Editorial Association to Washington, D. C., last week was voted a complete success by those in attendance, about 200 of the membership.

Washington it was a sort of go-as-you-please affair, little attention being paid to program arrangements, which gave everybody a chance to visit the places most suited to their tastes, and there is no taste that cannot be fully satisfied in a magnificent city.

The departmental buildings, the National Museum, Smithsonian Institute, the White House, Washington Monument, and the new library building—the loveliest in all the world, to say nothing of the many beautiful parks, make Washington the most interesting, and as it soon will be the most beautiful, city on the globe.

Bro. Muse of the Vindicator went and took the writer along to keep him out of trouble, get him in o' nights and out o' mornin's.

Col. Rathburn of the Oil City Blizzard accompanied by his estimable wife was another of the northwestern representatives of the Association, and who was delighted with all that met his eyes.

The Colonel wrote his paper a very entertaining letter descriptive of the affair, and among other things tells this story at our expense, and that after a most positive understanding that no tales should be told out of school:

"J. E. Wenk, of the Titusville REPUBLICAN, and J. B. Muse, of the Titusville Vindicator, came down on our train. They were out driving yesterday, and, being of opposite political faith, frequently indulged in sunny little jabs. During the drive Bryan was mentioned and instantly the driver, a colored man, was all attention. When asked his views on the political situation he said that if he 'had two lives, he would bet one of them on Bryan.' Muse was jubilant and Wenk wanted to hire another driver."

We might add to this that Bro. Muse was so overjoyed at finding one Bryanite among all the eighty thousand cronies in Washington that he paid the hackhire without a grumble.

A Successful Business House. One of the most successful business establishments in Titusville is the large house-furnishing store of E. T. Hall.

For over thirty years Mr. Hall has carried on this business in this city, and it has steadily increased year by year, until it has assumed proportions which make it rank with the best of similar establishments in Pittsburg, Buffalo and Cleveland.

A specialty is made of furnishing houses complete, from cellar to garret, and there is no article used in housekeeping that cannot be found in this mammoth store.

The main store room—40 x 200 feet, with an annex of 25 x 130 feet—is devoted to general furniture, while the second floor of the main building (formerly used as a theatre) is devoted entirely to parlor furniture. Another annex is the carpet department, in which will be found a very large and varied stock of carpets, oil cloths, matting, window shades, lace curtains, draperies, rugs, towels, table linen, etc., etc.

Another large annex, 30x60 feet, is devoted entirely to ranges and stoves of every style, and here the visitor will see not only a few but over 200 stoves!

Bedding, mattresses, springs, pillows, etc., are found in another annex 30x60 feet, while still another room, 20x40 feet, is filled with extension tables.

The lamp and crockery department is found on the first floor near the Central avenue entrance, and is complete in everything desirable in that line, while the basement, 40x200 feet, is filled with common chairs and kitchen furniture.

Mr. Hall's teams and wagons are a familiar sight in the country for many miles around Titusville, throughout the counties of Crawford, Venango, Warren and Forest, and the thousands of homes he has furnished during the past thirty years are being increased by hundreds more every succeeding year.

His liberality in giving credit to those who are commencing housekeeping has given him many lifelong customers who continually return to trade with the merchant who was liberal and accommodating to them when they first started in married life.

Liberal in all his ideas, a generous helper in all manufacturing enterprises started here, an ardent lover of our beautiful little city, and a firm believer in the efficacy of printer's ink, may he still continue to prosper and his shadow never grow less.—Titusville Herald.

See Mr. Hall's new ad. in this issue.
