ABOUT this time look out for yellow reports about what Dewey is saying.

In spite of the flood of yellow yarns intended to stop recruiting the new regiments will be filled up sooner than was expected.

THE Democratic nominee for Supreme Judge, S. Leslie Mestreat, has advised Governor Stone that he will resign as president judge of Fayette judicial district on Aug. 5.

NOR a word of news has yet been added to the dispatches sent by Otis. The round Robin correspondents rushed their criticisms into print, but their suppressed news hangs fire.

DEMOCRATIC papers that lately clamored for Alger's removal are now picturing the paterfamilias of his retirement and offering to hold the hat of Pingree in assailing the President.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S salary amounts to $37.50 per day; President McKinley's is equal to $131 per day; cabinet officers, the vice-president and the speaker of the house get $22.22 a day; senators and congressmen $13.90 and the chief justice of the supreme court, $29 a day.

DURING the last Democratic administration the papers were filled with reports of factories closed, wages reduced and an ever increasing army of unemployed. Now they are filled with reports of new enterprises, voluntary advances of wages and constantly improved relations between employers and employees.

NO DOUBT if ex-Secretary of War Alger would now turn to abusing McKinley and his administration he would be the most popular man in the country with the Democratic and yellow papers which have been abusing him so shamefully of late. If Alger is fool enough to satisfy these blood-thirsty character assassins we shall believe his retirement from the cabinet, or any other official position, came not a moment too soon.

THERE are at least two reasons why that project of ex-Secretary of the Navy Whitney to get Dewey to let the Democrats nominate him for President will fail. In the first place Dewey will not accept a nomination from any party, and, in the second place, he is a Republican. It is natural that the Democrats want to put up some man who has won distinction in the war. But they cannot accomplish anything. Every man who has figured with any prominence in the war belongs to the Republican party except Wheeler, and Wheeler talks so much like a Republican on the "imperialist" question that no Democratic convention would nominate him.

HE would indeed be a most ungracious and unpatriotic citizen who would wish to see our girls exported, but American fair ones will be given prominent place at the National Export Exposition to be held in Philadelphia during September, October and November of this year. Inasmuch as it has been decided that each province of Cuba and Porto Rico, the islands of Hawaii and each of the principal Philippine group shall be represented by an acknowledged beauty, it is now proposed that each State and Territory of the Union shall have its loveliest daughter present to take part in a beauty show of American girls. The Exposition management is serious considering the idea, but just how the invitations to the several States and Territories should be sent is not yet decided.

IT is estimated by the Treasury Department that the per capita circulation of the United States is $25.38. The increase of all kinds of money in circulation now over 1898 is $425,000,000, of which $347,000,000 is in gold coin. This is a condition of affairs which ought to satisfy men of all shades of political opinion and to convert every member of every party to the belief that the one vital principle which ought to be upheld as against every other doctrine and under all circumstances is protection to American industries. Those who wanted more money have it to the tune of $425,000,000 through protection. Those who wanted our financial system left untouched have what they wanted and have unprecedented prosperity besides. The man who would, under such circumstances, rail at protection, is such a man as would, in slang phrase, "kick at pie."

THERE was nothing equivocal in the resolutions of the Lyncing county Republicans bearing on the question of national expansion. In tones that must have been heard by the former Prophet of William Street, in his retirement at Princeton, they told of the delight which patriots felt because the flag that was torn down by the Cleveland-Bloomer breeze had again been flung to the breeze, there to remain so long as it stood for liberty and progress.

NOR were the resolutions less explicit in their treatment of the Philippine question. Conceding the fact that the acquisition of those islands forced unexpected responsibilities upon the Nation, they yet declared for the discharge of those responsibilities in a manner commensurate with their importance and the dignity of the people. It is necessary only to add that, despite the teachings of that eminent, but in this instance, mistaken statesman, the Hon. George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, these are the sentiments of so vast a majority of the American people as to make the minority appear absurd.

THE hauling down of the Stars and Stripes was never popular in this country and is never likely to become so.

COL. HAWKINS DIES.

A dispatch from San Francisco under date of Aug. 1st, says: Colonel Alex. Hawkins, of the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment, died on July 18, on board the transport Senator, enroute to this city with his regiment from Manila. His death occurred two days after the transport sailed from Yokohama. Apoplexy is said to have been the cause of death. The remains were embalmed on board the ship and brought here for shipment to Pennsylvania.

History Continues to Repeat Itself.

Peter Cooper once said: "The history of one [protective] tariff is the history of every tariff that has been enacted, the repeal of one has always brought misery and ruin, and the re-enactment has always restored prosperity."

History, since Cooper's time, has only added force to the truth of his words. It has continued to repeat itself. The revision of our tariff, made necessary by changed conditions, and the enactment of the McKinley law, a law drawn along the strictest of protectionist lines, gave the signal for the opening of factories, the building of mills, the establishment of industries, the revival of business and the rise of wages. The free trade Wilson law struck down all this prosperity almost at one blow. Idleness and want were the order of the day, and men walked the country from end to end in a vain search for work. Then came the restoration of Protection under the Dingley law and, presto, change, again. Factories opened as if by magic, and work is more plentiful than are the men to do it. In short, there has been ushered in an era of prosperity such as the world has never before seen. It ought not to take, and it will not take, many more such ups under protection and downs under free trade to make every person in the country ready to indorse Cooper's words and to make another experiment with free trade by this country an impossibility.

Another British Trust.

"The tariff is the mother of trusts." The Democratic papers all over the land are thoroughly enjoying themselves by reiterating over and over and over this declaration of Mr. Havemeyer, the sugar king. They tell us that the way to get rid of trusts is to get rid of our protective policy; that if it wasn't for the tariff there would be no trusts.

While some of these newspapers were giving this kind of arguments to their readers yesterday they printed at the same time a dispatch from London which told of the formation of a new trust there. This time it is to be a combination of the leading oil seed crushing firms of Great Britain, with a capital of more than $12,000,000. There is no tariff in England to give birth to this trust. There is nothing over there but plain free trade, and yet here is the trust going into business to control the market in its particular line.

Of course all persons who know anything about the condition on the other side of the Atlantic recognize that trusts and combinations have existed and are continually forming in England. But a little fact like that doesn't have any weight whatever with partisans who seizing upon the Havemeyer cry, will continue to defy the truth and to tell us that without protection trusts cannot thrive.

Tariff as an Issue in 1900.

Leading Democratic newspapers here and there are in favor of making "tariff reform" the chief issue in next year's campaign, and the recent tirade of Trust King Havemeyer against protection is bearing fruit.

The Philadelphia Record is one of the newspapers which believes the tariff issue should be a winner for the Democrats. "With tariff reform" as the issue, it says "the Democratic party would not only be united, but to its banner would be attracted tens of thousands of voters who can no longer be duped with the false pretense that protective duties, while enhancing the cost of the necessities of living, gave labor and high wages to workmen."

Of course the Record, in common with other Eastern Democratic newspapers, hopes that the revival of the tariff issue will dispose of sixteen to one, and it may be sincere in the belief that the Democrats would be strengthened by having such an issue. Nevertheless, we are inclined to believe it would find itself mistaken. The benefits of protection are not a delusion. The people of the United States have had one dose of tariff reform, and they do not want another. The disastrous panic following the election of a free trade Congress and President caused an industrial paralysis which threw hundreds of thousands of workmen out of employment and caused a loss to them in wages amounting to many millions of dollars. The return of prosperity following the re-enactment of the Republican protective tariff law furnished an object lesson which nobody can disregard, and the voters will not forget it.

The Republicans would be gratified to see the Democrats adopt tariff reform as the paramount issue next year.—Standard Leader.

THE Piccolo, a paper published in the city of Trieste, the principal seaport town of Austria, in the harbor of which the Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship is now at anchor, publishes an account of an eye witness of the battle of Manila Bay. Dewey, the narrator says, stood on the bridge of the Olympia fearlessly distributing orders, amid a hailstorm of shells, and stirring his men by word and deed. While the battle was on, this account says, two sailors played. "There will be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" on a banjo and fiddle.

SPEAKING of the retirement of General Alger from President McKinley's cabinet, the Puckster utters these indisputable words: He has been hounded out of office by a lot of demagogic newspapers. General Alger resigned because he did not want to embarrass the President, which was many. That a war secretary who held office during a war with a foreign power should be condemned by those whose business it is to discredit the Administration, is not strange. It would be very remarkable if he should escape it. There are some newspaper editors who, when they have succeeded in driving a man out of office by persistent and shameless exaggerations of his mistakes, plume themselves upon having done something great, and proceed to pat themselves on the back with great satisfaction. They forget that they have resorted to every art of diabolism and injustice, and they think only of the result. They have about as much reason to congratulate themselves as the old, forked-tongued gossamer, who, by slander and detraction, has driven some poor girl to suicide.

The great nation with which England

Marsh always took the finest of men who made them simply through ignorance or stupidity was proverbial. He once met P. T. Barnum, the showman, in a railroad car. He knew Barnum from his portraits, but Barnum did not know him. They entered into conversation, and Barnum told him of a number of curios which had been picked up in Mexico for his museum, but which his agent in New York, not realizing their value, offered for sale before they could be put on exhibition. "And they were sold?" asked Professor Marsh. "Yes, some little cuss up in New Haven bought them," answered Barnum. "I thought so," said the scientist, smiling and handing out his card. "I was the little cuss."

No Good in Either.

In a rural justice court a dandy, charged with hog stealing, was asked if he had anything to say.

"Only dis, suh," he replied. "Gimme justice!"

"Well," said the judge, "justice will send you up for three years."

"Well, suh, dat being de case, des gimme mercy."

"Mercy," said the judge, "will send you up for two years and six months."

"Dey ain't with a durn—neither one or 'um—justice or mercy?" he muttered as he was led away.—Atlanta Constitution.

Just as Good as She.

"John," said Mrs. Parvenu wearily, but with decision, "I must have a consultation of physicians."

"But, Maria," he protested, "you have nothing but a cold in the head."

"Can't help it," she answered. "When Mrs. Brown was sick last winter, she had a consultation of physicians, and I guess we can afford anything that the Browns can."—Chicago Post.
