GUFFEY CLINGS TO BRYANISM

The Democratic Leader Gives His Republican Insurgent Allies a Rude Shock.

Stalwart Republicans Continue to Win Victories at the Primary Elections in the Naming of Delegates to the Coming State Convention.

(Special Correspondence.) Harrisburg, May 30.-Colonel James Madison Guffey, the accredited head of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania, gave a terrible shock last week to his publican insurgents. Guffey engineered the deals between the Democratic members of the legislature and the insurgents in the recent house of representatives by which they blocked the various projects advocated by the Republican governor to raise revenue to meet the current obligations of the state. It was due to the success of these alliances between the Democrats and the insurgents that Governor Stone found that the appropriations of the recent legislature far exceeded the amount of money available for the same, and that he was, therefore, obliged to veto bills right and left and to cut the general school appropriation $500,000 annually for the next two years. The men who were responsible for this condition of affairs have been the most blatant in condemning the governor for his action, necessitated by their high handed course in the legislature. There is no doubt that some of the insurgent leaders, recognizing that they will cut no figure at the coming Republican state convention. have been planning for a continuance of their alliance with the Guffey Democrats in the hope of defeating the regular Republican nominee for state treasurer, no matter who he may be.

GUFFEY FOLLOWS BRYAN. But Guffey has given this project a rude shattering. He has been obliged to take a stand between the two factions in his own party. On the one side are the conservative Democrats, who believe in a sound currency, but who have been read out of their party organization, while on the other hand are the rampant silvertites and champions of Bryan. Guffey concluded to train with the Bryanites, and was one of the most conspicuous figures at the great Bryan demonstration at St. Louis a few days ago. The Republican insurgents have been greatly distressed ever since. They did not want Guffey to join with this radical wing of his party, as they know he has thus made it difficult for them to co-operate with him and have any following among self respecting Republicans. They declare that his action has practically tied their hands, and that it will prevent them from giving encouragement to a movement to help Guffey's candidate for state treasurer.

Not only has Guffey raised the flag of Bryanism, but one of his chief lieutenants, Former State Chairman Garman, has publicly declared that no one who did not support Bryan for president can hope to get a nomination for any office which there is a chance of winning at the coming Democratic state convention. All this means that Bryanism is to be put to the front by the Democracy of Pennsylvania in the coming canvass, which will be the skirmish of the great presidential campaign of next year. The Republicans, under the leadership of Quay and Penrose, and raised the triumphant banner of McKinley, and are ready to meet any combination of Bryan Democrats and Republican insurgents that may be formed in the Keystone state this fall. STALWARTS CONTINUE TO WIN.

The Republican stalwarts continue to win victories at the primary elections, The McKean county Republican convention on Tuesday last resulted in a rousing victory for the friends of Colonel Quay. At the eleventh hour the insurgents made a fight against the regulars, for county chairman, but the regulars blocked the game and captured the chairmanship, after exciting

The resolutions specifically commend the action of Senator Merrick and Representatives Dempsey and Richmond, members of the legislature from this district, who are included in "the stalwart ninety-six," who went into the Republican caucus and voted until the end of the session for Colonel Quay for United States senator.

These are the resolutions adopted by the convention:

"Resolved, By the Republicans of McKean county, through the county convention here assembled, that we affirm the principles laid down by the last Republican national convention; that we most heartily indorse the administration of President McKinley, and congratulate the people that through his wise administration prosperity has come to the whole nation, and the standing of Americans is higher today among the nations of the world than ever before; that we indorse the state administration of Governor William A. Stone as being wise and patriotic. We approve the action of our representatives in the legislature, Senator W. T. Merrick, R. A. Dempsey and Thomas F. Richmond." The convention indorsed Judge Morrison for the supreme bench.

CUMBERLAND IS SOLID.

The Cumberland county Republican convention, held the same day, proved to be a walkover for the stalwarts. Chairman Rupley made a few remarks, in which he said he believed the minority of the convention would vote with the party in November. party has been victorious in the past and would be in the future. We have a Republican governor and a Republican president. Back of McKinley was Matthew Stanley Quay. He received the Republican caucus nomination and the majority of the votes in the last

The committee on resolutions reported as follows:

The Republicans of Cumberland county, in convention assembled, do hereby affirm the principles enunciated in the platform adopted by the national Republican convention in 1896.

"Resolved, That we most heartily indorse the administration of President McKinley, which has brought prosperity to the whole nation and has elevated the standing of America among the nations of the world.

That we express our admiration for and our sense of gratitude to the American soldier and sailor for the gallantpolitical allies, the Flinn-Martin Re- ry and patriotism which they displayed in the recent war wan Spain and for the heroism which has marked their advance in the far east,

That we indorse the state admin istration and commend the action of Governor Stone in appointing Matthew Stanley Quay United States senator. "Resolved, further, That we recommend to our delegates this day elected to aid and assist in selecting at the state convention nominees for the offices to be selected at that convention which will best aid in harmonizing the party. The resolutions were adopted by acclamation

The Republicans of Fayette county held their primaries on Saturday last and the friends of Senator Quay carried everything before them. C. B. Freed, Dr. L. F. Arensburg, Charles F. Smith and George F. Titlow were elected delegates to the state convention. They are all stalwart Republicans.

ELKIN IS DELICHTED. Chairman John P. Elkin, of the Republican state committee, seems to be delighted with the news that comes to him from the several counties.

"The Republicans of Pennsylvania," remarked the state chairman, "seem to be thoroughly acquainted with the political situation, and they propose to sustain the party organization and the men who have stood for the principles of the party, rather than the selfish interests of a few men with political ambitions. The Republican state convention will give expression to the will of the Republicans of Pennsylvania without dictation or interference from any one. The reports that this man or that man has been slated for this or that office are absolutely without foundation of fact. These stories are on a par with the reports that were sent out affecting the actions of members of the legislature who declined to be influenced or intimidated by certain interests. There is a freefor-all contest for the several nominations to be made by the Republican state convention, and the nominees of that body will be triumphantly

Also the young man's wife, being a woman of understanding, has cut Friday the young man expected to make a raise down town during the day, but the man be expected to meet disappointed him, so he went home without a cent in his clothes, and, to make matters worse, there was no money in the house.

Nothing of the financial crisis in this household appeared on the surface, however. The flat is handsomely furnished, and when some friends to the number of half a dozen called Friday evening everything looked prosperous. The host and hostess were both smiling as young folks will smile through adversity, and matters were drifting along right merrily until the gas went out.

At that instant the young man realized with horror that there wasn't a penny in the house and that the sum of 25 cents wherewith to propitiate the god of the gashouse was an imperative necessity.

"My dear," he said tremulously—"er—have you a quarter in change?" "Good gracious, Charlie!" gasped the lady somewhat hysterically, but still with great presence of mind. "There isn't a thing in the house but a $10 bill." "I've got some change," said one of the visitors, forking out a handful of silver. "All right," said the young man, "I'll skin out and get the $10 broken after this serious question the president awhile." The borrowed quarter went into in the hilarity that ensued, further reference to that quarter was studiously taboood.-Minneapolis Journal.

LEAD FOR M'KINLEY

The Republican State Convention Will Declare For the President's Renomination.

The Distinguished Young Pennsylvanian Tells Why the President Has Won the Confidence and Admiration of the People.

(Special Correspondence.) Philadelphia, May 30,-Pennsylvania is likely to be the first state in the Union to declare through the Republican organization in favor of the renomination of President McKinley. At the coming state convention Senator Penrose will advocate a plank in the platform which will not only commend the administration of President McKinley, but declare in emphatic language in favor of his renomination and re-election to the presidency. This program has the hearty approval of Colonel Quay, who will himself be a delegate to the Republican state convention, and who has already been suggested for the chairmanship of the committee on resolutions of that body The Beaver statesman, during his many ears of successful lendership of the Republican party in the Keystone state, has had a hand in the drafting of many of the platforms upon which the party's candidates have been triumphantly elected.

Senator Penrose is proud of the fact that early in 1895 he publicly announced his preference for Major McKinley for the presidential nomination, and that on several occasions the president has, in the course of conversations referred to this circumstance.

"I am unquestionably in favor of President McKinley's renomination, was the prompt and emphatic response which Senator Penrose gave when asked if he cared to discuss the national political outlook. "President McKinley," continued the senator, "saved the country from the industrial depression and commercial uncertainty brought on by the free trade administration of Cleveland, and rescued our people from the dreadful apprehensions of disaster and revolution involved in the candidacy of Bryan. The results obtained by his election have been beyond the most sanguine expectations. The country a short time after his inauguration and following the passage of the Dingley bill at the entra session of congress, so promptly and wisely called by him, entered upon a period of unexampled prosperity. In fact, never in the history of the world has such an exhibition of industrial and commercial development been witness-

ad. The money question, while not fefinitely settled, has ceased to be a Listurbing factor as long as a Republi can president is in office and Republiran majorities in the house and senate are assured to uphold the pledge in the Republican national platform for a sound currency. The question will be taken up at the approaching session of congress, and will be disposed of satisfactorily

M'KINLEY'S GREAT WAR RECORD. "The unexpected event in the administration and one of the greatest events | are the height of their blossoming time, our history was the war with and to quote the artist's letter Spain," continued Senator Penrose, as he took up the stirring period of the McKinley administration. "Upon this occasion the greatness of President Me-Kinley showed itself. He recognized early that the moral sentiment of the people were shocked beyond endurance by the cruelties and barbarities of the Spanish government. The greatness of the president was shown in the fact that at this critical juncture he made every possible effort to avoid a war. He exhausted every method to counsel moderation among his own countryliving in a nice little flat not far from men and to secure peaceful results by patriotic military spirit in the nation better to pay for everything as you go and the condition of affairs had become inthen you know where you stand. For a tolerable, and war was forced upon month past the young man has been run- the country. The splendid confidence tegrity of McKinley was shown by the prompt and unanimous passage by congress of the first loan required by expenses down to the minimum. Last the war. In a few moments, without debate and without restriction, the enormous sum of $50,000,000 was placed at the disposal of the president, and during the war both parties in congress at all times, by their vigorous support of the administration, gave evidence of their confidence in the president's high patriotic purpose.

"During the active operations of the war the president kept in close touch with all the military and naval maneuvers. No one who did not come in contact with the president at the time can appreciate the enormous responsibilities and burdens imposed upon him at this period. All through the day and often up until long after midnight the president endured an enormous physical strain, and with untiring in dustry and wise sagacity successfulmet the serious problems which continually confronted him.

QUESTION OF NEW TERRITORY. "At the conclusion of the war the United States was obliged to face a serious problem of outlying territories, which were not wanted and were unexpectedly acquired. In dealing with the slot, the gas burned once more, and, sight and his broad American patriotism. Cuba is temporarily under an American military protectorate until such time as order can be restored and a Cuban government established. In Porto Rico there were few difficulties, as the Island became part of the United States with the full acquiescence of its inhabitants. The treatment of the Philippine islands involved more serious questions. I cannot now go into details to show how the United States had but one duty before it, and that was to retain possession of these islands under the terms of the Paris treaty. The reasons were satisfactory to the commission, composed of repre-

the United States senate on the confirmation of the treaty. The president has taken the ground that by the time the present congress convenes matters will have settled down, and the way of making a fair adjustment of many difficulties will begin to be indicated. The president will send in his message and congress have to provide for the local government of our newly acquired territories. The question is not involved in any more difficulties than were successfully disposed of in the settlement of issues bearing upon the regulation of previously acquired territory. In the olution of these complicated and grave questions the experience and knowl edge of the president and the confidence which he inspires in the country, regardless of party, will be an important if not a dominant factor in congressional legislation.

M'KINLEY'S STRONG QUALITIES.

"President McKinley has had a long and remarkable experience in public affairs. His familiarity with the tariff and the commercial conditions of the country and the recent questions of international character give him an equipment unsurpassed by any other American. He possesses an executive capacity of a high order and tact and umen, as the result of long practical political training. The best evidence of these qualities is shown by the fact that, unlike many other presidents, he has his party unanimously at his back, undivided by serious dissension and retaining its supremacy in the country when most administrations have found their party in the minority in the middle of a presidential term, at least in the house of representatives. "In Pennsylvania McKinley has a deep rooted strength with the mass of the people. That strengta has been steadily increasing. Everything points to a hard struggle and an ultimate Republican victory in the next presidential campaign. There can be but one Republican candidate considered and that is McKinley. His candidacy will be the logical consequence of the wonderful prosperity already acquired and the glorious possibilities within our reach. The country will need his tried statesmanship in meeting the great issues of the future. With Mc-Kinley re-elected and a Republican majority in congress our people can be assured of the realization of the spiendid career opening before us.

"I have been in contact with representative Republicans from every section of our state, and have found but one sentiment, and that is in favor of the renomination of the president. I hope to be a delegate to the coming Republican state convention, and I shall earnestly support a plank in the platform which will not only give expression to the unanimous views of the Republicans of Pennsylvania, indorsing the course of the administration, but which declares emphatically in favor of President McKinley's re nomination. As a matter of fact, I have no doubt that the delegates to the Republican national convention from this state will be earnestly and unanimously in favor of his renomina-

The Seilly Islands.

A letter written by a New York artist who is painting there gives an enthusiastic descripiton of the Scilly Islands, which have so far been comparatively unknown to American tourists. Even the English have been slow in realizing the charm of the islands so near their own shores, but it seems that this spring many artists have gone to "daffodil land," and the winter exhibitions will probably be flooded with pictures of the islands. Daffedils have always grown in great profusion in the Scilly islands. February and March

The whole land is a blazing sea of brilliant yellow daffodils surging up upon gray rocks and falling back in foam bursts of white narcissus. Even the tulip fields in Holland don't give such gorgeous effects of color. You should stand on one of the little hills here and look across the sunlit fields if you want to see the loveliest things in the world. Yet sometimes I think the flower drifted land is more beautiful under moonlight than in the daylight, and daytime or nighttime the air is scented as though it blew straight from Araby the blest."

Sugar as Food. In an interesting paper recently published on the value of sugar as a food, as compared with fat, M. Auguste Chauveau maintains that its nutritive value is considerably higher than that deduced from its heat of combustion, and that the calculation that 0.756 pound of the former is equal to one pound of the latter is in many cases exceeded. The increase in relative nutritive value is due largely to the fact that sugar promotes assimilation of the proteids and reduces dissimilation, and the value of a food must necessarily depend not only upon the energy it is capa-ble of supplying, but also on the indirect influence that it is enpable of exerting in the renewal and formation of animal tissue. From whatever point of view the matter is regarded the superiority of sugar over fat as a food, whether for men at rest or at work, is very distinct

Life on an East Indiaman. There was never a finer ship affoat than the East Indiaman from, say, 1800 down to the last of them, such as the Earl of Balcarres. Those old East Indiamen were exceedingly comfortable ships-liberally found and handsomely furnished. It is a question whether passengers grew more weary of the ocean after four months' salt water to Bombay and Calcutta than do travelers in these times after six days of the Atlantic or a little more than a month to New Zealand. People of old, when they went to sea in an Indiaman, knew what they had to expect. They danced flirted, sang, talked scandal, quarreled and made it up, and often the young peo ple got engaged to be married. All the after part of the ship was a village full of people more or less good humored.—Clark

"The most difficult road to construct and, I believe, the most expensive wagor road in the United States is that connectmy state," said Mr. J. L. McNeil, a prominent Denver railway and mining man, at the Cochran last night. "One piece of this road is cut into the side of a mountain of solid rock for a distance of seven miles, and to construct it four years of hard work were consumed. To begin with, there was absolutely no foothold from which a start could be made, but the only practical way of getting a road was by cutting through mountains. The point selected for the start was 500 or 600 feet below the top of the stone cliff, and men were let down in baskets suspended by ropes, and from such shaky stations they drilled holes in the rock and filled them with charges of powder. After more than a month of blasting a ledge was cut into the rock arge enough for the men to work on, and a splendid road, 16 feet in width, was constructed along this precipitous ledge. 'The bed is solid rock and is used most ly by wagon trains and pack animals, car rying ores and supplies to and from the mining comps in the mountains. For a distance of more than 500 feet straight up is a wall of solid rock, and over the edge is a precipitous fall of several thousand feet, so that it is necessary for the owner to have a stendy footing while traveling this road. Seven miles of road cost $120. 000, but the tolls, which have been regu lated by the state, have never been sufficient to pay the owner 1 per cent on his investment. Several years ago the state offered $15,000 for the road, which was declined, and another offer has just been made for it, which the owner will probably accept. This strange road is the only means of communication between Silverton and Ouray, and there is no probability of another being built, as the only avail able route for cutting the cliff was taken by the engineers who constructed the remarkable stone path around the mountain ledge,"—Washington Fost,

Even in the unhappy ages when people knew nothing of the bath and its rejuvenating properties noted beauties found out the secret of preserving their leveliness by ablutionary aids. Isabeau of Bavaria heard that chickwood was good for the skin and had enormous decoctions brewed thereof and bathed in them daily. Diana of Poitiers was another of the cleanly coquettes and plunged into a tub of rainwater every morning.

The eighteenth century beauties like wise believed in bathing, says Woman's Life, but they put all sorts of odd infusions into the water to improve the skin, such as the bouillon in which yeal had been boiled, waters distilled from the honey extracted from roses, a preparation of almonds, melon juice, the milky juices of green barley and linseed distilled with Mexican balm dissolved by the yolk of an egg. These remarkable decoctions were freely used by the ladies who sunned themselves at the court of Louis before the revolution.

Cromwell and England's Navy.

Under Cronwell England for the first time felt the now r of a strong navy to build up a great nation, says Samuel Harden Church in The Atlantic. It is true that Queen Elizabeth had repelled and destroyed the Spanish fleet, but she assembled her ships only to resist invasion, and her important maneuvers were on the defensive. Cromwell built the first fleet that England had yet seen created for the purpose of crushing her enemies and striking down the oppressors of free reli-

Spain, still aiming at universal empire, received her first staggering blow when Cronwell, daring to throw away the traditional policy which England had hugged for four centuries, allied himself with France and made war on Spain. His enemies said then and for long afterward that he destroyed the balance of power in Europe But Cromwell cared nothing for political maxims when they stood in the pathway of that human liberty of which he was the champion. Holland sent on her fleets, more terrible than the old Span ish armada, but Cromwell's generals, act ing on sealed orders penned by his own hand, beat the Dutch admirals and sent their ships to the bottom.
