OLD TIME REMEDIES.

CRUDE MEDICAL METHODS OF THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY.

The Rev. John Wester's "Collection of Receipts" For the Treatment of Bleeding a Consumptive.

In these days of hygienic reform and of trenting disease without medicine at all it is interesting to read a volume printed by Parry Hall, Chestnut street, Philadelphia, in 1747 and compil-ed by John Wesley. It is a curious mixture of material remedies and religious exhortation. There are a few copies of the book in existence, but one unearthed recently was the occasion of much amuse-ment at a convention of physicians. The book is substantially bound in leather, and the few illustrations are as primitive preface deals with the raison d'etre of the work, incidentally recalling how "man was sent from the hands of God perfect, needing no physic; but, rebelling against the sovereign of all, the seeds of pain and sickness were lodged in the body and a thousand disorders, increased by everything around us. The sun and moon shed unwholesome influences from above; the earth exhales pol-sonous damps from below; the air itself that surrounds us is replete with the shafts of death; yea, the food we eat daily saps the foundations of life."

The preface further states: "As to the manner of using the remedies here set down, I should advise, as soon as you know your disorder (which is easy unless in a case of complication of disorders, and then you would do well to apply to a physician who fears God): First, use the medicines first advised for that disease; the second, if that is of none effect; the third, and so on. To persevere in the course is often more than half the cure. Above all, add to the rest (for it is not labor lost) that old fashioned medicine, prayer and faith in God."

A postscript to the preface is addressed to the members of the Methodist Episcopal church and signed by Thomas Coke and Francis Asbury, introducing the work to American brethren. It begins: "Friends and brethren, the great inter est of your souls will ever be near our hearts, but we cannot be unmindful of work proper is entitled "A Collection of Receipts" and recites in alphabetical order the "disorders" of that time and their remedies. In the A's are a list of panaceas against ague. To "go into a cold bath just before a fit" is added the wholesome advice. "Nothing tends more to prolongue an ague than indulgence in a lazy, indolent disposition." Another remedy for ague is to "apply to the stom-ach a large onion, split." Still another is: "Make six middling pills of cobwebs. Take one before the cold fit, two a little before the next, the other three, if need be, before the other fit."

Parenthefically are introduced some geatle hints for "tender persons" and "the studious." "Tender persons should constantly go to bed at 9 and rise at 4 or Studious people should frequently bathe and frequently wash their feet."

Tar water is a standard remedy in the great John Wesley's family medicine He gives the formula for making it: "Put a gallon of water (cold) on a quart of Norway tar, stir them together with a flat stick for five minutes. After it has stood for three days pour the wa-ter off clear; bottle, cork. For St. Authony's fire take a wineglassful every

GAMBLING BY CONGRESSMEN

Very Little Now Compared With Olden Times. As a matter of fact, there is little or no gambling now in the capitol compared with the conditions of years ago There used to be a time when certain committee rooms were the rendezvous for poker players, and the games were serally without limit.

Many senators and representatives do not object to a little game now, but they play in the evening and not at the capitol. There were poker stories galore around the capitol in the olden days. One incident became a classic. There was a party in the room of a southern congressman, and the game ran high. A western member opened a jack pot, and the southerner, who was upon his left, came in, together with two other congressmen. The westerner stood pat, whereupon the southerner discarded two cards. The betting began and soon became so swift that only the souther, ir and the westerner remained. Finally the latter called his colleague, and the hands were shown.

The westerner had opened the pot on four kings. As soon as he stood pat the southerner broke a pair of sixes and held the four, five and six of spades in his hand, hoping against hope to make a spade flush. He was dealt the seven and eight of spades, making

The western member didn't say a word when he learned what had happened, but it was noticeable that he didn't touch a card again during that session.-Washington Post.

When the hand touches anything, it leaves upon the object touched a representation of that part which came in contact with the object. This impres sion is not visible to the eye. It is made by the acid of moisture exuded from the skin. If you place the palm of your hand flat on a sheet of blank paper, you may not see the faintest trace of the hand, and many people will be angry at the suggestion that there is any exudation-their hands are perfectly dry, they do not suffer from perspiration. Nevertheless if a metal plate covered with a certain chemical preparation be passed over the paper the representation of the hand becomes visible in great detail,

"One day," says an exchange clerk in 1 Philadelphia department store, "an old fellow from the country came up to my desk and, laying down a packnge, said:

"Young man, here's a suit of under wear that I bought here seven years ago. It is too small for me, and I would like to have it exchanged."

"I was thunderstruck at the nerve of the man, but I managed to say something about the time limit on such transactions. "'Well,' said he, 'I know that, but I've never had 'em on, and this is the first time I've been in town since the day I bought 'em.' "
