Trunks, bags and telescopes at Tionesta Cash Store. Hopkins sells the Schenley hat. It's the best. You can't break it. Look! Listen! Come and see the stylish city trimmed hats at F. Walters & Co.'s Sept. 25 and 26.

Proper Bros. brought in a ten barrel producer on the Bowman tract, Cropp Hill one day last week. Nicholas Arnold of Kelleysville lost his pocket book yesterday containing $15.50. He believes it was stolen.

Rev. Dr. Swallow, Prohibition candidate, for governor, is billed to speak here next Friday and at Marienville Saturday. Albertus, the one-year-old son of Ross McKean of Nebraska, died Sunday of pneumonia, and was buried here yesterday.

The new machines for the shirt factory have arrived and are being placed in position and will be humming busily in a few days. Mrs. Thornburn, wife of Bishop J. M. Thornburn of the Methodist church, died in Portland, Oregon, on the 12th inst., aged 46 years.

Don't pass T. C. S. when you need good shoes, as there you can get the finest Rochester shoes or the heaviest Wisconsin shoes. Can't we suit you? Dr. N. C. Shaffer, Superintendent of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania, has designated Friday, October 17, as Autumn Arbor Day to be observed by the schools.

W. H. Pedigo has opened up a finishing shop in the Roberts building, below the M. E. church, and is prepared to finish carriages, wagons, sleighs and all kinds of furniture. S. S. Canfield has purchased from A. J. Handy of Stewart's Run, as fine a pair of bay draught mares as one would wish to look at. She is bound to keep up with the procession.

Peaches are peaches this year and if you expect to put up any you had better get into the game early and leave your order with the White Star Grocery if you want to be on the safe side. F. Walters & Co.'s millinery opening will be Thursday and Friday of this week. Don't forget to call and see the finest and cheapest lot of trimmed hats ever before shown at this season of the year.

The people of Tionesta are well pleased at the return to this place for another year of Rev. O. H. Nickle, pastor of the M. E. church, who has gained many friends during his pastorate of the past year. Walter Saylor sprained his left wrist badly and was otherwise bruised in a fall while painting Jesse Carson's house, out on Smoky hill last Friday. The ladder on which he was working slid off the eave of the roof letting him down a distance of about 15 feet.

We hope no Republican will be so indifferent about his vote this fall as to neglect to qualify himself by paying his county tax. The time is short, so attend to it right away. If you haven't paid a county tax within two years you can't vote. Remember that! According to the Renovo News, the Pennsylvania railroad company expects to replace all of its 40,000 and 60,000 capacity cars by those of 100,000 capacity, which will accomplish two things—remove the congested condition of freight traffic and give more track room.

Both the mills of Georgia & Aylesworth, and Wheeler & Dusenbury at Endavor shut down last Friday in tribute to the memory of the late Rev. J. V. McAninch, and a large number of the employees and other friends of the deceased attended the obsequies held here in the afternoon. Established nearly ten years. Graduates in nearly every State in the Union, holding positions of honor and trust. The largest enrollment during the past year in the history of this institution. Such is the record of the Warren Business University, Warren, Penna. Send to-day for catalogue.

Adam Sibble of German Hill recently had another visitation from sneak thieves at his farm house, who relieved Mrs. Sibble's pocket book of change amounting to nearly $300. Adam says these pests will get their fingers burned if they keep up this business much longer, and Adam don't talk just to hear himself, either. An important business change took place on September 10th, N. E. Graham retiring from the firm of Cook & Graham, lumber dealers of this place. By this change Mr. A. W. Cook becomes sole owner of the mill property in this place and its accessories, including Mr. Graham's interest in the Brookville Railway and the sawed lumber and standing timber now in the yards and on the various tracts heretofore owned by the firm—Brookville Republican.

"The best reading rooms in the world are the homes of the people." This is the motto of the Tabard Inn Library, a branch of which will be opened in Tionesta if a sufficient number of subscribers can be secured. The cost of a life membership is $1.50. Thereafter the cost is 5 cents a week. The members are entitled to exchange a book every week and are assured that all the latest and best books in fine attractive bindings, shall be at their disposal. The books are all changed once a month or oftener.

Next Sunday forenoon there will be German and English services at the Lutheran church on German Hill, beginning at 10:45, preceded by Sunday school exercises beginning at 9:30. Catechetical instructions for the children to be confirmed next spring will begin next Saturday forenoon, Sept. 27th, from 9:30 to 11:30. The class is asked to assemble at the church at the stated time. All parents who have children from the age of 12 and upward and who desire to have them instructed in bible history and the doctrines of the Lutheran church, are requested to have their children attend this course of catechetical lectures.

Lyman Cook, who has charge of the river improvement that is being carried on at the instance of the Government, and who started with a crew at Warren about three weeks ago, reports good progress so far, the crew expecting to reach Tionesta in a short time. Very many obstructions have been removed from the channel, such as huge boulders and the like, so that river craft may be floated on a much lower stage of water than formerly. A similar crew has been started in farther down the river and will work the lower part of the stream. The exceptionally low stage of water at present is quite an advantage in the work.

Last evening a young man named Sterling, who resides opposite Boughton, and whose family bear a bad reputation, went to O'Hare's livery and hired a horse and carriage agreeing to return the same night. Up to this time he has not put in an appearance. Mr. O'Hare has sworn out a warrant for the larceny of the horse and the papers are in the hands of Officer Hall. One of Sterling's brothers is in prison for horse stealing and another is awaiting trial at Tionesta for a serious offense.—Tionesta Courier. Sterling has been apprehended, and at a hearing was bound over to court in the sum of $500, in default of which he was taken to Meadville jail.

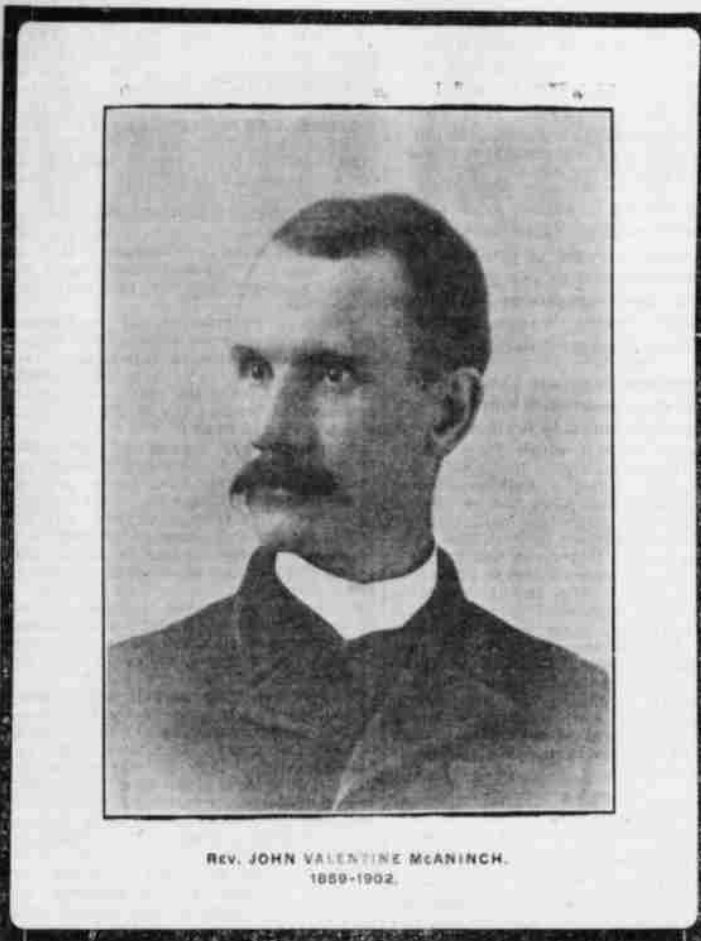

In the Sheffield Observer of last week we find the following pleasant item which will be read with interest by many of the bride's young friends in Tionesta and vicinity: "Married, at the home of the bride's parents September 17th at seven o'clock p. m., by Rev. H. M. Conway, Mr. Edgar Healy, of Warren, and Miss Elva May Klinefister, of Sheffield. The groom was formerly a resident of Sheffield, and now has a position with a large grocery house in Warren. The bride is a daughter of W. L. Klinefister of the Penn Tanning Co. force, was organist of the M. E. Sabbath school, and a general favorite among her friends. The newly married couple will reside in Warren and will be at home on Danmouth street after October 1st.

Thos. McMahon, one of the men charged with being implicated in the robbery of Hugh Miles near Fagundus Monday night of last week, was given a hearing at Grand Valley, Thursday and bound over to court. In default of bail he was lodged in jail at Warren, in which county the burglary took place. McMahon's home is in Oil City, and a search of his house revealed the registered bond stolen from Mr. Miles, the navy revolver and some stolen articles of jewelry, all of which were identified by the owner, and which will be sufficient to send the man down for a term of years. His two accomplices are still at large, but the detectives have the name of at least one of them, and expect sooner or later to capture him.

It is with pleasure that we announce Thursday and Friday, Sept. 25 and 26, as the days for our first opening of up-to-date fall millinery, and we think it will be a pleasure to you for we feel that we can show you a line of goods for this season superior to any heretofore shown in Tionesta, and we know that our prices are much lower than are asked for the same goods in large cities. Our stock of trimmed hats is large, the prices range from $1.50 to $30.00, and we have some French models that are beautiful. We also have an elegant assortment of feathers, plumes and milliners' sundries for those who wish to do their own trimming. Remember the dates, give us a call and look over our stock and we feel assured that we can show you goods that will win for us a share of your patronage, for everything we show is new and of this season's styles. Joyce's.

A brother editor, speaking of the magical transition now going on in the Pennsylvania woodland, paints this accurate picture: "Here and there on the hillsides may be seen among the dark green foliage of the woods a splash of bright red which stands out in sharp contrast to its surrounding. It is a maple that the Frost King has touched. Every day from now on there will be more and more of these brilliantly red splashes. Then will come the golden yellow of the birches, the brown of the beeches, the soft gray tones, the varying shades of green. These changes will come almost unnoticed, until one morning in October you will awaken and the Hills in every direction will be robed in the haze of autumn, brilliant, vivid, harmonious, glorious. A picture that is spread on a canvass with a background of blue sky, air as clear as that of Colorado and a mellow flood of sunshine that softens and brightens."

Prof. W. W. Coon, a former Forest county teacher, who is one of the 500 teachers sent from this country to the Philippines about a year ago, has our thanks for a very dangerous, ugly-looking instrument, which is likely a specimen of the instruments of warfare used by the Bolomen of that country, though we wouldn't pretend to name it. It is shaped something after the fashion of our corn-cutters, for which purpose it would answer very well. It would likewise make a bad mess in a crowd of people fussed in a careless manner, as we understand the natives of our new possessions have a habit of doing now and then. The blade of the murderous looking instrument is over 12 inches long and is ground to a pretty good edge, and we'd about as soon see one of Uncle Sam's 13-inch guns as an irate Bolomen armed with one of these things. For a short time it will be on exhibition here, after which we propose to strap it to the fighting editor and start him after delinquent subscribers.

REV. JOHN VALENTINE McANINCH. 1859-1902.

"TO MY DEAR CONGREGATIONS, I SEND MY LAST MESSAGE:— 'May the Lord bless you and keep you and lead you by His Holy Spirit. Be faithful and true. Live for Jesus. Heaven's beams of sunshine and glory shine about the closing days of the Christian's life. Earth recedes, Heaven in all its fullness draws near. Have tried to preach Christ and Him crucified, and live in the Spirit. 'Not I, but Christ, be honored, loved, exalted.' 'He doeth all things well.' Your pastor in bonds of Christian love. 'J. V. McANINCH.'"

IS MEMORIAM.

It was Hawthorne who wrote: "No man who needs a monument ever ought to have one." From that verse sentence there may be caught the significance of this memorial which is written as a universal expression of those who feel themselves debtors to the dead, and of those who have realized the worth, the beauty of a vanished life. He who was a prince among us by reason of a strong, rich nature, by the range of his abilities, by the devotion with which he gave himself to God and humanity, has a name imprinted in the annals of the church, and in the memories of thousands. To remember like this a memorial printed on costly parchment adds nothing. Rev. J. V. McAninch would be neither unthought of nor forgotten among those who knew him, though but a passing notice were made concerning his "going home."

His works praise him, and the tender outreach of many hearts is toward him as we publish this memorial. And yet, just because he has obtained such a good report, just because his commanding personality is woven into the hearts and lives of all who knew him, just because the earth and the kingdom here below are the poorer for his having left us, it is fitting that our esteem manifest itself in a proper manner. Needing no memorial, he deserves one.

The world's applause hails the genius of the warrior, the statesman, the scholar, but let a more reverent homage be paid those who have been moved to lay rare qualities of mind upon the altar of sacred service and sacrifice. He who was so lately one of us, was one of those individuals which are exceptional in the Christian circle, because of peculiar virtues and endowments. Men such as he cannot be mastered in regiments; they are too few. Of beautiful disposition, clothed with uncommon capacities, surrendered to his Lord's use, he stands in the front rank of those whom we should delight to honor.

John Valentine McAninch was the youngest son of Lewis and Jennie Myers McAninch, and was born on a farm near Callensburg, April 12, 1859. His ancestors for generations were honest tillers of the soil, who lived in closest touch with God and nature, and from whom he received moral strength, intellectual vigor and those fine mental qualities which he possessed. His early life did not differ materially from other boys, but he was fortunate in having a father who kept in touch with the mental training of his sons and daughters, helping them throughout their public school life with their studies, while the gentle mother added strength and beauty in the formation of noble characters, in her sympathetic devotion as wife and mother.

At an early age he entered the Himersworth Academy, thus qualifying himself as a teacher, and began the battle of life for himself at the age of 17. For a few years he taught with marked success in the public schools of Clarion county with the end in view of becoming a physician, but in December, 1878, while no special religious meetings were being held he was wonderfully convicted as a sinner before God, and after almost a week's struggle he was happily converted in the school-house in which he was teaching at Blair's Corners, and this glorious event changed the trend and thought of his after life. He soon after united with the Presbyterian church at Cursville, with which his parents were connected, under the pastorate of Rev. J. M. McCurdy, D. D. His was a Pauline conversion, and his was a Pauline Christianity that manifested itself in all his words and works, to the close of his life.

In September, 1881, he entered Washington and Jefferson college as a Freshman. Devoting himself with energy to his studies, he soon attracted the attention of the faculty who recognized in him a young man of unusual ability and strength of character. Circumstances making it necessary for him to support himself while at college, he taught to secure means by which he could finish his collegiate course and did so in June, 1883. In October of the same year he became a student of the Western Theological Seminary in Allegheny, Pa., again teaching during his vacations, from where he graduated with honors in April, 1889. During his senior year at the Seminary he was recommended to the Tionesta Presbyterian church by the President of the Seminary, to whom Mr. A. B. Kelly had written for a young man to supply this congregation. And it was on a Sabbath morning in November, 1888, that many people attended services to see and to listen for the first time to one who was to weave a choice fabric in the history of Tionesta. During the year he received a call from the Tionesta congregation for full time which was finally accepted. On June 25, 1889 he was ordained, and installed pastor of the Presbyterian church in Tionesta. This was his first and only pastorate, but the work accomplished by him in that length of time cannot be measured. His pulse beat fast for Christ and the uplifting of humanity, and though he had attained but little over two score and three years, yet in heart throbs for a perishing world he truly lived the ordinary limit of human life as set down by the Psalmist. Mr. McAninch was from the beginning recognized as "a good man and full of the Holy Ghost." His earnestness and singleness of purpose were seen and throughout his character and work was that of a true servant of the Lord, well rounded out and complete. The church at once took on a new lease of life. From a membership of 45 it rapidly grew to a large membership and a deep spiritual life was manifest in all its departments of work. In all, 178 persons united with the church during the 13 years pastorate. The financial conditions began to brighten and soon after the church became self-supporting, having previous to this received aid from the Synod of Pennsylvania. Less than a year after becoming a pastor, Mr. McAninch gathered together a class of boys who met in his study every week for the study of the Word and for prayer. This work continued to prosper till it grew into a Christian Endeavor Society in April, 1891. Here the earnest pastor found special delight in his efforts to develop and quicken the young people in Christian work. In him the young people ever found a devoted leader, a wise counselor and a sympathetic friend. Later, in 1892, the Junior Society of Christian Endeavor was organized and in this department, Mr. McAninch was ever interested and ready to help. The Sabbath School he considered the right hand of the Church, and during his stay among us it grew to be the largest in the Clarion Presbytery. In this department his zeal was unbounded, and the "boys", or men, were, we might say, the ones for whom he labored and prayed most earnestly. For them he wished to live, for them he was willing to die. He was instrumental in organizing the Teachers' Meeting in connection with the Sabbath School. His earnest work in the Y. P. S. C. E. and S. S., extended beyond his home church and his influence as a worker in these departments was felt throughout the State. He was called upon to address many conventions including State Conventions, and for the past few years was one of the district presidents in the Pennsylvania State S. S. Association. In January 1893, Mr. McAninch organized the "Men's Meeting," and together the men of his congregation met, one Sabbath in every month for the study of God's Word and for social prayer, and eternity alone can tell the good that has been done through these meetings. This but briefly tells of his work in the Tionesta congregation. In May 1899, this congregation released him one fourth of his time, in order that he might take up the needy work at Endavor. Previous to this he had done mission work in that field and a request had been made that he become their pastor also. With these people he labored with equal pleasure and delight and the bonds of Christian love and sympathy were only strengthened as the years passed by. Mr. McAninch was always a student, as his choice library indicates, and he was ever ready and willing to spend and be spent for the cause of his blessed Master. For several years he attended the Moody Institute at Northfield, Mass., always bringing to his people some new thought and inspiration. In anticipation of becoming better equipped for his work, he spent a few months, in the spring of '01, in the Orient, visiting Egypt, Palestine, and parts of Europe, traveling in company with The Interior party. But a fatal disease had taken hold of his body months before the arrangements had been completed, but so stealthily did it do its work that it was not discovered that anything of a serious nature was causing his distress till he reached Rome on his way to England. There he was ordered to return home as quickly as possible, and he arrived here June 13, 1901. Although suffering in body, his spirit laid him take up his work with ardor unquenched. For months he tried to redeem every opportunity of service, although fettered by increasing infirmity. But with patience and true courage, the soldier laid down his implements of Christian warfare last May, and, with trust and confidence, looked hopefully forward to his return to the work of his congregations. The last few months of his life were spent with his brother, D. L. McAninch, M. D. of Lamartine, Pa., and where, surrounded by the aged mother, whom he tenderly loved and cared for, and by his brothers and sister, all that love and medical skill could do was done for him. But the place prepared for him by the loving Lord of the living and the dead was ready and His prayer, "Father, I will that this one of those whom thou hast given me be with me where I am that he may behold my glory," prevailed above the prayers of his people who would have detained him, as it ought to. And his spirit went to be with God, in the early morning of September 17, 1902, while he was surrounded by his noble brothers, and while reclining on the bosom of the eldest. Thus a life abounding in good deeds unselfishly rendered passed to his reward. Such a part of the story of one who was well poised and rounded, lovable and engagingly human, after the fashion of Jesus, a manly man, far from being of a narrow, intolerant turn, but positive in his views and uncompromising at all hazards. What Tionesta has lost cannot be told. Seladon has it been, in the history of our town, that one should have lived in its midst for so long a time, have taken an active part in all interests, and have lived so wholly unselfish for the good of the people. He loved the people of Tionesta and wanted to be with them. He loved his congregations and on the Monday evening preceding his departure, he wrote a letter to them. The letter was written at a great expense of bodily suffering, but is cherished by his people, a copy of which is given at the beginning of this memorial.

At his request, his remains were brought to Tionesta for burial, and services were held in the Presbyterian church, which was tastefully draped and handsomely decorated, last Friday afternoon at 1:30. The people of Tionesta attested the high place he had in their esteem by closing all places of business and the schools, and by their presence in the church. The service was beautifully conducted by Rev. J. V. Stockton, D. D., who was assisted by the choir, and by Rev. A. T. Bell, of Saltsburg; Rev. J. W. Smith, D. D., of Warren; Rev. A. S. Cornelius, of Oil City; Rev. E. Clarke, of Pleasantville; Rev. S. F. Marks, of Tidouine; Rev. O. H. Nickle, and Rev. R. F. Feit, of Tionesta. All that was said and done was done harmoniously and bore testimony to the Christ-like manhood of Mr. McAninch.

Mr. Bell spoke of him as an earnest, zealous, uncompromising Christian, and one who was wise in his counsel. He tenderly conveyed to the members of Mr. McAninch's class his last earnest wish for their personal salvation; Mr. Marks told of the transformation of the church after Mr. McAninch's pastorate. His pastor, and brought out in happy manner the "manhood of the man" Dr. Charneck touched on the deep spiritual life of Mr. McAninch and his intense personality; Mr. Cornelius testified to his work as a presbyter, saying he had never met a cleaner, purer, better man. In all his work he was careful and judicious, and scorned at everything that was false; Dr. Smith gave an earnest appeal to the young people to take up the work their victorious leader had left them to do. He said that the splendid tributes paid Mr. McAninch were well deserved and that his falling at the head of the ranks was not a defeat but a glorious victory. Mr. Smith also paid a splendid tribute to the angel mother of Mr. McAninch and to her own devotion to her. The music, both voluntary and in song, was especially pleasing and added much to the holy uplift of the services.

One of the most touching incidents at the funeral was the case of the children of the school, which included those of the S. S. and the Junior Endeavor, passing his bier, looking into the un-speaking face of their friend, and at the casket covering his casket with bouquets of flowers. Floral offerings, beautiful and abundant, manifested the high regard of the Endeavor and Tionesta congregations, as well as the floral decorations at the cemetery.

The pall bearers were his Elders, Mr. A. B. Kelly and Mr. G. W. Robinson of Tionesta, Mr. N. P. Wheeler and Mr. G. W. Warden of Endavor, and Mr. C. S. Clark and Mr. W. G. Warden of Tionesta. And the body awaits the resurrection morn, in an honored spot given him by the heirs of the Rev. Harkish May, the first and only Presbyterian clergyman buried in Tionesta, till the body of the beloved pastor was laid to rest.

Rev. Frank P. Britz, of Corsica, Pa., a fellow Presbyter of the deceased pastor, sends this beautiful tribute to the memory of his faithful co-worker.

AMONG HIS FLOCK. In Memoriam, Rev. John F. McAninch, Pastor of Tionesta Presbyterian Church from 1889 to 1902.

Among his flock, a pastor true, Who loved them dearly they well knew For years and years he wrought. Where duty called, he took his stand; To rich and poor he gave his hand; With counsel true and tender prayer The sick and dying had his care; The good of all he sought; For all who're of grief to hear He ministered kindly thought. With steadfast, faithful, tireless will He labored on, his purpose still The saints to cheer and sinners win To Christ, our Lord, from serving sin— And so to God his life so pure Its works forever must endure Sweet sacrifice has brought.

Among his flock who held him dear,— The bonds grew stronger year by year,— This faithful pastor true, With solemn men and mournful tread They gather round their honored dead. Hears' swayed 'neath grief's depressing cross And voices hushed at sense of loss 'So hard to realize; How great their love! It has no gloss Discerned by searching eyes. What wondrous impressions he has made On heart and life! It can not fade While men on thrones of blessing sit And men by men their grace transmit; Nor can it all by men be known Until they hear it at the throne That's built above the skies.

Among his flock in Heaven's fold Where death ne'er comes and none grow We'll see him by and by. Some round him now already stand Passed on before to that good land While through the years, their life's work done, The rest will gather one by one, Glad love-light in each eye, Their hearts aglow their race is run And they to Christ come nigh. What rapture his to meet them there For whom he wrought with soul-felt prayer! What pleasure theirs, they'll there abide With him who proved their good, true guide! Resting in Christ, the ritted Rock, O happy pastor, happy flock, Within the fold on high.

A WOMAN HUNG about the neck of her husband and begged him to get the BEST and save money by buying Banquet Flour. It cannot be excelled in Quality and Price. One Sack of Banquet means Banquet always.

L. J. Hopkins. Not a bit too early to buy your COTTON BLANKETS.

These cool nights are very suggestive, this store's line of Cotton Blankets is bought with great care—each design, quality and size as carefully considered as if we were buying silks or satins, consequently the large assortment we offer for your consideration is exceptionally good—better than the average of a store in a town of this size would show. It's to your advantage to come early. You get the pick and choice of all of them. We doubt if even the cheapest ones (the fifty centers) can be duplicated anywhere for the same money. The line begins with A white 10 4 blanket with blue border and red border, 50c. Grey and brown of same, 50c. Black and white striped 10 4 blanket, stripes of various widths, a beautiful blanket, 80c. Two others, just as nice, 10 4, pink with blue border, and vice versa, 80c. Grey and brown 11 4 blankets, red and blue borders, 80c. A little better blanket, grey, 11 4 with blue and brown and red and brown border, 95c. Next two are popular priced ones, and should be prime favorites—both 11 4—grey with blue and red stripe border and mottled grey with blue and tan border $1.00. Next, a step higher and the quality improves with the price; white, 11 4 pink and blue border, and a tan 11 4, with red and blue border, $1.10. Tan—11 4—an exception for the money, with brown and blue borders; and grey 11 4, with blue and pink borders, $1.19. Grey—11 4—a good number, with variegated colored border, $1.25. Still better ones, in which the quality distances the price; grey and tan, both 11 4, with mixed colored borders, $1.59. This is the last one—a sure cure for insomnia—and large enough for anyone, 12 4, grey with red and blue borders, $1.65. Domet, Reinzai and Otter Robes, beautifully figured, exceptional quality, soft as down, they are single and just the right size and shape to make bath or lounging robes out of—come in self-figured Persian designs, black and white, red and blue, brown and tan, black and blue, red and green, and dark and light red, $1.19.
