CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 30.—The presidential train, with a tiny flag on the pilot of the engine denoting that the chief magistrate of the nation was on board, arrived at Charlottesville on schedule time. The run from Washington was made without incident.

At Charlottesville there was an immense assemblage at the station. The students from the University of Virginia lined up along the side of the train and gave the president three rousing cheers and a tiger when he made his appearance.

It gives me great pleasure to receive the greeting of the people of Charlottesville and cheer of the young men of the University of Virginia. Your institution is linked with great names and great deeds and has influenced both.

CALLAHAN ACQUITTED.

Alleged Kidnaping of Young Cudahy Found Not Guilty.

OMAHA, April 29.—James Callahan was declared not guilty yesterday of any complicity in the kidnaping of Edward Cudahy, Jr.

Shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning the jury reported. Judge Baker had evidently been expecting another verdict and was openly disappointed.

Two other counts still exist against Callahan and he was at once rearrested under these. There is doubt, however, whether the state will bring the cases to trial.

Callahan still in jail. OMAHA, April 30.—James Callahan, tried and acquitted of the charge of complicity in the kidnaping of Eddie Cudahy, is still in jail, but his attorneys are preparing a showing which they believe will secure his freedom.

OUTRAGE BY NEGROES.

Man Shot and Woman Harshly Treated Near Oilphant, Pa.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 29.—The Connelleville coke region is all stirred up again over the dastardly deeds of a gang of negroes who attacked Hiram McMillan, a white man, and his wife in a lonely house near Oilphant, and shot the man twice, probably mortally wounding him, and brutally assaulted the woman, who also is in a serious condition from the abuse.

McMillan's house sets back from the highway near the old historic Oilphant furnace. McMillan is about 40 years old, but his wife is quite a young woman and the two were alone. Suddenly the negroes, in the party being two black women, came from hiding and attacked the house. The men burst in the door, fringed Mrs. McMillan from her husband's arms and carried her out behind an outbuilding, where the six men assaulted her.

Leaving their victim prostrated, the men gave their attention to the frantic husband, who had been engaged in battle with one or more of the men throughout this terrible ordeal. McMillan broke into his assailants and as he darted back into his house the negroes, evidently thinking that he was going for a gun or a revolver, drew a bead on him and a bullet pierced his body just below the heart. McMillan fell at his doorstep, but before fleeing the negroes shot at his prostrate body, another bullet lodging in the fallen man near the kidney.

For some time after the negroes had the husband lay at his door bleeding and his wife lay unconscious behind the outbuilding about 50 feet away. The woman came to herself first and found her husband. Mrs. McMillan gave the alarm and immediately a posse was organized to hunt down the negroes.

The posse did not lose much time in getting started over the hills and in a couple of hours came across Wesley Lewis, one of the supposed assailants, who thought he would elude the officers by hiding in some bushes. He was handcuffed and brought under guard to the Fayette county jail, where he is now behind the bars. Bessie Ware and Lizzie Jones, the two colored women implicated in the rioting, were also locked up in Uniontown. In the meantime the word had spread throughout all of Fayette county and a great number of infuriated whites are now securing the footholds of the Alleghenies in the hope of finding the other five negroes.

Mrs. McMillan is at her home and has suffered severely from shock and brutal treatment. Her friends and relatives swear vengeance swift and terrible on the negroes if they can get them from the officers.
