Sarah Elizabeth Church was born on Church Hill, near East Hickory, Pa., on Nov. 16, 1833, and died at East Hickory, April 14, 1809. The deceased was a daughter of Ira Church, who was twice married and to whom was born twelve children, seven girls and five boys. Ot these there -Mrs. Joseph Reed, of Kinsman, Obio, survive Mrs. Foreman: Mrs. Charlotte was a guest of Mrs. J. C. Bowman last Wentworth, of Tionesta; Mrs. Mary Shaffer, of Kellettville; Mrs. Laura Galbraith, of East Hickory; Mrs. Lucetta and Hilton, James, Jehn, all of East Hickory, and Samuel E., who lives on s visiting her grandma, Mrs. Rachel Church Hill. Mrs. Foreman's stepmother and mother of Samuel E., is also still living. When Mrs. Foreman was eleven years of age, in 1864, her mother died. Up to this time she had lived where she was born, on Church Hill. In 1865 her father went to Iowa, having sold his farm on Church Hill. Three years afterward he returned and buying again on Church Hill near his former home settled there for the remainder of his life, There Mrs. Foreman lived -Charles Swartz, the well known until her marriage. On July 27, 1870, she was united in marriage to W. J. Foreman. For seven years, Mr. and Mrs. Foreman resided at East Hickory. Then they went to Parker's Landing, afterward to Bradford, and finally in 1882 returned to East Hickory and there remained. There survive her beside her husband, Elmer Hamilton, and Lodema Grace, another child lies in the East Hickory cemetery. The deceased experienced religion in the fall of 1875. In a special meeting held by the Free Methodist people in the same roon where she died afterwards she was converted to God. The house was then occupied by N. G. Ball. Since then she had been a member of the Free Methodist church. For years she had taught the infant class in the church at East Hickory. Her love for children was very great. She had been President of the Women's Foreign Missionary society since its organization over two years ago until two weeks before her death. Never very demonstrative in her religious experience she was always steady, faithful, consistent, loyal and true. For more than a year she had been in ill health, and for a period of eight menths was confined to bed; and during this time she was a great sufferer. During her sickness her faith in God never wayered, and her vision of the things which are unseen-the eternal things-was never obscured or dimmed. Her family mourns her loss; but they serrow not as those t. at have no hopes. The community mourns the loss of a did some nice work in inside decorations friend, a neighbor, a valued member; but still holds as a precious legacy the memory of the one it knew and loved. good soldier of Jesus Christ; but the church triumphant enrolls another member. She is at home, and some day, weary, travel-stained, and footsore, may be, when we come to the end of the way, may we have the same abundant entrance and be reunited with those gone before and who there await us. On the Sunday following her death in accordauce with her own wishes previously expressed, funeral services were held in the F. M. church. Rev. T. J. Stone conducted the services and the sermon from 2 Timothy 4:6, 7, 8. He was assisted by Rev. McClelland of the F. M. church, Tionesta, and Rev. J. E. In one we find the Superintendent's office, seated like the Senate chamber, with fourteen desks of oak, revolving office chairs and everything in the way of first class, appropriate office furniture. At a larger desk may be seated Prof. MacGowan, a man of no ordinary intelligence, culture and ability, and a person in every way fitted for the position he holds. Possess. desk may be seated Prof. MacGowan, a fitted for the position he holds. Possessed of much originality and great activity of mind and body, and a good store of knowledge acquired by study and travel in our own and foreign lands, his advice has been of untold value to the faithful committee of which D. I. Ball, Esq., was chairman, in the construction of the building. He has wonderful faculty of organizing and systemizing, and tact as a disciplinarian. Perfect harmony is found between him and his excellent corps of forty teachers. His daily visit to the three buildings outside of the High School, keep him in close touchand sympathy with each teacher and pupil. He has the happy faculty of imparting new life and energy in every class room and always seems a welcome guest. He is courteous and kind-a gentleman in every sense of the word. . Next to him stands Prof. Haupt, Principal of the High School. Prof. Haupt is a scholarly gentleman, who commands the respect and obedience of the pupils, and the confidence and admiration of the patrons. The High School faculty, we believe, would grace any of our colleges, and in it is represented some of America's best colleges and universities, and also the University of Heidelberg, Germany, On the third floor of the High School building, in the cozy north-east corner, is a benefactor of his race. It is not a monument of marble or bronze, but one that will tell in eternity for the good it is doing and will do for the future home makers of our Republic. We speak of the domestie science department, established by Mr. Levi Smith who pays the salary of Mrs. Richardson of Philadelphia, who presides over this department. It is a very pretty sight to watch this pleasant faced little woman superintending a class of young woman arrayed in their snowy white uniforms. Here instructions are given in every detail of kitchen and dining room work, as well as instructions in social forms and behavior at the table. Diagonally across the rotunda from this room is the sewing room of which Mrs. Abbott has charge. In this room we also see traces of Mr. Smith's generosity when looking into the well-filled cases of supplies, furnished by Mr. Smith. Mrs. Abbott is well known at Endeavor, Forest county, where she gives lessons in sewing to a number of young girls every Saturday at the home of Mrs. N. P.

Wheeler who employs Mrs. Abbott to do this work for her. M. E. church at East Hickory, both of floor, has also been equipped by Mr. whom supplemented the sermon by Smith, for the boys who expect seen to continue their work in manual training. So many pleasant features are in connection with the High School outside of the regular school work. One of these was a recemetery by the pallbearers, who were ception given some time ago by the stu-T. J. Bowman, James Handerson, Juddents of the High School to the High and P. J. McCullough. Despite the was transformed into a lovely reception storminess of the day fully 300 people hall with Persian rugs, tall palms, rockwere present at the funeral, evidence of ing chairs, and settees arranged in a most the esteem in which the deceased was artistic manner. These with the number of electric lights shining from pretty chandeliers, and dozens of soft silk pillows and cushions made all complete. Everything had been arranged by the pupils themselves and it was a delightful secasion to those who were present. The rendering of the program manifested the harmony existing between pupil and teacher, and the delicious refreshments, served on the basement floor in the large hall, told how well these young men and women are being fitted for "complete living." One of the charming features of this school is the School's Savings Bank connected with it. This was adopted through Prof. MacGowan whose originality is again shows in the systematic order by which this work is carried on. Each pupil in every department is given an opportunity to "deposite" any amount, however great or small, once a week, These contributions are given to the teacher who in turn sends them to the superintendent or his clerk who makes the deposite in one of the Warren banks, where it is put on an interest of not less than 4 per cent. This has its great advantages. It not only has trained the boys and girls in lessons of economy, but has enabled them to do much good with their mency. During the "hard times" boys and girls who had money in the bank were able to pay rent and doctor's bills for their fathers. Others who never draw any amount from the bank have handsome sums that will go far towards helping them in college after graduating at the High School. This banking systo 30th. Agents of the Nickel Plate road tem can be carried out in any school, and are in possession of complete information it is hoped that the near future will find it in regard to rates, dates of sale, routes in every school. There are at present and time of trains, and will be glad to $6,000 in the Warren Savings' Bank to the credit of the pupils of the Public and High School. Our own Willie Agnew, who died in Dec, '94, had a neat little sum on interest, and when his amount was withdrawn, an entry was made of his death.
