Quay Scoops Them All.

Republican primary elections were held in Lancaster, Montour and Butler counties last Saturday, the main contention being on delegates to the State Convention, the opponents of Senator Quay putting forth their most prodigious efforts to encompass the defeat of candidates friendly to him. In every instance the "antis" were routed horse, foot and dragons, in Lancaster county the majorities in some instances running up over the 5,000 mark in favor of the Quay people, who elect all the eight delegates in that county. Montour's results were much the same, and the county convention passed strong resolutions condemning the action of their member in opposing Quay's election, and demanding that he support the Senator in the future. In Butler county, which was looked upon as strongly anti-Quay, both delegates elected are for him. Up to this time Quay has won in Union, Indiana, Blair, Warren, Lancaster, Montour and Butler counties, while the "antis" have not elected a solitary delegate. Will the insurgents observe the handwriting on the wall?

The House of Representatives... three sessions a day and committee meetings between. Bills are ground out between debates and so far are of the better character. There seems to be no doubt about an adjournment in April, U. S. Senator elected or not elected. In the Senatorial contest it is the same old story over and over. The regular Republicans and the Democrats voting for their nominees and the so called Independents scattering votes around amongst their friends. It is said that next week the insurgents will unite on one man, but up to today they have not been able to agree on what man that shall be, though it is supposed to be Dalzell that the leaders are working for. I doubt this, though it may be so arranged for a start. It is very doubtful if the insurgent leaders really want that gentleman elected. There are also all sorts of rumors in reference to Senator Quay. It can be stated positively, however, that up to this time there are no changes contemplated in the Quay ranks.

The investigation drags along its weary way. So far the net results are that a few Democratic members were approached by an ex-member who has a brother under indictment. This ex-member claims that his brother is innocent, and that he wanted the McCarrell bill passed to give his brother a better chance. He declines, however, as does an ex-Senator, that they ever offered a cent for any votes or change of votes. The one thing that is perfectly clear is that no one really did get anything; that if any offers were made the offer was refused. Nevertheless some of the newspapers have so colored the charges that more or less odium attaches to the members in question. That that sort of journalism is anything but devilish no reasonable man will deny. One member states that Frank W. Leech refused to do anything for him in line of committee positions unless he, the Democratic member, would do something for Quay. This total result did not seem to satisfy the committee, or rather the majority thereof, so they came into the House with a resolution that all the members be called before them. The oddity about this resolution is this: The committee having that power now, why should this resolution be passed and an additional chance given the sensational press for firing fire-works of the red-hot style at their already filled up readers. The reasons have slowly come to light; they desire to get at a few members that they think know something, and in order to avoid a direct summons to those members, they cover it with a blanket dragnet. The idea of a House investing itself is somewhat ludicrous. Let the guilty be punished if there are any guilty, without fear or favor, but to say to 204 members "you swear to your innocence so we can catch somebody" is a pretty bad slap at the expensive detective force that the Wauwaukeer Bureau has maintained here all the session. Possibly it was not detective work they were after.

The Wauwaukeer press are at times vicious. Any member that does not smile as they smile gets it in the neck, in all sorts of little and big contemptible ways. His position and words are misrepresented and he is put in a totally false light before the public. To such a rank extent was this carried this week in reference to myself and a number of other members that I placed the article so written before the House and stated that a repetition of this work and I would introduce a resolution refusing the floor to the falsifiers. I know just how the House felt I did this; it was "no joke" this time. It is simply a question of whether the Representatives of the people shall allow themselves to be lied about by those who only sit in the House by courtesy of these members. Reporters who are gentlemen can criticize a member fairly, and no one kicks, but to be lied about is different. Ex-member Smith of Jefferson, in his paper of the 22d, puts the matter in the true light. That article ought to be read in every home in the State.

Following is the article from the Punxsutawney Spirit referred to above: What the press says is true in part, but does not reach the point. The newspaper is the source from which the great body of the people obtains its information concerning men and events. If this information is colored by the prejudice of the writer, it is likely to mislead the reader. Honorable men have been hounded to disgrace and death by incurring the enmity of merciless and revengeful newspapers; and men of small caliber, both intellectually and morally, have been hounded into fame and fortune by the adulation of a friendly press.

The arrangement of the Legislature is generally indiscriminate. It is denounced as a body. The members who deserve reproach and rebuke are not indicated, and the public is led to conclude that they are all of a piece—all venal and for sale, or basely subservient to anybody but their constituents.

The average reporter knows the appetite of the average reader for the sensational. To say that a man was honest and courageous in the performance of his duties, and to ascribe to him correct motives, would be regarded as "stale, flat and unprofitable." But to announce that a whole lot of fellows—whose names are generally omitted, leaving the reader to draw his own inferences—are thieves, bribe-takers, or slaves to a political boss, makes a spicy item. Hence the tendency always is to say the bad thing, and leave the good thing unsaid. The impression thus created is that the Pennsylvania Legislature as a body is corrupt and venal, and that even if a good man is sent there he will soon become a rascal.

The newspaper, as the maker of public sentiment, is responsible, and it is a grave responsibility. "Give a dog a bad name and then shoot him," is a homely but true saying.

Of course it is not only the right but the duty of the press to denounce wrongdoing and to expose it, and to expose the faithless and dishonest public servant. That is unquestioned. But the press should be careful not to be dishonest and reckless in its denunciations and exposures, as we regret to say it very often is. As the guardian of public virtue it is not necessary that it should become the calumniator of public honor.

The Lowest Rates Plate Road... a fine offer via the Nickel East or West with solid through trains to New York, and through sleeping cars to Boston, and direct connection at Chicago for all points West, travelers via this road are popular, and the rates are offered all conveniences of an exciting traveling public. Then, too, the quality of the service is unsurpassed. Modern day coaches and luxurious sleeping cars contribute to the comfort of passengers, while unexcelled dining cars cater to the tastes of the most exacting.
