This Store's Policy is a Broad One.

It is liberal, cosmopolitan and modern. We buy goods that you want and when you want them. We sell at prices as low as the lowest. We have but one price for anybody and every article is marked in plain figures, so that when we advertise a reduction in price on any article, you can see for yourself that the reduction is genuine.

O'Connell said: "In the first place, 1 better for you, as 1 am counsel against you. However, just to save you the trouble of saying so again, I'll administer a slight rebuke," whereupon he struck Siggerson soundly on the back with a which the tipstaff accommodatingly lent him for the purpose.

That evening Siggerson sent him a challenge, but next morning he wrote station he had discovered that O'Conacil's life was inserted in a very valuable lease of a portion of his lands, "Under lease of a portion of his lands. these circumstances," he continued, "I cannot afford to shoot you unless, as a precautionary measure, you first insure your life for my heastr. If you do then precautionary measure, you first insure poss your life for my benefit. If you do, then fort. heigh for powder and ball. I'm your

The other case had an ending almost as indicrously absurd. It also arose out of a lawsuit and affords us yet another curious glimpse of that arena-the Irish courts of law-in which O'Conneil had at the time of which I write already won fame and fortune. In the August of 1813 O'Connell, appearing in a case tried at Limerick, interrupted his learned friend, Counselor Maurice Magrath, who was engaged on the other side, by exclaiming, "That's a lie, Maurice!" to which Magrath replied by flinging the volume of the statutes from which he was quoting at O'Connell's head and then kicking him

O'Connell sent a challenge, which of course Magrath accepted. A refuent to fight when challenged in those days led to one inevitable conclusion-that it was due to cowardice. On the old windmill field outside the city-the scene of many an affair of honor-O'Connell, as he stood before his opponent awaiting the signal to fire, exclaimed with deep emotion, "Now I am going to fire at my dearest and best friend." The duel was stopped. and over triend. The due was support and the seconds after a long discussion arrived at an amicable settlement. It was arranged that the two combatants should again face each other, loaded pistols in hand, and each doctare aloud his regret for what had occurred. After this somewhat comic episode O'Connell and Magrath warmly shook hands amid the Cornhol

A Curt Prayer.

Dr. Bornes of Scituate had for a pa-richioner a rich but hard, grasping, penu-rious and quarelsome man. In course of time he died, and at his funeral the minister dealt with him in no gentle phrase.

next Sumlay the bereaved widow came herself to the parsonage, beinging the usual "note," and at the same fime the usual 'note,' and at the same time preferring an enrar-it request that as the minister had already given her bush and such a raking at the funeral he would quietly pass him over in his penyer. She added that her bush and had always been indeed a court is her work to big for dry

He turned up his snub nose philosoph have not no purse to be proud of, and, ically and remarked, "How much there secondly, if I be a blockhead, it is the is in the world I do not want," and went on his way in search of some one whom he might overwhelm with his everlasting estions and answers.

We write this to suggest to fathers and with a mothers that they impress on their chil-aringly drea old enough to understand it that they apply to themselves this idea: Happiness to be found at all must be found in ourselves.

If your children are studying French and German, get them to translate these two short quotatious:

(Happiness is not an easy thing; it is difficult to find it within ourselves and impossible to find it anywhere else.)

Volk und Knecht und Urberwinder Sie gestehen, m jeder Zeit. Boeristes Glueck der Erdenkinder sei nur die Persoenlichkeit. Goethe

(People and slaves and conquorors ad mit at all times the greatest happing of earth's children is personality.) The father of all wise men, Aristotle, divides life's blessings into three classesthose of the body, those of the soul and those that come to us from the outside, Teach your children to rely in life on the pleasures of the soul or, as Goethe puts it, the pleasures of personality. The pleasure that comes to you from the outside would depends on the favor and approval of those whom you cannot control.

The pleasures of the body depend on youth, on health, and are very easily exhausted.

The pleasures of the soul are within your own control; you can only lose them through your own fault. Inside yourself you are master, and nothing can touch you except your own fool sh ambitions, vanities and lack of self reliance.

Of course if you talk to young people in this strain, with dry quotations and every indication of an offensive intention to do them good, they will promptly say: "This is a sermon. Let's go out for a walk."

Remember that sermons and other kinds of medicine can be made palatable. In talking to your children of the impor-tance of developing themselves, of finding happiness in themselves, point out to them the fact that every great man has found in himself the seeds of his greatness. Give them special instances to fire their ambition, detailed accounts of suctheir animation, definited accounts of suc-cess. Then impress upon them the fact that in every case the successful and happy man found happiness in himself. --New York Journal.

The First Stove.

The first step in the development of the stove was an open hearth. In some nations it has never advanced beyond that stage. The Eskimo to this day-and the Indian, too, for the matter of that-beats his dwelling by building a fire in the cen-ter of the room or hut and permitting the smoke to escape through a hole in the roof. The consideration of light requires that this hole should be large quires that this note should be large enough to give easy egress to the vapor, and the larger it is, of course, the more heat will escape. At the same time the inmates of the dwelling will have the same trouble that tormented the life of Kit Carson's pioneer. If he have fire such to warm him, he will burn; if he have not enough, it will do him no good.
