

1900 NOVEMBER 1900

Calendar for November 1900 showing days of the week and dates from 1 to 30.

No more business killers should be nominated for President.

New York's population of 7,368,000 prefer to do business with a 100c dollar.

Aguiñaldo and Agonello are getting acquainted with the American people.

You can't fool the people by pretending that the paramount issue is something else.

Among the headquarters that can now put up the shutters are those at Hong Kong.

Adlai can drop into the Senate as an expert and watch how a rough rider presides.

Mr. Bryan promised not to consent to re-election as President, but not to refuse a third nomination.

If the Philadelphia Times hadn't flopped to Bryan we don't think the majority for McKinley would have been so large.

The only doubt about Illinois henceforth will be as to whether the Democrats can hold the Republican lead down below the 75,000 mark.

The alliance between Bryan and Aguiñaldo has ended by the expiration of the American partner. The Tagal end of the Bryanite combine will now subside.

"Bryan will be elected and then I will be on top," said Senator Wellington of Maryland during the campaign. He is on top of the refuse heap, with Webster Davis. Did ever two men commit greater political blunders.

The new delegation to Congress from Pennsylvania will consist of 26 Republicans and four Democrats. This is a Republican gain of six members, the present delegation being composed of 20 Republicans and 10 Democrats.

The four Democrats recently elected are Howard Muehler, Eighth district; H. D. Green, Ninth district; R. K. Polk, Seventeenth district; J. K. P. Hall, Twenty-eighth district. The last three named are present members.

The election of 1900 has interrupted the sequence in the pendulum swings in presidential canvasses, which have been under way for many years. It has ended the see-sawing of New York and Indiana in quadrennial elections. These two coincidences were counted on by the Bryanites to continue. But superstition does not count in canvasses like this. Bryanism was so infamous that neither the similitudes nor the parallels could save it from being smashed by the American people.

Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota, will soon be retired to private life. He was elected to the Senate nearly six years ago as a Republican, but when the tree silver heresy struck the country he was one of the first to espouse that doctrine. Since then he has been a pestiferous bore, not only to the Senate but to the entire country. The electors of South Dakota on Tuesday settled Mr. Pettigrew's aspirations for re-election by electing a legislature which is Republican in both houses and distinctly anti-Pettigrew.

The United States voting machines were again used in this city. To say that they gave almost universal satisfaction would be simply to tell the truth. It is true also that there was some dissatisfaction expressed over the trifling hitch in the operation of the machine in the Second district of the Fourth ward. But this was only a small annoyance and had no effect in changing the general opinion of the people which was in their favor. It was possible for voters to cast their ballots at the rate of 120 an hour on any machine in use in the city, and fully one-half the vote was cast before 9 o'clock in the morning. The total vote of the city was recorded and counted and the result announced in New York city within 20 minutes after the polls closed. If any other city in the state made such a favorable record it has not yet been reported in the press dispatches.—N. Y. Journal.

McKinley's Great Plurality.

There is no longer any doubt that McKinley's popular plurality over Bryan will be much larger than it was four years ago. Then he had a plurality of 693,514. The present outlook is that his plurality will not be far from 800,000. In 1896 Gen. Palmer, the Presidential candidate of the gold Democrats, received 133,421 votes. It now seems certain that McKinley's plurality this year as compared with four years ago will be increased by perhaps 50,000 more than the entire vote cast for Palmer. This would indicate that practically all the Palmer men of four years ago had voted for McKinley this year and that at least 50,000 more Democrats had been attracted to the support of the Republican ticket because of the prosperous times and the expansion policy. This, however, would hardly be a correct conclusion, because a considerable portion of the increased plurality of McKinley is due to the falling off in the Democratic pluralities in the Southern States, where thousands of Democrats who really desired the success of McKinley but were afraid or disinclined to vote for him, remaining away from the polls. McKinley's majority over all the candidates this year will probably exceed 800,000.

How It Happened.

The landslide for McKinley and Roosevelt was what everybody expected. Mr. Bryan, who had taken the conservative old Democratic party by the nose of the neck and dragged it out into the mire of Populism, and a lot of other wild-eyed issues, did not have the confidence even of the leading men of that party. They were appalled at the audacity of this Don Quixote of Reform, and stood almost speechless in the face of his mad pranks. He put a five silver plank into their platform against the judgment of the ablest and best men of the party. He insisted upon hauling down the flag in the Philippines in the face of a treacherous and ungrateful foe, who should be a friend, and who is now trying to beat back the tide of civilization and progress to realize his savage dreams of empire.

Mr. Bryan outraged all of the sacred traditions and obliterated the ancient landmarks of Democracy by attempting to divide our people into classes and to array us against the other.

Possessing great power of endurance, immense lung capacity and the talent for talk, he rushed about the country saying many foolish and unstatesmanlike things and appealing to the prejudices instead of the reason of the people. He talked as though, if elected President, he would at once usurp the power of Congress and the courts, and become the Nemesis of evil and injustice everywhere. He bore aloft on a blood red banner and painted devils of Imperialism, Trusts, and Militarism, and assured the people that they would be eaten up by these monsters unless they followed him.

By refusing to be frightened at these pumpkin devils of an imagination made ferid with the fire of an intense ambition to gain the Presidency, the American people exhibited a degree of sober common sense that argues well for the perpetuity of our institutions. Hence there is abundant reason why everyone of us, of all faiths and of all parties, should rejoice and be glad.—Parry Spirit.

Forest County and the Twenty-Eighth District.

The official table of the vote cast in this county at the recent election, published this week, shows Forest county up to splendid advantage as one of the rock-ribbed Republican counties of the State. For the head of ticket, President McKinley, the Republicans cast 1309 votes, the largest ever given any candidate in the county, and the heaviest majority, 594, ever given a National or State candidate. The nearest approach to it was in 1894, when Governor Hastings had 536 of a plurality over Slinger, which was caused largely by the stay-at-home Democrats. The President leads both in the number and majority of votes received, a thing which does not often happen. Col. Clearwater's vote and majority for Congress are both under McKinley's. This was the case in the entire district, indicating that the Republicans lacked confidence in their ability to elect him, together with a tendency to trade where it could be done to advantage of their local ticket. Had the people believed what the Republican papers of the district were telling them and what they kept prominently before them during the progress of the campaign, Col. Clearwater's majority would have been as great as McKinley's in this district, which is about 1500. There is no use crying over "spilt milk," but we cannot help regretting, with all the rest of the good Republicans of this county and district, that so splendid an opportunity was lost sight of.

Much of the credit for the excellent fight put up on the Congressional contest, aside from Col. Clearwater's personal popularity, and good work, is due Editor Baker of the Ridgeway Advocate, who was untiring in his efforts to compass the election of the splendid Republican candidate. He was ably assisted by the Republican papers of the district. They could preach the right gospel but couldn't do all the voting.

This Congressional District.

The official vote of the 28th Congressional district as canvassed last Thursday is as follows:

Table showing vote counts for Clearwater, Hall, Clarion, Centre, Clearfield, Elk, and Forest in the 28th Congressional District.

Halls plurality..... 18,411 19,632

Col. Quay's Victory.

The utter rout of the yellow journals of Philadelphia is another subject for congratulation in the recent election. Throughout the entire campaign, subsidized by a page advertisement from John Wanamaker, they have left no stone unturned to defeat the election of Colonel Quay to the United States Senate. Colonel Quay's statement to the press before leaving for Florida shows that in the coming Legislature he is certain to have over 150 votes on the first ballot in joint assembly out of a total of 254. This assures his return to his old seat beyond the shadow of a doubt. It is a fitting climax to Republican successes all over the country that Pennsylvania's next Legislature will be controlled by the stalwart Republicans of the State. The insurgents, bolters and party wreckers have been taught a much needed lesson. They have been effectually rebuked for the violence and abuse they have heaped against the Republican State organization and the slander and vilification of Mr. Quay. John Wanamaker has been turned down and the papers which he controlled in Philadelphia and elsewhere thoroughly discredited by the people all over the State. Henceforth the Republican party will move forward more united and determined than ever before.

Official Vote of Forest County, November 6, 1900.

Large table showing the official vote of Forest County for various candidates including McKinley, Bryan, and various Congressmen and State officials.

Majorities—McKinley, 595; Hardman, 583; Grow, 581; Foerderer, 577; Clearwater, 518; Dault, 50; Dottor, 501; Irwin, 503. Barker, Middle-of-the-Road Pop., received 4 votes for President, and Dabs, Socialist, 1 for the same office.

McKinley Will Have 305 Electoral Votes.

If the Democrats, under the Goebel law, don't steal Kentucky, which was fairly won by the Republicans, McKinley will have 305 votes in the electoral college, against 142 for Bryan, as follows:

Will Interfere Next Time.

A Leviston man was passing through a country district near the city one day, when off in a field he saw a boy throwing stones through the glass of a deserted house. The man's first impulse was to shout to him to stop, but then he thought that 'he boy's father should have taught him better things, and it was not his duty to chastise another man's children for their wickedness. So he went home that night and began to tell the instance at supper table. His boy, who had been out in the country hunting all day, began to turn colors and finally broke out:

"Well, ya, you needn't be so roundabout. You know it was me, and I guess the man who owns it knew, for I saw him running after me down the road."

Before that evening was passed, sure enough, the owner of the old house drove up and demanded the ray for the glass—$1.34—Augusta (Me.) Journal.

The Great Harry.

England's first war vessel of any pretensions was called the Great Harry. She was a double decker and was built in 1509 by order of Henry VII, from whom she has derived her name. Up to the year 1545 the Great Harry was the only vessel of the kind in the British service. She caught fire in 1553 and was totally destroyed. The Great Harry was of peculiar construction. Her stem and stern stuck high above the water, and she had four masts, three flush decks, a half deck, quarter deck and roundhouse. She had a capacity of 1,000 tons, carried 80 guns, was 128 feet long, 28 feet beam and cost £14,000. The Great Harry's spars were very tall, and she was very "crank" in a storm.

Didn't Take.

"Mamma," said little Ethel, "Mrs. Gayley's husband isn't dead, is he?"

"No, dear."

"Then what's she going to be married again for?"

"Never mind, dear. You can't understand such things."

"Oh, I know," exclaimed the little girl. "It's just like getting wedded. It didn't take the first time, did it?"—Philadelphia Press.
