases of disease and sickness have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by any other medicine in the world. The peculiar combination, proportion and process in its preparation make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar to itself and unequalled by any other.

Father Leaves Him $60,000.

Thomas Palmer, of Priceburg, a small mining town, near Carbondale, Penn., inherits $60,000 by the death of his father, in Canada, a year ago. The father came to America many years ago and settled in Canada. His family in England never heard from him, and it was generally believed that he was dead. His son came to Pennsylvania a few years ago and settled in Priceburg. Several months ago, in a casual talk with an acquaintance who had traveled in Canada, he learned that a man who he had reason to believe was his father lived in a small town near Toronto. Last summer young Palmer went to this town, and, while walking in front of the mansion where he was told his father lived, he met an old man who, seeing Palmer look closely about the place, inquired his business. It was soon told, and then there was a joyful meeting.—New York Press.

STORIES OF RELIEF.

Two Letters to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. JOHN WILLIAMS, Englishtown, N. J., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot begin to tell you how I suffered before taking your remedies. I was so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without falling. I had womb trouble and such a bearing-down feeling; also suffered with my back and limbs, pain in womb, inflammation of the bladder, piles and indigestion. Before I had taken one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt a great deal better, and after taking two and one-half bottles and half a box of your Liver Pills I was cured. If more would take your medicine they would not have to suffer so much."

Mrs. JOSEPH PETERSON, 513 East St., Warren, Pa., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb. I had the backache constantly, also headache, and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

"I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me."

HORTICULTURE

The Amateur's Orchard.

Everyone likes good fruit, and but few gardens, however small, are thought complete without it. But notwithstanding the appreciation for good fruit, it is seldom found perfect in small gardens or orchards. The fault lies in too much dependence on the trees, or rather a lack of interest in cultural methods. Trees are planted out in perhaps the most careful manner, after which they are expected to care for themselves and produce good fruit abundantly. They fact is, they need continual attention just as much as we do. This need not develop into a burden if regularly and properly attended to.

Now, one of the most important conditions to insure thrift is a soil mellow and cool in hot and dry weather, yet how frequently may trees be seen growing in sod or together with some crop that does not require cultivation. Such trees quickly outlive their usefulness, and their stunted branches can only produce undersized and immature fruit.

Then old trees are expected to live on a small allowance of food. It is forgotten that the roots of a tree have to get their food from nearly the same soil year after year, and in the case of sod land, even this food must be divided.

To have good fruit, health and vigor must be encouraged—not rank growth, which might be induced by overfeeding, for this is opposed to fruit bearing.

For most moderate-sized orchards or gardens it would be desirable to commence cultivating by plowing between the rows in late fall; but in light soils summer harrowing is sufficient. Judgment must be exercised as to the extent of cultivation, depending on the condition of the trees. Experience must teach how far from the tree trunk the roots extend, for care must be taken not to disturb them during the summer or feeding time.

Good stable manure may be spread on the surface of the soil after the latter is frozen, provided the ground is comparatively level so the fertilizing constituents may not be washed away. As the feeding roots are principally on the outside, the manure need not be spread at the base of large trees, but in a circle several feet therefrom. Another, but more laborious method, is to dig shallow trenches running towards the base of the tree, and fill in well-rotted or composted manure.

Root pruning, to make too vigorous trees more productive, and top pruning to thin out old wood, letting light and air amongst the branches, are also good subjects for the amateur to look into.—American Cultivator.

Spraying the Currant.

The varieties of the red and white currant, Ribes rubrum, usually shed their leaves very early—often before the end of summer. This early dropping of the leaves has not been recognized by all as the result of disease, and currant bushes often fruit well in spite of it. Some years ago the experiment was made at our station of spraying currant bushes with the Bordeaux mixture and ammoniacal copper carbonate solution in early spring, and the applications were repeated at intervals until June 1. The result showed that the sprayed bushes retained their foliage considerably longer than those not sprayed, but the fruit was so badly soiled that the treatment was not considered practicable and so it was abandoned.

The last season the experiment was made of a single spraying with Bordeaux mixture after the harvesting of the fruit, and the result was striking.

The early dropping of the leaves of the red and white currant is due to an attack of a fungus, Septoria ribes, and our experiment the last season seems to show that this disease may be very largely prevented by spraying the bushes after the fruit is harvested. The premature dropping of the leaves reduces the vigor of the plant, and doubtless tends to the production of inferior fruit.—E. S. Goff, in Country Gentleman.

Renewing Old Seed.

Very interesting experiments are being conducted at the Amherst (Mass.) station in bringing to life seeds which are too old to sprout well. It is hoped that tests will eventually lead to results of great commercial value. Nothing has been published on the matter as yet, and the following is the result of an interview with Messrs. Stone and Sharp:

Old seeds have been treated with a two per cent. solution of asparagin, a vegetable extract obtained from German chemists, and the result has been to increase the germinating power greatly. Seed which before treatment showed only fifty per cent. of germination with one-half worthless, after treatment showed ninety-eight per cent. of germination and only two per cent. which failed to sprout. Since asparagin at present costs $1.50 per ounce, the method is not profitable for ordinary seeds. But seeds of new varieties and certain flower seeds which are actually quoted at more than their weight in gold might be treated this way with profit. Experimenters are in hopes of finding a cheaper way of making this article for treating the seeds.—New England Homestead.

New Paperhanging Machine.

A German inventor with the ingenuity of a Yankee has invented a paperhanging machine. It consists of a rod, upon which the roll of paper is placed, and a paste receptacle with a brushing convenience is attached in such a manner that the paste is applied automatically on the back of the paper. The end of the wall paper is fixed at the bottom of the wall, and the implement rises on the wall in such a manner as only to require that it be set by one workman.

The paper, as it unrolls, is held flat against the wall and an elastic roller follows on the outside, which presses it firmly and with exact smoothness to the wall. The final operation is when the wall paper reaches the top, the workman now pulling a cord, whereby the paper is cut off from the roll.

THE DRINK EVIL MADE MANIFEST IN MANY WAYS.

The Two Paths—Most of the Diseases Treated in the Hospitals Arise From Alcoholic Drinks—Children of Topers Are Often Deformed and Idiotic.

There were once two little boys,
Long, long ago!
Leaving home and all its joys,
Long, long ago!
They had heard the people say,
"While the sun shines make your hay;"
So to work they trudged away,
Long, long ago!

They worked on for many a year,
Long, long ago!
Full of courage, full of cheer,
Long, long ago!
But one merry New Year's day,
At a party bright and gay,
Both were tempted, sad to say,
Long, long ago!

One resisted, doing well,
Long, long ago!
While the other drank and fell,
Long, long ago!
He who drank the poison wine,
Heeding not the voice divine,
Died a drunkard (fearful sign),
Long, long ago!

He who shunned the tempting wine,
Long, long ago!
Listening to the voice divine,
Long, long ago!
Full of honor lives to-day,
Teaching men the better way
That he chose when young and gay.

The Dangers of Alcohol.

At the last meeting of the Paris Hospitals Medical Society, M. Legendre, alarmed by the ever-increasing amount of drunkenness, asked if it would not be possible to withstand this by means of meetings, insistence on the dangers of alcohol, and by what he considered an even better method, that is, getting up for the instruction of patients lantern shows with exhibitions of anatomic preparations to show the dangers of alcohol. M. Legendre has had printed for the use of all his patients a little leaflet, the text of which runs as follows:

"Most of the diseases treated in the hospitals arise from alcoholic drinks—that is to say, they are either caused or aggravated by the abuse of alcohol. All alcoholic drinks are dangerous, and the most harmful are those which contain aromatics in addition to alcohol—as, for instance, absinthe and the so-called aperients, called aniers.

"Alcoholic drinks are more dangerous when taken on an empty stomach or between meals. A man necessarily becomes an alcoholic—i. e., slowly poisoned by alcohol—even if he never gets drunk, when every day he drinks alcohol in the form of liqueur or too much wine, more than one litre per diem.

"Alcohol is a poison the habitual use of which destroys more or less quickly, but none the less certainly, all the organs most necessary to life—the stomach, the liver, the kidneys, the blood vessels, the heart and the brain. Alcohol excites man, but does not strengthen him. It is no substitute for food, but takes away the taste for it. Those who often drink alcohol or too much wine (more than one litre a day) are much more liable to illness, and when ill are much worse, for the disease is often complicated with fatal delirium.

"Alcohol is a frequent cause of consumption by its power of weakening the lungs. Every year we see patients who attend the hospitals for alcoholism come back some months later suffering from consumption. Fathers and mothers who drink often have children who are deformed or idiots or who die from fits."

The Best Cure.

Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage said in a recent sermon:

"A celebrated doctor of France has recently discovered something which all drinkers ought to know. He has found out that alcohol in every shape, whether of wine or brandy or beer, contains parasitic life, called bacillus potumanæ. By a powerful microscope these living things are discovered, and when you take strong drink you take them into the stomach, and then into your blood, and getting into the crimson coals of life they go into every tissue of your body, and your entire organism is taken possession of by these noxious infinitesimals. When in delirium tremens a man sees every form of reptilian life, it is only these parasites of the brain in exaggerated size. It is not a hallucination that the victim is suffering from. He only sees in the room what is actually crawling and rioting in his own brain. Every time you take strong drink you swallow these maggots, and every time the imbiber of alcohol in any shape feels vertigo or rheumatism or nausea, it is only the jubilee of these maggots. Efforts are being made for the discovery of some germicide that can kill the parasites of alcoholism, but the only thing that will ever extirpate them is abstinence, to which I would before God swear all young men and old."

Treatment of Inebriates in Germany.

The sixth paragraph of the new code, which will come into operation in Germany in 1900, enacts compulsory treatment of habitual drunkards, involving their being placed under a curator, who will be empowered to put the individual anywhere for treatment until discharged from curatorship by the court. The exact description is: "He who, in consequence of inebriety, cannot provide for his affairs, or brings himself or his family into the danger of need or endangers the safety of others." This measure was first advocated in 1863 at a meeting at Hanover.

A Drunkard's Will.

A dying drunkard in Oswego, New York, left the following as his "last will and testament:" "I leave to society a ruined character, a wretched example and a memory that will soon rot. I leave to my parents as much sorrow as they can, in their feeble state, bear. I leave to my brothers and sisters as much shame and mortification as I can bring on them. I leave to my wife a broken heart and a life of shame. I leave to each of my children poverty, ignorance, a low character and a remembrance that their father filled a drunkard's grave."

The Saloon-Keeper's Profit.

If a bushel of corn is worth fifty cents, when made into whisky it makes four gallons which, sold over the bar, brings $24. The Government gets $4.40 of this, the railroads forty cents, the distiller $4, and the saloon-keeper all that remains but the fifty cents the farmer got when he sold the corn. This is not the only transaction in which the price received by the farmer and that paid by the consumer is a long way apart, but there is no other transaction that can result in less good to the country, and no worse use that corn can be put to.

Paragraphs About the Crusade.

The bright lights of the saloon are stolen from human eyes.

Consecration and concentration are much needed in the anti-liquor fight.

At the beginning of 1899 there were 1000 fewer licensed saloons in Chicago than in January, 1898.

A St. Louis Grand Jury reports that seventy-five per cent. of all crimes are committed by intoxicated persons.

One of the Parisian religious papers, when pleading for temperance, gives no stronger warning than simply that alcohol is bad for children "under the age of six."

A saloonkeeper discharged a clerk for getting drunk. A distiller advertised for two teetotalers to run his still. A drunkard is at a discount with all people. Even the devil wants a more respectable man than a drunkard to work for him.

A unique will, just probated in Washington, Pennsylvania, is that of Jerome Plummer. His entire estate, valued at $75,000, after the death of his wife, is to be sold and the income used exclusively for the cause of temperance in Washington County.

Full-Grown Caribou.

Full-grown caribou not only differ widely in weight, varying from 200 to 400 pounds, but also in general appearance. The prevailing color of the animal when he has donned his winter coat is a dark fawn inclining to gray and fading to almost pure white on the neck and under parts of the body. Before the snow falls an educated eye is required to distinguish his form on the sombre gray of the barrens. Occasionally what are known as "red bulls" are seen, animals of a dull yellowish color and very large in size, distinguished by spindling horns. Some caribou, especially young cows, are almost as graceful as the deer, while others resemble an overgrown goat. They possess a variety of facial expression bordering on the grotesque, some exhibiting a muzzle arched like that of a Percheron horse, others a square, massive nose like that of the domestic cow, and others resembling the comely countenance of the Virginia deer.

A Very Good Bid.

It was at an auction room. The place was crowded, and the collection of furniture, art and bric-a-brac being unusually choice, the bidding had been very spirited. During an interval of the sale, a man with a pale and agitated countenance pushed his way to the auctioneer's side and engaged him in a whispered conversation.

Presently he stood aside, and the auctioneer rapped attention with his little hammer.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, in a loud voice, "I have to inform you that a gentleman present has lost his pocketbook containing $1000. He offers $250 for its return."

Instantly a small man in the background sprang upon a chair, and cried excitedly, "I'll give you $500."

A Queer Way of Striking.

The village bells of Potzbach, Germany, have not been ringing since New Year's Day, and the people have awakened to the fact that the man—a teacher—who has done the work hitherto has been paid only $2.64 a year and has struck for higher wages. The people of the town are troubled, for they have discovered that the bell rope hangs in the teacher's bed chamber and that he will not allow anybody to disturb his early snooze by entering and pulling the rope. It is said that the man for the last year has been in the habit of ringing the bell while lying in bed in the morning.

Would Not Eat the Spaniards.

Says the Worcester (Mass.) Gazette: "They tell a story of Major Whipple's experience in the physical examination at South Framingham, a rigorous test, as many have cause to remember. One of the examiners was looking at the Major's teeth, and made some doubtful remark about them. The examiners were very particular about teeth, and when the men began on Government rations they could see some reason for this. 'Why, hang it,' said the Major, angrily, 'I'm going down there to shoot the Spaniards I don't propose to eat them.'"

Good Blood!

Your heart beats over one hundred thousand times each day. One hundred thousand supplies of good or bad blood to your brain.

Which is it?

If bad, impure blood, then your brain aches. You are troubled with drowsiness yet cannot sleep. You are as tired in the morning as at night. You have no nerve power. Your food does you but little good.

Stimulants, tonics, headache powders, cannot cure you; but will. It makes the liver, kidneys, skin and bowels perform their proper work. It removes all impurities from the blood. And it makes the blood rich in its life-giving properties.

To Hasten Recovery.

You will be more rapidly cured if you will take a laxative dose of Ayer's pills each night. They arouse the sluggish liver and thus cure biliousness.

her purse, relates a writer in Tit-Bits. At one of the stops there came into the 'bus a man who sat down beside her. She thought of her well-filled purse, and resolved to watch him closely.

Suddenly her suspicious neighbor put his hand down at his side. She felt it slide down until it touched her purse, and instantly she put out her own hand and seized the stranger by the wrist. He did not struggle, however, and she was in some perplexity as to what she should do next; but she thought that if he should attempt to get away she could at least show that she had him by the wrist with his hand in her pocket.

She said afterward that she could not tell why she did not give an alarm at once, but she sat quiet, waiting for her neighbor to make the first move.

They rode on in this way for some distance, when to her amazement the stranger prepared to rise.

"If you will let go of my arm, Madam," he said, with the utmost coolness, "I will get out here."

He half rose as he spoke, and, to her utter confusion, the lady discovered that his hand, instead of being in her pocket, was thrust into the pocket of his own ulster. The garment hung down so far that his hand had pressed against the purse without being in contact with it, and she had been holding him by the wrist with no excuse whatever.

She was overcome with confusion, but managed to say that she had thought his hand to be in her pocket. The stranger smiled and went out, while a gentleman near by leaned forward to say:

"Don't you know who that is, Madam? That is the Rev. Dr. Blank."

The name was that of one of the best-known clergymen in London.

The Greeks and Romans.

The ancient Greeks lived almost their entire lives out of doors. Their artificial environment, their houses, their dress and their food was not such that it required the major part of their energy to secure it. Thus leisure was afforded for the cultivation for the intellect and the Greeks, largely through the conditions of their climate, became the teachers of the world. Before them the Egyptians, in the valley of the Nile, under soft skies and in the mild climate of that favored region, were the creators and preservers of intellectual riches that have descended to our own times. The Romans, in Southern Europe, had reached a high state and civic and intellectual development while the tribles of Northern Europe, who had not learned how to so build and warm their houses as to practically modify climatic conditions, were shivering amid their snows, fierce savages bearing with in their own wild breasts something of the cruelty that nature showed them in their long cold winters.

"Sine Died."

Not long since the notice "Court adjourned sine die" was posted on the door of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. Some gentleman with an artistic and highly trained sense of humor added a "d" to the word "die," and went on his way rejoicing. Next day a person who makes a practice of haunting the public buildings in Brooklyn and professes acquaintance with every well-known man in the vicinity dropped into the clerk's office.

"See here," he said, "when did Sine pass in his checks?"

"What's that?" demanded the astonished clerk.

"When did Sine die? I see the courts are closed on account of it."

"Oh," said the clerk, pulling himself together, "he died yesterday. Did you know him?"

"Know him? I should say I did. Knew his father before him. Too bad, ain't it?"

And Sine's bereaved friend passed out with his burden of sorrow.—Law Notes.

THE CREAMERY.

Butter must be sweet and clean. That is the first requisite. It can not be perfectly sweet unless the place in which it is made and all the utensils used in its manufacture are perfectly clean.

The old rule was: "Do not use soap to clean the churn"—this referred to sticky rosin soaps.

Ivory Soap can be used freely; it is the best for creameries or dairies, because it rinses easily and leaves neither odor nor taste.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made, and its purity, fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe and unsatisfactory.

LIVER ILLS.

DR. RADWAY & Co., New York:

Dear Sirs—I have been sick for nearly two years, and have been doctoring with some of the most expert doctors of the United States. I have been bathing in and drinking hot water at the Hot Springs, Ark., but it seemed everything failed to do me good. After I saw your advertisement I thought I would try your pills, and have nearly used two boxes; been taking two at bedtime and one after breakfast, and they have done me more good than anything else I have used. My trouble has been with the liver. My skin and eyes were all yellow; I had sleepy, drowsy feelings; felt like a drunken man; pain right above the navel, like as if it was bile on top of the stomach. My bowels were very costive. My mouth and tongue sore most of the time. Appetite fair, but food would not digest, but settle heavy on my stomach, and some few mouthfuls of food come up again. I could only eat light food that digests easily. Please send "Book of Advice." Respectfully, BEN ZAUGG,
Hot Springs, Ark.
