

THE FOREST REPUBLICAN.

J. E. WENK, - EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1901.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Rates—County Treasurer, $10. State Delegate, $5. County Surveyor, $3. Cash must accompany the order for announcement.

Primary—Saturday, May 4, 1901.

COUNTY TREASURER.

We are authorized to announce CALVIN M. AINSER, of Tionesta, as a candidate for County Treasurer, subject to Republican usage.

STATE DELEGATE.

We are authorized to announce ELMER L. SUTTON, of Jenks township, as a candidate for Delegate to the Republican State Convention.

ACUINALDO's capitol is still rolling on, but it cannot be said that he is gathering much moss.

FROM a Democratic point of view it will be treason for an American soldier to discover gold in the Philippines.

PRIZE-FIGHTING is to be transplanted to the island of Bermuda, with John L. Sullivan as the boss on the in the bunch.

THE report that Mr. Bryan "has already made arrangements for a third nomination for President" is so sudden!

COL. BRYAN was impersonated by a hotel waiter in Buffalo last week. This is what the Colonel gets by attending so many dollar banquets.

ALL of the spring elections in Kansas are on the "wet or dry" issue. Kansas seems to be suffering more than any other state from the Bourbonic plague.

UNCLE SAM's benevolent industry is without limit. The official spelling and pronunciation of 40,000 names of coast-wise places in the Philippines are given in a new government publication.

PROMISING gold mines have been discovered in Samoa. In nearly all the regions opening to civilization gold is found by prospectors. The distribution of the metal is wider than has been supposed.

BOSS CROKER holds no official position in New York, but he cables instructions from England to all the Tammany men filling offices in the city. That is how the Democratic party runs a town when the people are foolish enough to trust it.

THE Washington Star complains that there were too many Pennsylvania troops in the inaugural parade. There were not too many of the Pennsylvania boys at Gettysburg, nor were they considered superfluous at Fredericksburg. Come to think of it, we do not recall that they were adjudged a nuisance in the little affair with Spain.—Altoona Gazette.

—The Democrats do not feel nearly so bad about the inauguration of McKinley as they imagined last summer they would if the event took place. The Democrats have been doing well in their business, and the average man is a business man first, and a politician when he has time. Just now he has no time, and so is devoting himself to business, and, thanks to the wisdom of McKinley and the Republican party, is doing well with that.

THE sudden death of Congressman Marriot Brosius, which occurred at his home in Lancaster on Friday night of last week, from a paralytic stroke, has shocked his friends all over the State, and takes perhaps the most brilliant one of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress. There were no more powerful orators in Congress than Mr. Brosius, and his services to the country as a statesman will be very greatly missed and the loss lamented throughout the entire nation.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY begins his second term more popular and more respected than he was when he began his first. He is popular even with his political enemies. He has the absolute confidence of the country. The people are convinced that whatever new questions may come up between now and 1905 will be handled by their tried and experienced chief magistrate in that statesmanlike manner in which those grave questions which have arisen since 1896 have been dealt with.—Chicago Tribune.

A new series of postage stamps will soon appear; the Buffalo exposition series. The one cent stamp of green color will have a picture of a lake steamer to represent the great transportation industry of the inland seas in which Buffalo is so much interested. The two cent stamp printed red will have a railway train; the four cent stamp in red and brown, an automobile; the five cent stamp, in blue, a picture of the new bridge at Niagara Falls; the eight cent, lilac, a picture of the lock at Sault Ste. Marie; and the ten cent, a light house, an ocean steamer.

EVER the world's only Queen regnant is threatened by the anarchists. A plot against the life of Holland's Wilhelmina has been discovered. The anarchist's hand is against every ruler, monarchial or republican, woman or man. Occasionally an anarchist falls, as several of them did in the case of William II's grandfather. Sometimes one of them weakens at the critical point and takes his own life instead, as the person did the other day who was selected to kill Victor Emmanuel III. Crown wearers have their troubles, but they have certain compensations which promise to prevent the guild from becoming extinct.

CONGRESS has adjourned and left in the hands of the President the entire control of "insular affairs," which includes both Cuba and the Philippines. Of course the opposition is boiling over with manufactured indignation over the dictatorial powers "assumed by the President," but that is all their policy is able to attempt. They have offered no better course and propose to remain where they have no responsibility to assume, no policy to formulate, nothing to do but to find fault. They know very well that the President urged Congress to settle these problems, himself and not leave them for him to settle, and that if he is an autocrat he is a most unwilling one.

The Dead Ex-President.

A close observer writes of the late General Harrison, whose death occurred at his home in Indianapolis, Ind., last Wednesday morning: Mr. Harrison's reputation was that of a cold, unsympathetic man. This, however, was all on the surface. Underneath, he was sympathetic and kind-hearted, but impervious to argument from politicians when once he had made up his mind. He had quite as much resolution in this way as had Mr. Cleveland. He was a scholarly man, fond of reason, and through his long experience in making public addresses, developed a fine English style. His speeches throughout the country, after his election as President, did more to give the public the proper estimate of his all-around abilities than any other acts of his public career. While everyone conceded that he was a man of very superior quality and unusual acquirements, he was not popular in the ordinary sense of the word. He lacked one element, called magnetism, which is used to explain the power of attraction and of fascination enjoyed by many public men of no particular virtue or predominating ability. A politician of the magnetic class attracts attention the moment he enters the room. He begins to please before he says a word. Mr. De- pue has this quality. Mr. Blaine had it to a pre-eminent degree. Harrison's strength lay in his correctness, and yet many hated him for that very correctness.

The secret of the friendships of the men who were true to him lay in the fact that Mr. Harrison never changed. He was always the same to his friends. Not one of the intimate associates who were near to him before he was president could find the slightest change in his manner after he became president. And yet no man was ever less influenced by his friends in his public acts. He was a character whom everyone would be obliged to respect, but there was nothing in his nature or requirements which would develop passionate and enthusiastic following. After his retirement from the presidency he spent much of his time in lecturing before colleges and similar institutions, and in writing for periodicals, beside doing some law practice. His most eminent service was as counsel for the United States before the Venezuelan Arbitration Commission. There was some gossip about attempting to renominate him for President in 1896, but there were no indications that he gave countenance to it. His state heartily supported McKinley against the wishes of the ruling bosses, who were also Harrison's enemies. He was at that time a warm friend of McKinley, but was unable to follow the President in support of the policy of expansion, though he issued a public letter during the campaign last year recommending McKinley's re-election, which had a marked effect in determining many votes. McKinley appointed him one of the arbitrators for the United States, under the compact arranged at the peace conference held at The Hague, and Gen. Harrison accepted the honor.

Letter to C. A. Lanson.

Tionesta, Pa. Dear Sir: You understand grinding wheat, buckwheat, rye, oats and corn. We understand grinding white lead and white zinc. The two sorts of grinding are not much alike. Very likely oats and wheat behave very differently in the mill, and you manage them differently; we know very little about your work; don't need to; we'd rather depend on you.

But we paint your house and mill and out-buildings; perhaps you'd be glad to know about grinding paint; for some people mix their paint with a stick in a tub. We use lead and zinc—nothing else, and our zinc is as tough as your oats. Tub mixers imagine they mix it. They don't; they can't. Takes grinding to mix lead and zinc.

They are both white. Tub mixers don't know it; but tub mixed lead and zinc is a streak of one alongside of a streak of the other.

We grind as you grind; and our paint is lead and zinc ground together, mixed intimately; it is neither lead nor zinc, but lead and zinc; the lead is lost and the zinc is lost; each lost in the other; both lost in the mixture. Lead chalks and zinc peels; lead and zinc ground together hang on and protect each other. We take care of your mill outside; you take care of it inside.

Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & Co. P. S.—James D. Davis sells our paint in your section.

WASHINGTON.

Threshermen, Saw Mill Men, and users of Boilers and Engines.

Special attention is called to the New Huber for 1901. Six to twelve horse power, one belt runs the entire machine, the tension on every pulley is just the same, one tightener is all that is required. Our claims are: the nearest perfect separator, the greatest capacity for saving the grain and the best cleaner for all kinds of grain.

THE DUST COLLECTOR

Is a great invention. Every thresherman should have it.

THE WIND STACKER

Another great invention deserves special mention. The stockmen are relieved of a life-killing job and the operator of the machine can crowd it to its utmost capacity. A stack built by wind blast will keep far better than any other way.

SAW MILLS.

Capacity, 5 to 25,000 feet lumber per day. Patent feed and backing devices gains 30 to 40 per cent.

BOILERS AND ENGINES.
