ALL HOME PRINT.

The FOREST REPUBLICAN to-day discards the ready-print outside and adopts the all home print make-up. This step has been in contemplation for some time, but until such time as the press of business would justify it we had determined to stick by the plan under which the paper has been issued for a number of years past. The time for a change has apparently arrived and we sieze the opportunity with pleasure, and trust the change shall be justified by a still greater demand for advertising space. The general appearance of the paper is not materially changed, for we don't like too sudden changes, either in the weather or one's make-up. The REPUBLICAN has never aimed to be sensational anyway. We prefer solidity, stability and reliability to the yellow kind. In our new form we will be enabled to give our readers a very complete summary of the important news of the world, up to the hour of going to press, besides much other matter hitherte impossible. It strikes us this feasure will be appreciated by our patrons, and while we are at it we might just mention that changes involve a considerable extra outlay of cash, and if you know yourself to be indebted on subscription account, dear reader, and some of you certainly are not ignorant of that fact, now would be a most opportune time to say something pleasant.

Now is the time to subscribe as well as to pay up arrearages.

THE PAST LEGISLATURE.

The Legislative Session of '99 has become a proceeding of the past. It has made more history in less time than any Legislature that ever met in this State. the 5th inst., and who will have general zeal and interest the citizens took hold of Some newspapers will unjustly and bitterly condemn it. Some will give it unmerited praise, a few unmoved by preju- triets there were no elections: dice will candidly give it fair play and impartial review. It has been, with two exceptions, the shortest term since 1874, and take it in a general view, a good Legislature. Its personal was above the average both in intelligence and morals. There was a large number of its membership who were Christian men, who were not ashamed of the name there or elsewhere. There was a large number of moral men, affiliated directly with no religious body. There were some, as there always are, and probably will continue to be, whose seifishness, greed and personal ambition were considered first, the good of the State last. The number of "snakey" bills introduced was comparatively small and with a few exceptions, these were promptly killed. The revenues of the State have been somewhat increased, probably by $1,500,000, or possibly more, while the appropriations, except that to public schools, have been cut down. In view of the demands of the great charities, and of the crowded condition of the Hospitals for the insane (to say nothing of the new capitol building), the revenues ought to have been increased to a greater amount than they were. This was not the fault of the House, the blame must rest on the Senate. The failure not to appropriate for the completion of the capitol building was due to two the country during the past two or three causes: First, there were three bills for that purpose, two on the Republican side, one on the Democratic. The Democratic bill (Hasson's) savored very much of an endorsement of Hastings, and the regu- large increase in purchasing power of the lar Republicans promptly killed it. The other two were just as promptly laid out by a combination of Democrats and insurgents. The other reason was that a majority recognized that with a failure in jour years ago, when the tendency was the Senate to pass revenue bills, that we downward, and entorced idleness for the would not have the means to pay up, no matter which bill passed. Besides this rule. Will the average voter note the was the feeling, and a just one, that we difference? could better afford to let the capitol building wait, than to cripple still more the
