Y., June 4.—In a street row among Italians here Sunday evening Frank Amoroso, aged 40 years, was slain by Tony Pannillo, aged 30 years, and died yesterday morning. The fight followed a night of drinking in the quarter known as the "Midway." Amoroso and Pannillo had an altercation and went to the street. Suddenly Pannillo whipped out a stiletto and stabbed Amoroso four times, once in the back, which cut through the kidneys and was the wound which later caused his death. Both the victim and his murderer are quartermen. A preliminary examination was held before Justice A. O. Smith of Holly at Albion. Pannillo admitted his guilt. He says the weapon used was a knife, which he afterwards lost.

FOUND UNDER A SIDEWALK.

Burglar Tools and $3,000 Believed to Be Part of Bank Robbery Proceeds. MINERAL POINT, Wis., June 4.—Burglar tools, a quantity of nitroglycerine and $3,000 were found yesterday under a sidewalk in this city. The money recovered undoubtedly is a portion of the $30,000 stolen from the vaults of the First National bank of Mineral Point, which was looted last week. Stewart Jelliff, who is held on suspicion of connection with the robbery, formerly lodged near where the tools were found. Identified by a Gold Tooth. CATLIN, Ills., June 4.—A gold tooth found in the woods two miles north of here was the last bit of evidence needed to prove that the skeleton found on the same spot last Saturday was that of Henry Farr, who disappeared two years ago. Farr was a liverman at Silverwood, Ind., and left home with $400 to buy a team at Ridge Farm, Ills. When the skeleton was found his wife identified his knife and handkerchief. A gold front tooth was missing, and two young men made a successful search for it.

BOAT SWEEPED OVER DAM.

Sevop of Party of Eight Fishermen Are Drowned in Schuylkill River.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—A row boat containing a merry party of eight young persons was swept over Flat Rock dam in the Schuylkill river yesterday afternoon and seven of the party—five girls and two boys—were drowned. The victims were all Philadelphians. The party was composed of members of the Elm Social club, one of the numerous associations in this city organized for the promotion of picnics and other social functions.

They embarked in gaily decorated wigs one early in the morning and pitched their camp at Rose Glen, along the Schuylkill river, on the northern outskirt of the city. Following their usual custom the party split up after dinner for a row on the river and those above mentioned decided to go in motor boat. This was shortly after 2 o'clock. Boats were accordingly hired and the two parties set forth on an hour's fun on the river. All the girls were huddled in the stern one of the boys was rowing and the other was sitting on the bow of the boat. After getting in the middle of the river and finding the current too swift for comfort, the boat was rowed in to ward shore. During this time it was being carried slowly down stream. The boy doing the rowing decided to go through the locks and as he approached the dam, he was hailed by the lock keeper not to approach any closer. The warning was not heeded and the young woman kept on rowing until he found that the boat was closed. He attempted to turn the boat, which was about 50 feet from the dam and 25 feet from the shore, but he turned the wrong way. A moment later and the boat was in the swiftly moving current. Realizing then, for the first time, that they were in danger, the girls began screaming and the woman lost control of the boat. Scarcely it was carried toward the brink of the falling waters and just as it reached the breast of the dam, over which 30 inches of water was passing the entire party stood up and the boat went over stern first. The drop to the rocks below is approximately 32 feet. The boat struck the water bottom up and as it disappeared the whole party was under it. Nothing more was seen by the few persons who saw the accident for almost a minute, when the boat reappeared with one boy clinging to its keel. Then a second man was seen to come to the surface and make a frantic effort to reach shore by swimming. The five girls never rose to the surface. The boy who was swimming, and who proved to be Osmond, became exhausted and sank before he could be rescued. Moore, the other boy, who was clinging to the boat, floated fully a half mile down the river, and his rescuer had at exciting time they landed him in another boat. He was greatly exhausted and was slightly injured by the falling of the boat.

SMART BOY AS A CRIMINAL.

Youth With Advanced Ideas as to Stealing Made Good His Escape.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The police here think that Samuel Robley, a youth of 18, who they say, robbed Dr. Samuel B. McDowell of diamonds valued at nearly $8,000 and $10 in money, is in New York. The boy is bright, and as the police have no photograph, and he is a student of crime with original ideas, there is more reason to believe that he will get out of the country than he captured.

Mrs. Robley, the boy's mother, is Dr. McDowell's housekeeper, and Robley lived at the house and had access to every room. Dr. McDowell, in conversation with Captain of Detectives Miller recalled that several times Robley had talked in his office about the lack of intelligence shown by thieves. On one occasion he said: "They are a stupid lot of fellows. The first thing they do is to rush to a pawn shop with their booty. That's where they give themselves away. Now, I think a pawn shop is a penny trap useful to the police for catching thieves. The police are slow and ignorant. They can only catch a lot of stupid ones who give themselves away. I'd bet I could fool them."

Four bridges spanning the creek and river were filled with persons who saw the floating boy pass under them, but were unable to rescue him, owing to the swift current.
