DEWEY'S RECEPTION.

Two Days Demonstration In Honor of Our Admiral.

A Magnificent Naval Parade Followed By a Brilliant Display of Fireworks-A Land Parade Which Surpassed Everything of the Kind Ever Attempted-Presentation of a Flag and Golden Cup.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30,-The two days reception to Admiral Dewey has ended and will go down in history as one of the greatest honors ever bestowed upon one individual. The great naval parade, headed by the powerful warships and composed of over a thousand vessels made the grandest water spectacle ever witnessed. It took over three hours for the war vessels to pass up East river to Riverside park, where they came to anchor and reviewed the almost endless procession of craft that steamed by. Probably not less than 3,000,000 people saw this magnificent spectacle from the shores of the river and fully 500,000 more were on board of the various vessels. New York has never witnessed before anything approaching this wonderful remarkable naval dmonstration. The Columbian naval parade, the dedication of Grant's tomb and the reception of the North Atlantic squadron last fall all pale before the gigantic ovation to the sailor who, in a single morning, destroyed an enemy's fleet without the loss of a man

DEWEY CUP.

At night the fireworks set off. Never before in its history has this city ever witnessed a greater pyrotechnic and electrical display than that which took place in the harbor and waters surrounding the island of Manhattan. No more picturesque spectacle has ever been presented to so large a concourse, gathered on both shores of the river, as that of the great hulks of the battleships of Dewey's fleet slihouetted against the dark background of the sky and shining resplendently from stem to stern with myriads of incandes cent lights, while all around innumberable brilliantly decorated yachts and other river craft honored the nation's Crowds occupied every point of vantage along the New York shore, from Grant's tomb to Fifty-ninth street. From the bay the letters on the Brooklyn bridge, "Welcome Dewey," were plainly visible and were one of the features of the celebration. Admiral Dewey viewed the display from the flagship Olympia for several hours and then retired, being fatigued by the day's events. Notwithstanding these two great events it was the land parade that capped the climax and was the wonder of modern times. The earth trembled beneath the tread of 50,000 men, and the air was torn with the shouts of mil-Hops of voices. Thousands of proud men of our land and sea forces, militia of 15 states and the veterans of the civil and Spanish-American wars swelled the procession and gave it the dignity in size that it boasted in sentiment.

Admiral Dewey with Mayor Van Wyck rode at the head of the procession to the reviewing stand where for nearly five hours they remained and saw the various bodies march by. Every man, woman and child of those 5,000,000 or more who saw Dewey ride by" will cherish that sight as their richest legacy. That mighty pageant itself was as but a pigmy to the people as compared to the one colossal figure of the hero-a figure but five and a half feet high-but mighter to the throngs which lined his path than all those 35,000 men in red and blue, and gold and glitter.

New York has never seen a pagean its equal, a tribute to living or to the memory of the dead, to compare with it. There have been occasions of pomp and ceremony here before this, but Dewey Day, as September 30 will ever be known, is unique. Nothing has ever occurred with which it can be rightly

One of the events of the reception was the presentation to Admiral Dewey by Mayor Van Wyck of New York of the city's golden loving cup. It is a magnificent and artistic plece of work, made by Tiffany and cost $5,000.

Another event was the presentation to Admiral Dewey of the first admiral's flag made for and floated by Admiral Farragut. This was presented to him by a committee from Washington

DEWEY IN WASHINGTON.

A Great Tribute Paid to the Home-Com ing of the Admiral.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.- The homecoming of Admiral Dewey-for henceforth the national capital is to be his home-was made the occasion for the greatest tribute ever paid by Washington to any individual. The citizens had made every preparation to make the occasion worthy of their hero. The decorations were elaborate. Pennsylvania avenue was one mass of colored bunting along the entire line of march from the station to the White House and few private citizens failed to make some display of color on their residences. Unique designs in fairy lamps dotted the horizon; great searchlights threw broad beams of bright light across the blue sky of a clear October evening and the stately Capital stood revealed in all its queenly beauty in the powerful rays of many concentrat ed lights. The same device was used effectively in the case of other public buildings within the range of vision of Admiral Dewey and the president as they reviewed the great throng of people from the prow of the White Olym-pla, projecting from the stand at the head of Pennsylvania avenue, where on stood Dewey, the central figure of the demonstration. On the facade of the newly completed general postoffice building flamed forth two inscriptions set in electric points, the one reciting the famous message of the president directing Dewey, then thousands of miles away in the Far East, to go forth to destroy the Spanish fleet, and the other setting out the famous admiral's direction to the lamented Gridley, "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley," which marked an epoch in the history of the United States. Twelve thousand members of civic organizations paraded before him be sides tens of thousands of non-organized citizens and in a roar of cannon rockets and the blaze red fire and the thunderous cheering of the populace, and the war greeting of the head of the nation, Dewey came to the National Capitol to a welcome such as has not been known here hitherto.

The admiral's 'ourney here from New York had been one continuous ovation

Orange Free State Artillery at Volksrust Close to the Natal Border.

LONDON, Oct. 3 .- Advices from Cape Town say a dispatch received there from Charlestown, Natal, announces that 80 members of the Orange Free State artillery with six guns, have arrived at Volksrust, a point in the Transvaal, close to the Natal border, and that a marquee has been erected by the hospital authorities,

The officials at Charlestown have received a telegram from the colonial secretary in answer to an inquiry, instructing them to remain absolutely still and offer no resistance. No women have been left in Volksrust and the natives are leaving Charlestown. The officials still remain but are ready to leave at a moment's notice.

General Joubert, the vice president of the South African republic, and commander-in-chief of the Transvaal forces, has arrived at Volksrust and his presence there will probably have a calming effect. The advices from Johannesburg say no commandeering took place there Saturday. They add that many of the Boers are anxious to leave and that many of the young men are forming corps of civilian police and are acting In conjunction with the merchants' association. The town is quiet. The merchants' committee announces that British subjects under a permit, will be allowed to remain and that consular letters and passports will be accepted if the persons presenting them are of good character.

Portugal's Position.

MADRID, Oct. 3 .- El Liberal declares that Spain cannot remain indifferent to the events transpiring in the Transvaal in view of the existence of the Anglo-Portuguese treaty, by the terms of which in the event of Great Britain becoming engaged in a war with another power, Portugal is obliged to mobilize 100,000 men, and allow Great Britain to use her forts and arsenals.

El Liberal follows up this extraordinary assertion with the statement that Portugal will cede Great Britan Lourenzo Marquez, on the north side of Delagoa bay, and Mozambique, on the east coast of Africa, and calls on the government to take discreet measures in the interest of Spain.

Would Not Interfere.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. - Charles D Pierce, consul general of the Orange Free State, received a cablegram relative to affairs in the Transvaal. Consul Pierce said that the cable was of such a nature that he could not make it public, but he was at liberty to say that the president of the Orange Free State had made an ineffectual effort to induce President McKinley to request other powerful nations to act with the United States as arbitrators between England and the Transvaal. Mr. Pierce said that the warm and close relations between Great Britain and the United States prevented President McKinley moving in so mo

Yellow Fever Report From Havana I Very Satisfactory.

HAVANA, Oct. 3.-The yellow fever report for September shows that there were 18 deaths, eight of the victims being Americans and eight Spaniards. The others were one Frenchman and one German. The total number of cases during the month was 54. There are 12 cases now on hand, mostly convalscent.

Surgeon Major Davis says he is well satisfied. It was generally expected that September would be the worst month. He believes that within the next 30 days there will not be more than two or three cases. The weather is cooler and the city is clean.

WRECK OF A STEAMER.

The Scotsman Ran Ashore Off the Coast of Belle Isle.

Fifteen of the Passengers, All Women and Children, Were Drowned-Two Hundred and Fifty Survivors on the Baren Rocks For Four Days-Looting and Robbery By the Crew.

MONTREAL, Sept. 39 .- Two hundred and fifty scantily clad, baggage bereft men, women and children were on board of the Intercolonial special which steamed into Bonaventure depot. They comprised the greater number of those who sailed from Liverpool on Sept. 14 on board the steamship Scotsman, bound for Montreal, who were wrecked on the shores of the straits of Belle Isle at 2:30 on the morning of the 21st.

It was not only a tale of shipwreck that they had to tell, but one of death, of suffering and pillage. For 15 at least of the Scotman's passengers per ished; all suffered cruelly from cold and privation and almost the worst horror of all, the men who were supposed to succor and assist those com mitted to their care, in the hour of need, turned on the helpless passengers and with loaded guns and re volvers, compelled them to part with the few valuables saved.

Captain Skirmshire and his officers were noble exceptions. The passengers ascribe to them the role of he roes. For the honor of the British merchant marine the crime may not be ascribed to the men engaged in it, but to a gang of wharf rats and hangers-on, picked up in the docks at Liverpool, to replace the usual crew of the Scotsman, which joined the seamans strike on the other side.

All of the passengers who per ished were women. This is accounted for by the fact that they were the occupants of the first boat which left the steamer after she struck, and which was swemped before it could get clear of the ship. The Scottman sailed from Liverpool on Sept. 14. The passage of the Straits of Belle Isle was a fair one, though the green crew in the stoke hole lessened the speed of the ship, so that when she reached Belle Isle she was about a day's run behind her usual average. Entering the Straits of Belle Isle on Thursday night a dense fog blanketed down on the vessel and made navigation a matter of great caution at all times in the straits a precarious undertaking. The speed of the ship was reduced and she felt her way in. At 2 o'clock there was a shock underneath the keel of the vessel, followed by another and another. The passengers were asleep in their berths, and all were awakened by the shocks.

On deck the thick bank of fog shut out the sight of shore. Passengers ran hither and thither, but Captain Skrimshire and his officers went among them, amination of the ship told the captain that she would be a total wreck and that she must be abandoned at once. A port lifeboat was lowered and in this many of the women and children were placed. Hardly was it clear of the ship when it capsized, throwing its occupants into the water. Those who perished were in this boat. Some were saved, for the ship had listed to port and several ladies were washed back on to the deck. One lady clung to a rope for two hours before being rescued. The skin was torn from her

Meanwhile disgraceful scenes were being enacted on board. Hardly had the vesel struck before men from the stoke hole rushed to the cabins, and, slitting open valises and bags, with their knives, took ail the valuables they could lay hands on. Several of them fired shotguns and tried to force men to leave the cabins. It is said that some of the steerage passengers joined the firemen in looting the baggage of the first class passengers. In more than one instance rings were torn from the fingers of fainting and dying women. Captain Skrimshire and his officers, busy in caring for the saftey of the passengers. had no time to interfere with the van-

Many of the passengers suffered from the exposure. After much difficulty some overcoats and shawls were secured for the women, nearly overwone of whom had left the ship in their

The passengers were obliged to climb up a rocky cliff nearly 300 feet high. before they could find a place large enough to rest. Here they stayed on the bare rock for four days and nights. The first night they had absolutely no shelter, but on Saturday the captali sent up some tarpaulins and blankets. These were very acceptable, as it had rained hard all night and was most bitterly cold.

A number of the passengers attempted to reach the lighthouse, which was eight miles away, as the crow flies. To do this it was necessary to climb about 1,200 feet higher before a practicable path could be reached, and there the difficulties had only begun. The path is rocky and uneven and is crossed by hugh clifts and gullies which were very deep. Altogether the distance by land must have been over 16 miles, and one gentleman took 11 hours to reach it, and only rested half an hour on the

It was not until the 26th that the Montfort came along and was signalled by the Belle Isle lighthouse. A number of the Scotsman's passengers had walked there from the wreck, eight miles, as the crow flies, but nearly 10 by the road. After bringing these people on board the ship, she proceeded to where the Scotsman lay. The weather was bright and clear. As soon as practicable the boats were launched and the work began.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29 .- The demand for all grades of pig iron seems to increase as the season advances, and the total output for the coming year is rapidly being bought up. The American Manufacturer, in its 1 s. issue, states that the Bessemer Pig Iron agard tion has sold all its product up to April, and is taking orders for delivery only between April and October of next year. This means not less than $25 will be demanded for Bessemer pig iron for the

The Story of the Destruction of the Ida Villa Told By Miss Stahl.

CALCUTTA, Sept. 29 .- The story of the destruction of the Ida Villa branch of the Calcutta girls' school, supported by the American Methodists, is related by Miss Stahl, who saved many of the children. A landslide compelled the occupants to leave the buildings and Miss Stahl guiding the children commenced a perilous climb, finally gaining the Mall road. All the time rain was pouring down in torrents, the earth was shaking and the children were terrifled. The blackness of the night falling boulders, the crashing of trees and fears of the earthquake finally compelled the party to return to the Ida Villa. Even then Miss Stahl had a struggle with the children who, fearing the collapse of the house, sought to fly into the night. Misses Reid and Soundry finally made another attempt and escaped with the children. They were, however, overwhelmed by a landslide. The teachers escaped but many of the children perished.

In the meantime the Ida Villa had been also destroyed. Will Burlee, the sole survivor, says that when it was seen that escape was impossible, a sister made them all kneel in prayer and while kneeling, the house was swept n.way

It is estimated that the loss to the tea garden proprietors alone is about $5,000,000.

Queen Victoria on hearing of the disaster telegraphed her profound sympathy to the bereaved families.
