NEITHER business men nor workmen are asking for tariff changes. What they would like to see is more freight cars to handle their products promptly,

THE protection of American Industries and American wages is a distinct Republican principle and the Republican who assails it should take a fresh look at the national platform.

THERE are strong indications that the Chinese exclusion law, which expires in May next, will be re-enacted. There is an urgent demand from the Pacific coast that the barriers be kept up, and nobody is taking the other side of the question with any enthusiasm. When this matter comes before Congress in the coming session some slight opposition may be made by a few of the Eastern members, but will be renewed. This, unquestionably, is the wise policy.

THE removal by Governor Stone of Major A. M. Brown from the Recordership of Pittsburg and the appointment of J. O. Brown, a close friend of Senator Flinn, is one of those peculiar turns in affair the reason for which no fellow seems able to explain. The Governor gave his reasons at rength, laying particular stress on the fact that Major Brown was too handy with his ax, lopping off too many heads in the departments under him. This the Major denies, stating that the Governor made no protests on this score. It seems to be an act of the Governor's own doing, taking no one into his confidence, except possibly the Pitsburg boss himself, Billy Flinn, Senator Quay, Attorney General Elkin and other close friends of the Governor, have stated that the removal was made against their earnest protest and advice, and infimate that it was a very injudicious proceeding, and that seems to be the general opinion of the people throughout the State. What the outcome will be must be left with the future to determine.

The Matter of "Rings."

The Punxsutawney Spirit of last week contains this on the matter of rings;

It is usual for persons who delight in finding fault and trying to kick up a Hundreds of men have fallen victims to row in any organization to which they belong, to talk mysteriously and with bated breath about the enormous iniquities of "The Ring." But if called upon to describe the bugaboo so that anybody could recognize it, they would have to draw very liberally upon their imagination. There are always people who are by nature insubordinate. These who are too ill conditioned, too indolent or too timid to take hold and be an active and carnest worker in any of these organizations, are always the ones who try to tear them down. They think it is their peculiar duty in life to snarl and blubber and have conniption fits about a purley immaginary "Ring," while if you would place in the hands of these fellows the sceptre of authority, you would find them to be the most arbitrary and tyranrical of masters. In every organization there are always some persons who take a greater interest in it than others. They naturally go ahead and do what they think ought to be done for its welfare and success, and be cause of their energy and zeal they come to be looked upon by others who are interested in the success of the organization as leaders, and their opinions are accounted of more value than the opinions of those who take little or no interest, rebellion, Cap't, H.
