The long breath quickens the pulse and thus causes the blood to circulate faster. The blood flows into all parts of the veins and arteries and gives out a great deal of heat.

It is stated that this method of deep breathing prevents colds and a great many other ailments if begun in time.

The Venomous Spiders. There is no doubt whatever that spiders are venomous, and a few of them are dangerously so. It may surprise the average reader to learn that the typical poisonous spider possesses a poison gland and a hollow tooth or fang through which the venom is introduced into the wound made by the tooth. The gland is situated much as in the rattlesnake, the poison sac being attached to the root of the fang by a small tube that conducts the venom down the hollow shaft. Here, indeed, is one of the oddities of nature—namely, the similarity of arrangements in snake and arachnid for the purpose of injecting venom. It is certain, however, that spiders do not always use their poison in striking; they do not need to employ it in killing insects ordinarily, and it would appear that the venom gland is under the control of the animal. With the rattlesnake or cobra it is very different, the poison being injected by the mere act of closing the jaws.—New York News.

THE constantly recurring monthly suffering gives women the blues!

How hopeless the future appears, month after month the same siege with menstrual pain! Comparatively few women understand that excessive pain indicates ill-health, or some serious derangement of the feminine organs.

DESPONDENT WOMEN

A million women have been helped by Mrs. Pinkham. Read what two of them say.

Mrs. LIZZIE COLEMAN, of Wayland, N. Y., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For years I suffered with painful menstruation and falling of womb. The bearing-down pains in my back and hips were dreadful. I could not stand for more than five minutes at a time when menstruation began. But thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my sufferings are now a thing of the past. I shall gladly recommend your medicines to all my friends."

Miss C. D. MORRIS, 3 Louisiana Square, Boston, Mass., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me wonderfully. I was troubled with headache, backache and that weak and tired feeling. I cannot say enough in praise of your medicine for it has done me so much good. I shall recommend it to all my friends who suffer."

Despondency is a disease. Nervousness and snappishness come with it. Will power won't overcome it. The feminine organs are connected by nerves with the brain and all parts of the body. These organs must be healthy or the mind is not healthy.

All low-spirited or suffering women may write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and receive her advice free of charge. Don't wait until your life is wrecked by neglect and suffering. Get advice in time.

relative of mine was taking the same week to an old man who had seen Sir Walter Scott at the great Carriehaugh football match in the year of Waterloo. Sir Walter himself, in writing of his mother's remarkable knowledge of past times, says: "She had often spoken to a person who perfectly recollected Cromwell's entry into Edinburgh." Here, therefore, we have a "link" between 1899 and 1650.—London Spectator.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven, however, to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, made and sold by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. The Seat of the Soul. Understanding that "soul" the highest intellectual faculties, it is worth considerable trouble to find out where these functions are located. Savages believe that it is in the liver or the stomach; cynics suggest that it is in the stomach; phrenologists place them in the front part of the brain; but the most advanced physiologists are now inclined to teach that the posterior cerebral lobes have the highest intellectual value. Dr. C. Clapham's arguments to this effect are quoted with approval in the "Centralblatt für Anthropologie" (1898, Heft 4). These arguments are that man has the most highly developed posterior lobes, and this is the condition in men of marked ability and in the highest races. In idiots the lobes are imperfectly developed, and in chronic dementia these portions of the brain reveal frequent lesions. Numerous authorities are quoted in support of these and allied statements.—Dr. Brinton, in Science.

A very ordinary-looking farm horse harnessed to an old wagon stood by the curb, and on the board that served for a seat lay a small dog of such mixed blood that no guess can be made as to his breed.

As a delivery wagon passed on the opposite side of the street a large red apple fell off. Before it stopped rolling the dog bounded across the street, picked it up with his teeth, and with tail wagging rushed back to the horse, in front of which he stood up on his hind legs while the apple was taken from his mouth.

As the horse munched the apple he made the peculiar little noise that horses make when petted, and doggie replied with throaty little barks which plainly told what a pleasure it had been to get after that apple. Then he went back to his nap on the wagon-seat.

Incubators For Early Chicks. However resolutely a breeder may resolve to do without incubators, he cannot very well dispense with them if he wants the very earliest hatched chicks. Any one who has tried to get a hen to sit steadily early in the spring for sufficient time to hatch out the chicks will know that it is impossible. The broodiest hen after two or three days on the nest will probably leave the eggs and go to laying again. Yet it is necessary to have the chicks hatched early, so that they begin laying next fall before the cold weather comes, in which case most of them, if well fed and given a warm, light room, will continue to lay through the winter.

Threshing by Hand. In the older portions of the country, especially among those who grow little grain, the steam thrasher is much less in demand than it used to be. Unless there is grain enough to make a full day's work the job will not pay. A great deal of extra help has to be hired, and the money thus expended will hire the small job threshed by hand in winter, thus giving work for several days when there is little work to be had, and when for the poor the necessity of earning something is the greatest. There are other advantages of hand threshing. Much of the newly threshed straw will be eaten by stock that would not touch the same straw if it had been threshed by machine weeks before, and had lain ever since in the stack.

Hogs Sleeping Upstairs. A neighbor of mine, in building a new hog house, made a second floor just above the first, high enough to clear a man's head. From each apartment he made a runway at an angle of about forty-five degrees, with strips to prevent slipping. The sleeping rooms for the hogs were on the upper floor. Most hogs will keep their sleeping rooms very neat, dry and clean. Sometimes young hogs will get into bad habits, but you can soon break them of that by closing a trap door to keep them down a little longer after eating. Old hogs are very particular about keeping their sleeping room dry and clean.

New hogs introduced into the house do not have to be taught to go up stairs to bed, but they will find their way up stairs within an hour after they enter the pen. The discoverer of this disposition in a hog had confined several of them in an old log house where there was such a runway leading to the chamber above. When he went to look for his hogs there was none to be seen. He searched the surrounding country, but no trace could be found. Going back to find where they had got out, he heard a noise up stairs and the mystery was solved.—J. B. Rice, in American Agriculturist.

The Egg Producers. It is not altogether the chickens that will produce the greatest number of eggs a year, but the breed that will lay the largest number of salable eggs between October 1 and April 1. In other words, to make the poultry pay we want a breed that will lay eggs in winter. This is not always considered when we speak of the relative laying powers of the various breeds. Winter-laying hens are worth nearly double the summer layers. If we can rear up a breed that will lay right through the winter, and take a rest in summer, we would make more money than from any now in existence. It is a very interesting question whether such a breed will not eventually be produced, for by artificial means we can adapt the farm animals to almost anything. Then why not induce the hens to lay exclusively in the winter? If they once got into the habit of it, nature would help to persist in this course.

Experiments in recent years seem to show that the best egg-laying breeds are the Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes, and both the Brahmas and Minorcas have dropped to second place. This does not mean that they are unprofitable, but they are not quite equal to the first three strains for egg-laying. Moreover, the best winter layers. When kept in good, warm quarters, exercised properly, fed warm and egg-producing foods, they will lay more eggs per week than any other strain of chickens.

The past season has also demonstrated that certain branches of these three great egg-producing strains of chickens have points of excellence superior to any other. Thus we are gradually getting down to the true egg-laying chickens. The White Wyandottes lead the rest of the family in this respect, the Barred and White Plymouth Rocks stand first among the Wyandottes, and the Brown Leghorns first among the latter strain. Thus we have the egg-laying families pretty well defined. Starting with these one has every chance to succeed in raising chickens for their eggs.

These several strains or breeds have scored an average of 200 eggs a year each. Of course the birds were selected, and the highest of their class, but it shows what can be accomplished with good breeds and good feeding. It is only by placing the standard high, and then by striving to come up to it, that we can hope to make a living in the poultry business. Try to top off all the dead wood, and make each hen a selected bird for the business.—James S. Wilson, in American Cultivator.

A Bold, Bad Tramp. An audacious tramp begged and obtained a meal at the home of Mrs. Fox, in Toledo, O. A week later he returned, offered pay for the meal, and requested to be taken as a boarder, as he has secured employment. Some ten days afterward he married the lady's daughter, subsequently stole $100 in cash from her and jewelry valued at several hundred dollars, and then decamped.

The cycling associations of Chicago, which have formed an alliance for securing better legislation, have practically decided to drop for the present the fight against the cycle baggage law and confine their efforts to a move for good roads.

An Apostrophe to Water—A Chicago Judge Declares That Nine-tenths of Our Law-breaking is Hatched in the Saloons—At the Root of All Evil.

What falls from Heaven refreshingly? Not wine, but water clear! What drops with bride-like veil the mountain side? Not wine, but water clear! What gently drops from sympathetic eyes? Not wine, but water clear! What bears rich laden ships from land to land? Not wine, but water clear! In Captain's only rite beneath the brow Red wine or water clear! Thank God, a Kipling song shall cheer! Not wine, but water clear! —E. C. Martin.

A Stern Indictment. The presiding judge of one of the Chicago courts said recently to an Inter Ocean interviewer:

"You may ransack the pigeon holes all over the city and country, and look over your annual reports as are made up, but they will not tell half the truth. Not only are the saloons of Chicago responsible for the cost of the police force, the fifteen justice courts, the county jail, a great portion of Joliet State prison, the long murder trials, the coroner's office, the morgue, the poorhouse, the reform school, the madhouse. Go anywhere you please, and you will almost invariably find that whiskey is at the root of all evil. The gambling houses of the city, and the bad houses of the city, are the direct outgrowth of the boon companions of drink. Of all the prostitutes of Chicago, the downfall of almost every one can be traced to drunkenness on the part of their parents or husbands, or drunkenness on their own part. Of all the boys in the reform school at Pontiac, and in the various reformatories about the city, ninety-five per cent. are the children of drunkards who, through drink, or became criminals through the same cause. Of the insane or demented cases disposed of here in court every Thursday, a moderate estimate would place ninety per cent. are caused by alcohol. I saw estimated the other day that there were ten thousand destitute boys in Chicago who are not confined at all, but are running at large. I think that is a small estimate. Men are sent to jail for drunkenness, and what becomes of their families? The county agent and poorhouse provide for some. It is a direct expense to the community. Generally speaking, these families go to destruction. The boys turn thieves, and the girls and mothers generally resort to the stumps. The sandbaggers, murderers and thugs generally of today, who are prosecuted in the police courts and criminal courts, are the sons of men who fell victims to drink. The percentage in this case is fully sixty-five per cent."

"I know whereof I speak; 'this saloon,' 'that saloon,' 'the other saloon'—saloons, saloons, saloons—figured constantly and especially about the anarchist trials. Conspirators in saloons; dynamite was discussed in saloons; bombs were distributed over saloons; armed revolutionists were drilled about saloons, in rear saloons; treason made assignment in saloons, and time and time again witnesses say, 'We went to such and such a saloon for wine and beer.' There is not a country under the sun in which there is so much treason, revolution and murder, as in the larger cities. These saloons pests—murderers, thugs, non-breakers, anarchists, robbers and murderers. Nine-tenths of the law-breaking in America is hatched in saloons, and the admitted fact is palliated by the axiom that saloons are headquarters for town, city, and even national gerrymandering. The liquor counter is the seafoam on which a half-hundred beautiful, vital American things are assiduously, on which scores of horrid plagues are germinated."

A Physician's Experience With Alcohol. I had never been much in sympathy with any temperance movement until I served as an interne in an insane asylum, and of a large city hospital, writes a physician in the New York Sun. I have inquired into the habits of many alcoholics and the circumstances of their intoxication.

I have come to the conclusion that it is imperative. Lessen the opportunities for alcoholic intoxication by progressive taxation of the liquor traffic; say add $200 a year to Boston, and $1000 for ten or twelve years as an initial step. Then take your soundings.

Let benevolent men or the city found twenty-five "Cooper Unions" as "working-men's clubs," or more, perhaps fifty—in different parts of the city for hall-room dwellers and others, and you will deprive the saloon of a large share of its patronage.

Practical agitation for legal redress will receive the support of alcoholics themselves. Class legislation, even against saloon keepers, is always odious, and justly so. Action from the outside by the foolish. Too many clergymen know nothing of the conditions under which fifty per cent. of the population of this town live. Physicians who, during their college years and after graduation, have worked among the poor and for their know of their nakedness and starvation and alcoholic indulgence, both by men and women.

"No Drink While on Duty." Close upon the abolition of the "canteen" in the army comes the cutting off of Jacky's official "grog" by the Navy Department. Both these moves are in response to the elaborate experiments that have been made by the military and naval experts of the great European war establishments. They are also in line with the rules now rigidly enforced by every great corporation, forbidding their employees to drink while on duty.

The complicated and exacting machinery of modern civilization calls for complete presence of mind at all times in all of its directors, high and humble. There can be no confusion, no slipshod work, no mixture of business and pleasure. There must be alertness, attention, clear-headedness—the best service from every muscle and faculty.

"No drink while on duty" is an axiom not of morals but of sagacious prudence.—New York World.

A Good Book Worth a Dozen Drinks. Of this you may be sure: Your best thoughts and your best moments will be free from alcoholic stimulus. And the young man who wants to get on and win the fight in which the world is his, need not complain if he drugs and dulls himself into even greater inferiority than he got at birth. A good book is worth a dozen of the cups that cheer. A good friend, sober, quiet, intelligent, is worth more than hogsheads full of cheering cups.—New York Journal.

Temperance Notes. Some of the generals are talking about introducing a free ration of beer and spirits into the army. They say that it would increase the fighting and staying qualities of the soldiers.

The other day, says the Paulist Calendar, New York, in one of our public schools a child of twelve years was noticed under the influence of drink. It had come to school repeatedly in that condition. The silly mother thought whiskey was good for its health, and so gave the child a dose before going to school. Such instances as these should be looked for as long as the people are persuaded that intoxicating drinks are essential to one's health.

"Any one," says the Weekly Freeman of Dublin, in answer to a correspondent's queries regarding good reading, "would rather spend half a crown on bad whiskey than two pence on a good book." The same thing holds good in this country.

The Hon. Joseph H. Choate, the newly-appointed Ambassador to England, spoke at a temperance meeting in New York City recently and said: "There are more than 1000 saloons in New York, and each represents damage to families incalculable. I believe that more money is spent for drink in this city than for food or for the education of children. The law can attempt to reduce the number of saloons, but it cannot prevent the debauching of politics, disgrace of families and ruin to the community which is accomplished through them."

Riding in the wind and dust roughens the face and often causes painful chapping and cracking of the skin. Those who are so affected should use a pure soap. Ivory Soap is made of vegetable oils that are soothing in their nature; it can be used freely even on tender faces, for there is nothing in it to irritate or injure.

IVORY SOAP IS 99 1/2 PER CENT. PURE.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.
