SODUS, N. Y., March 19.-James Cole, aged 65, was struck by electric car 53 on the Rochester and Sodus Bay rallway here Sunday night and ground to pieces. The passengers had been taking to the cars from a high snow bank and it supposed that Mr. Cole suffered a stroke of paralysis after he had reached the summit of the bank and fell to the tracks a distance of six feet. Owing to the high snow banks the motorman did not see the man lying on the tracks until it was too late to stop the car.

WORRY AT CUSTOM HOUSES.

Women Should Know the Law Before They Travel Alone.

If there is one thing more than another which makes a woman wish that she had never been born under the stars and stripes, it is the annoyance and worry entailed upon her through the customs in-spection when she returns from Europe for the first time.

The discomfort begins about the time the lightship is sighted—it may be the day previous. Everybody asks everybody else for advice. Old travelers swap experiences, harassing and disconcerting the green traveler with grewsome tales of these ogres, the customs officials. Signing the declaration down the bay as to what is dutiable and what is not first introduces you to them. It is not a happy moment. You are not yourself. happy moment. You are not yourself. The tales of the old travelers—more often the wide margin which they have left for the tales untold-have worked you into a state bordering on nervous frenzy, and you are almost convinced that you yourself must be a real live "suspect" for whom the authorities have long been looking.

There is so little definiteness to the law regulating clothing it is difficult to know whether or not you ought to declare old dresses bought in America four years ago and renovated in Paris, with the addition of a little new trimming. Of course, it is presupposed that no portion of your dress has been utilized for storing away questionable articles.

One regulation gives you your first selp. Presents must be declared, no matter how small their value. The term is elastic, however, and does not need to include anything which can be used by yourself. Paying the duty on your presents settles the question.

Another secret of success lies in your smile. If you have traveled much on the continent and looked after your own bag-gage, you have learned the value of a smile—a distinctly feminine smile, bearing good will to man. It is a great lever and as useful in New York as abroad.

Again, it is necessary that you be among the very first in eigning your declaration, before the official is worn out by the idiotic and evasive answers of both men and women, for when the question comes of declaring nothing dutiable among one's luggage men as well as women are given to evasion.

Once on the wharf the same rapidly must be used in getting your baggage to gether and then securing your inspector while he is still in a good humor. It is well to remember that this inspector uses his own judgment to a great extent. The thing is to make his judgment and your own agree. He looks you over and decides what sort of clothing suits you and then examines your trunk to see whether you and its contents harmonize. If you have declared your presents you must show one or two of them and state the price of each. When the duty is paid you walk off while the examinations are but just beginning.-New York Herald.

Menn of a Januarese Beauty.

The satin skinned, almond eyed flowe of Japan is very fastidious about her food and does not suffer like her Caueasian sister from indigestion. She begins in the morning when she awakes by eating two little green plums pickled in vinegar and rolled in sugar. A cup of tea completes this almost traditional tea completes this minost traditional breakfast of Japan. The dinner is of the drollest composition. It is brought in on a tray of red lacquer in microscopic cups with covers and consists of a hashed sparrow, a stuffed prawn, segweed with a sauce, a salt sweetment and a sugared

After all these dishes, which are a mere make believe, a wooden howl is brought in, bound around with copper and filled to the very brim with rice plainly cooked in water. The flower of Japan fills another large bowl from it, darkens its snowy white surface with a black sauce flavored with fish, mixes It all together, carries the bowl to her lips and crams down all the rice, shoveling it with her two chopsticks into her throat. And so ends the dinner,—Boston Gazette.

Wrong Man Got His Nickel.

A 5-year-old boy boarded a street car at Craig street with his mother a few days ago. He was an important little chap, and his mother gave him a nickel with which to pay his fare. He was very particular in his inquiries as to who to pay the money to, and the uniformed conductor was pointed out to him. The conduct-or came along presently and took his nickel. An old man sitting next to him gave the conductor a dime, and the latter gave him the little boy's nickel in change.

The child was perfectly astounded. He gazed at the old man a moment as though wondering how any one could be so unjust; then he burst into tears.

"Manuma." he sobbed, "I des gave the pliceman my nichel, and that old man stuck it in his pocket."

Nothing would satisfy the lad. His mother gave him another nickel to solace him, which he promptly wanted the conductor to take. Finally the offending old man gave him back his first nickel, re-ceiving another from the conductor, and the ride was finished in harmony,-Pirts-

Wine as It Is Served In Some New York Restaurants.

"I noticed," said the observant Cleveland man who recently returned from a trip, "that probably 90 per cent of the patrons of the better class of New York restaurants drink wine-at least they call restaurants drink wine—at least they call it wine. It comes in bottles and is sour. Perhaps wine is as good a name as can be devised for it. Anyway they throw it in with the rest of the table d'hote menn.

"I don't care for any wine," I said to the waiter one day as he put a pint bettle before me. He spread out his hands.

"It is undoubtedly true that nobody ever became intoxicated on table d'hote wine, but I have no hesitation in believ-ing that a man might get dreadfully acidnlated if he drank enough of it. I don't know how much enough would be, and I never heard of anybody who had the pa-tience to try the experiment. At the same time it is certainly true that the restaurant proprietors seek to produce a taste for wine in their patrons. In several of the higher class places the menu bears the following warning: Guests who do not order wine will be charged 25 per cent extra.' When I caught sight of this announcement, I said to the waiter, 'It is against my principles to drink wine,' He shrugged his shoulders and coldly replied, 'Ve also haf our brinciples,

Witty Pat Found the Place, and the Clergyman Dined.

An Irish priest was standing at the corner of a square in London about the hour of dinner, when one of his country-men, observing the worthy father in perplexity, thus addressed him: "Oh, Father O'Leary, thus andressed min: On Father O'Leary, how is your rivirence?"
"Mighty put out, Pat," was the reply,
"Put out! Who'd put out your rivirence?"
"Ah, you don't understand! This is just it: I am invited to dine at one of the houses in this square, and I have forgotten the name, and I never looked at the number, and now it's 7 o'clock," "Oh, is that all?" was the cry. "Just now be alsy, your rivirence; I'll settle that for

So saying, away flew the good natured Irishman round the square, glancing at the kitchens, and when he discovered a fire that denoted hospitality he thundered at the door and inquired, "Is Futher O'Leary here?"

As might be expected, again and again he was repulsed. At length an angry footman exclaimed: "No; bother Father O'Leary. He is not here, but he has to dine here today, and the cook is in a rage and says the dinner will be spollt.
All is waiting for Father O'Leary." Paddy, leaping from the door as if the steps had been on fire, rushed up to the astonished clergyman and cried, "All right, your rivirence, you dine at 43, and a mighty good dinner you'll get." "Oh, Pat." said the grateful pastor, "the blessings of a hungry man be upon you!" "Long life and happiness to your rivir-ence. I have got your malady. I only wish I had your cure," returned Pat.— Weekly Bouquet.

Variations In Littleness, Some Louisville fathers of families

were discussing recently the various oc-casions on which they had been made to feel small. Each had his special tale of wog. One felt small when his mother-in-law had sat down on him in the presence of visitors and his wife. Another when, after preaching economy to his better half, a bill had come in for wines and cigars which be had told her were presents. Another when he had brought home a game hag full of birds, and then found that the measily merchant from whom he beught them had sent in a bill for the same, and his wife had reckoned the bill called for 24 birds, when he had only brought home 20. Every one had a only brought home 20. Every one had a tale of wee and each declared no one could have felt more insignificant than himself on these occasions, but the boss man took the banner. "Boys," said he, "If you want to feel like 30 cents just go with your wife to a milliner's store when she is going to buy a hat. You sit in a chair like a piece of putty, and you can't say your soul is your own."-Louisville Times.

A ROUGH OBJECT LESSON.

The Drastic Method by Which a Lawyer Convinced a Judge.

M. H. Chetwynd of Philadelphia, in commenting on a case where a same per-son was released by the courts from an asylum where he had been illegally con-fined, told the following story: "About 20 years ago a lawyer of prominence got into a controversy on this very point with an equally well known judge. The lawyer maintained that it was the easiest thing is the world to get a same person confined in an asylum. The judge, while admitting that it might be possible, held that it would be very difficult and that the difficances would increase in propor-tion to the position in society of the intended victim.

'A person's standing in the community presents no obstacle, said the lawyer. Why, turning suddenly to his companion, 'I could even get you locked up in an asylum if I wanted to,' 'Non-sense,' answered the judge, and then he aughed aloud at the absurdity of the

"It occurred on a railroad train, which, stopping a short time later at a station, the lawyer suggested to the judge that they stretch their legs on the platform. They had not got ten feet from the train They had not got ten feet from the train when the lawyer suddenly burled himself upon the judge and at the same time cried aloud for help. A half dozen by-standers rushed to the lawyer's aid, and before the judge realised what had happened he was held by a dozen hands.

"'All right; thank you,' said the lawyer to the men who had come to his aid,' The his hands behind his back, for he's dangerous.' This was too much for the

'I am Judge So-and-sa,' he begam, with dignity, and this outrage— first then he felt a repe on his wrist, and his self possession deserted him, and he fairly raved at the indignities that were being heaped upon him. He resorted to language not usually heard from the bench or employed by the judiciary. But the more he said the less effect it seemed

"Finally he paused for breath, and a quiet voice said, 'Are you satisfied now that I was right in the argument?' 'Satsfied!' began the judge hysterically, 'Sat-isfied!' But he got no further. 'Yes, hang you!" was the manner in which he lowered his colors. A few words to and judiciously distributed coins among his captors by the lawyer released the judge and enabled him to get upon the train just as the conductor called 'All aboard!' "In the town where they had stopped was the state lunatic asylum, and the advent of lunatics was a part of the town's daily routine; hence the alacrity with which the judge was seized. 'But it was a pretty rough object lesson,' he com-plained when he had recovered sufficient equanimity to enter into conversation with his companion. 'Perhaps, but it proved what I said,' was the reply, 'and who knows but that some day it may prove of great value to you and enable you from that experience to prevent or else to right a great wrong. The judge made no reply, but lost himself in thought."-New York Tribune.

A friend of Gilbert, an actor, was play-ing for the first time a difficult role, and his success or failure in it was a matter of vital importance to his future reputation. After the second act Gilbert went behind the scenes, fully realizing that in a kindly word or sympathetic criticism he brought hope or despair to the actor. He could not resist his own eleverness and, seeing that his friend was in a profuse perspiration, merely remarked, "How well your skin acts!" and passed on with-out further comment. By morning the whole of London had heard the jest and smiled so broadly over it that it was some time before sufficient gravity could be found to recognize the artist's master-piece.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PENNA

A Radical Change in Marketing Methods as Applied to Sewing Machines. An original plan under which you can obtain easier terms and better value in the purchase of the world famous "White" Sewing Machine than ever before offered.

Write for our elegant H-T catalogue and detailed particulars. How we can save you money in the purchase of a high-grade sewing machine and the easy terms of payment we can offer, either direct from factory or through our regular authorized agents. This is an opportunity you cannot afford to pass. You know the "White," you know its manufacturers. Therefore, a detailed description of the machine and its construction is unnecessary. If you have an old machine to exchange we can offer most liberal terms. Write to-day. Address in full.
