RECENT DEATHS.

FRANK E. MABIE. Frank E. Mabie died at his home, 315 West 10th Street, Erie, Pa., at an early hour Sunday morning, March 8, 1903, of Bright's disease, from which he had been a sufferer for several months past. It was known here for some time that Mr. Mabie was not in his usual health and that his trouble was of a serious nature, yet to his many friends the announcement of his death came as a severe shock, and expressions of g nuine grief were heard on all sides, and especially from those of his more intimate acquaintances. To the writer and a number of the close friends of the deceased in Tionesta, the reflection that they shall never here again meet the one whom they ever held in highest esteem, is sad indee !. Mr. Mabie was a resident of Tionesta for a little more than ten years, coming here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Mabie, in 1868, when yet a young man In 1879 the family moved to Erie where they have continued to reside since, and where Frank and his brother, Harry, have been extensively engaged in the production of hard wall plaster for sever-

DAVID P. MILLER.

Many old friends in Forest county will be pained to learn of the death of David P. Miller, which occurred at his home in Brookston, on Saturday last. We are without particulars but understand his trouble was appendicitis, and his last illness of short duration. Mr. Miller was aged about 60 years and had been a resident of this county for more than 25 years, For the past few years he had been almost a constant sufferer from rheumatism, but had kept his feet remarkably well, not often giving up. David Miller was a man of peculiar make-up. The rough sede of him was at all times on the outside. On the inside, however, he had a big warm heart, which never failed to go out in sympathy and good deeds toward a fellow mortal in distress. He had enjoyed the confidence of his neighbors in a large degree and had been elected to about all the offices of trust in his township. It was Mr. Miller's efforts largely that led to the establishment of the present poor system in this county and which culminated in the erection of the county home, a step which no citizen of the county regrets to-day,

The deceased is survived by his wife, and six children, also by two grown sons by a former marriage. Funeral services were held yesterday at his late home, the interment being in the cemetery at age. Brookston.

Isaac Jones, Esq., one of Harmony ownship's oldest, best known and most enemy. highly respected citizens, died at his home near Fagundus, March 8th, 1903, aged 71 years. Mr. Jones had not been in robust health for a number of years, but it had only been in the last year or so that he was unable to leave his home or to attend to his usual business affairs. He had been a resident in Harmony township for nearly half a century, and when in good health was one of it's most progressive citizens, having cleared and tilled a fine farm on which he spent his long and honorable life. For many years he held the office of Justice of the Peace and was known as one of the level-headed, honorable and upright kind, always tempering justice with mercy, and settling many disputes among neighbors thus avoiding much litigation and strife. Mr. Jones was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, with whom it the White Star Grocery. Phone your orwas a pleasure to meet and converse. Borough Night Watchman.

At a recent meeting of the Tionesta Borough Council a petition was presented signed by sixty taxpayers of the town asking that a night watchman or patrol on the streets be established under pay of the borough. The present night watchman is paid jointly by the boro and the business men of the town. The boro hiring him as curfew officer at 50 cents per night, Sunday nights not included, the business men paying him a sum sufficient to make him a salary of one dollar. The gentlemen of the council refused to grant the petitioners' request, and it is only justice to both parties that an explanation of the facts which governed in their decision be given since so large a number of petitioners is concerned. The tax rate on property in our boro for the past year was 47mills for all purposes. Of this amount the council has nine mills, or less than one-sixth of the taxes raised, with which to keep up the streets and sewers, repair old and construct new crossings, keep up public property, such as buildings, fire department, tools, insurance, pay gas and water rent, salary of officers, and numerous other contingencies which are constantly calling for outlay. Now, if this petition had been granted and the officer hired at the present salary of $365.00 per year, it would have required more than one-fourth of all the money which the council has to lay out each year for the maintenance of this officer. This would inevitably have led to the levying of a higher rate of taxes, which the councilmanic gentlemen were opposed to, as no doubt would be the taxpayers.

Again, if this officer should be employed by the community and receive his pay from the general fund to which each taxpayer in that community had contrbuted, then it would be his duty to patrol every street and alley in the town and as this would be a long task he would not be able to be more than onece or twice in a place each night, and what damage might be done in one end of our town while the patrol was in the other would be hard to compute. We virtually would have no protection. Then could we expect to hire a man at the proposed salary when he would understand that he was to be the sole guardian of the entere town through the starry silence of night? I think not. Let the business houses of the town consider the proposition of the Council, which is that they, the Council, will continue to pay 50 cents each night for a curfew officer, and that he be hired by the merchants as a night watchman to be paid the valance of his salary, as in the past, by subscription, and in this way get the benefit of a service in a locality which is not too large to be covered by the watchman often enough to insure safety and some real benefit. A MEMBER OF COUNCIL.
