County Committee Meeting.

The members of the Republican County Committee of Forest County will meet at the Sheriff's office, Tionesta, Pa., Monday evening, (court week) February 25, 1901, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of naming a date for holding the Republican Primary Election and the transaction of such other business as may come before the Committee. A full attendance is desired. Q. JAMIESON, Chairman, Tionesta, Pa., Feb. 11, 1901.

REPORTS are frequent that Mexico is considering the adoption of the gold standard. That country will not have a lot to go for an example of the fact that the old standard pays.

It costs $25 to spit on the floor of a car in New York City. A private citizen has entered the arena as prosecutor and is making a business of seeing that the law is enforced.

QUEEN Wilhelmina allows her husband the interest on 50,000,000 guilders, or $20,000,000. At 5 per cent the young man's salary will be over $1,500,000 a week, which ought to do for a start.

FOR the first time since the Grand Army was organized the mortality in the order last year went beyond 10,000. Within four or five years one-half of the 400,000 members in 1890 will have passed from the rolls of the living.

WHEN Porto Rico came into the possession of the United States there was not a single school building on the island. Last month the Bureau of Education issued one order which calls for the building of sixteen school houses in different districts. In one district ten municipalities offered a site to secure the school.

This country was compelled by disturbed conditions to intervene in Cuba when the island belonged to Spain. In forming their republic the Cubans should be careful not to ignore the rights of this country as well as the claims of common gratitude. Our interest in Cuba is not less than it was before the war with Spain.

A PHILADELPHIA newspaper that protests most vehemently against slot machine gambling in that city is at the same time running a gambling contest in its columns offering a locomotive to the person who guesses the exact number of persons who will attend the automobile exhibition. This is a case of "do as we say but don't do as we do." - Doylestown Republican.

THE men who composed the Army of the Cumberland have had a remarkable record since the war. Three of that army's Generals have become President - Grant, Garfield and Harrison. Every commanding General of the United States Army, with the exception of General Miles, served in the Army of the Cumberland. Seventeen members of that body have been in the Cabinet, thirty-eight in Congress.

In order to expose the lobbyists who have besieged the Nebraska Legislature, Mr. William Thomassen, a member from Hall county, recently agreed to introduce two of their bills directed against certain corporations, and in presenting the measures to the House he explained the purpose of their authors - namely, to extract money from the corporations for the defeat of the bills. The lobbyists were present during the exposure, but hastily withdrew. A resolution of inquiry was unanimously adopted. Nebraska is not the only legislature in which this novel method of exposing lobbyists might be tried with profit.

Men who stand near the President are still predicting that an extra session of Congress will be held. Perhaps they are correct. The Cuban question may make a called session necessary, and there is a prospect that this will not be the only issue which can not safely be made to wait till next December. The Philipine civil government question is of considerable importance also, and this may fall in the present Congress for lack of time. The term ends one week from next Monday, and many of the appropriation bills are still unacted upon by the Senate. In every Congress some urgent legislation drops for lack of time to consider it, though in most cases this can be postponed to the next Congress without serious detriment to the country.

Of considerable importance is Judge Fursman's ruling in the Kennedy trial, now on in New York, that experts in handwriting shall not testify in the case. This decision is based on the common law by which there were two ways of proving handwriting; one by a witness who had seen a person writing, the other by a witness who had been in correspondence with the person and who was familiar with his hand through having received letters from him. Judge Fursman holds that this rule has not been so far amended as to permit experts to testify to matters incidental to the main issue. If the decision is taken as a precedent it will, aside from the Malinca case, do away with the practice, so increasingly expensive, of confounding a long line of experts who have sworn one way with another line equally long, who swear the opposite way, and the intricate theories of the experts, valuable as they undoubtedly are, will have to be confined to other channels of usefulness. - Phila. Times.

Mrs. Nation Justified.

"I've been in Kansas and I've plugged up against some of the dope called whiskeys, that is sold in that 'free state,'" said a man who has been away from home to a Star reporter yesterday, "and I don't blame the Kansas Car-Nation for doing a George Washington smashing stunt. The only wonder to me has been that the customers themselves after tasting two or three doses of that hell mixture under their belts, haven't gone into the hatching business themselves. Talk about DuBois whiskey, which is guaranteed to make a man feel like licking his mother. Why the stuff which they manufacture in the back room of a Kansas joint is enough to make a man crave a desire for murdering every long whiskered Populist on the prairie. If any Bradford drink thrower gives me a Carrie Nation cocktail made out of Kansas booze, there'll be a job for Con Lane and a new wand ad. for a bartender in the newspapers. Carrie is all right, but it's kind of funny that she hasn't had help from some of the booze fighters themselves out there. They have a bigger kick coming than the temperance crowd, for the totalitarians never had to go against the Forty-rod in the joints. - Bradford Star.

King Edward VII.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, totally ignoring the conventionalities of court etiquette, and stepping boldly into the charmed circle which is presumed to protect a king from the coarse criticisms of vulgar people, sails into His Royal Highness after this fashion: "Albert Edward has done nothing but waste his days in idleness or worse. His activities have chiefly been displayed in various kinds of sport. He has not been the patron of art or literature or science, though such patronage has ever been deemed the duty of princes. He has led the way to no reform and left no mark upon the administration. "He is master of no science, not even the military. He has neither aided his people to prepare for conflict nor led them in war. He is the only crown prince in Europe, as His-narcok truly said, 'never seen upon a battle-field.' His principal accomplishment is his social tact, and his chief distinction that of an arbiter of fashion. He has done nothing and he is nothing more than hundreds of other Englishmen born to wealth and high station. "When such a man comes to the throne of the British empire, what remnant of the 'divine right of kings' can attach to his person? How can strong and honorable men - men who have done work in the world - kneel and kiss his hand with out a sense of disgust and a feeling of degradation? How can they truly 'honor' such a king and sincerely pray that he may long be spared to reign over them? How can they regard him as superior to the rest of the world? They can only do these things and all Englishmen honest with themselves must admit the fact. "The accession of Albert Edward to the British throne, not so much a reason of what he is as on account of what he is not, bids fair to give the deathblow to the monarchial idea among the English-speakers of Europe. Victoria the Great, by her power of her womanhood, kept alive that waning ideal for more than sixty years. Now it seems about to vanish. And it is well for the world that this should be."

Business Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running ear, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Letter to C. F. Cropp. Dear Sir: Is a gallon of paint a gallon of paint, or half-a-gallon? Sometimes one, sometimes the other. E. P. Lynch, and his predecessor, Delhi, N. Y., sold a well-known Mixed Paint for twenty years - it's a good mixed paint as mixed paints go. N. Avery owns two houses exactly alike there. He painted one four years ago with this Mixed Paint - took twelve gallons. Last spring he painted the other house with Devoe; bought 12 gallons and had six gallons left. Same painter: George Gilbert. Same result so far as looks go. But the point of this tale is: 1st, that a paint is dear or cheap according to what it is; no matter about the price. 2nd, that a gallon of one kind of Paint can contain twice as much paint as a gallon of another kind of paint. Devoe goes twice as far as Mixed Paint - two to one - but that isn't all. This story, however, skips the rest - how it wears is the rest. Another same town - Ferguson & Tuompson's store was painted some years ago with this same Mixed Paint - 32 gallons. Repainted last spring with Devoe. Mr. Lynch said 16 gallons would be enough. They have 3 gallons left. Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO.
