TRADE AGREEMENT.

Letter From Frank Buchanan of the Bridge and Structural Workers. New York, March 31 .- Frank Buchanan of the National Association of Bridge and Structural Workers has addressed a letter to contractors in this city, welcoming the formation of the International Association of Structural and Steel Erectors and submitting an invitation to the contractors to meet the workers to prepare a plan of arbitration and trade agreement. "In this way," the letter concludes, "strikes and lockouts, which affect the building industry and public gener ally, can be greatly reduced."

Mr. Buchanan said that T. S. Mitchell of Philadelphia, secretary of the American Bridge company, who had been delegated by President Hatfield to deal with the matter, had replied to the request for a conference by saying, in substance, that the matter was in the hands of the local committees of employers in the districts affected.

"It is too late for that," said Mr. Buchanan. "When the local unione tried to setttle the troubles the company's local representatives referred the subject to the general officers. We have notified the local unions to leave the matter in our hands."

SPALDING A THEOSOPHIST.

Sporting Goods Manufacturer Joins Mrs. Tingley's Institution.

San Francisco, March 31 .- A. G Spalding, former baseball magnate, has joined Mrs. Katharine Tingley's theosophical school at Point Loma, according to advices from San Diego. Mr. Spalding married Mrs. Elizabeth Churchill Maler, who has charge of Isis Conservatory of Music and is an ardent theosophist. She induced him to lease ground inside of the community boundaries and build a pretty house overlooking the ocean. Then she induced him to attend the meetings of the community and he became greatly interested in the work done by Mrs. Tingley. He said when asked if he was a theosophist:

"I am, in the sense that I am in sympathy with the work done by this society, at whose head is Katharine Tingley. I am especially interested in the educational work they are doing for children. I find here at Point Lema many educated, cultured people the equals of, and perhaps superiors to. any I ever met anywhere. If these things and more make me a theoso phist, I am perfectly willing to stand Enting a Prickly Pear. My first sad experience of the African prickly pear was gained on a visit to the market place of Algiers The fruit was handed to us, politely peeled by the Arab dealer, and thus as we made acquaintance with its delightful coolness no suspicion of its evi.

qualities entered our minds. A few days later, adding the excite ment of a little trespassing to the more legitimate pleasures of a country ramble, we came upon a well lades group of prickly pear bushes and could not resist the temptation to help our selves to some of the fruit. The result was woeful.

Concentrated essence of stinging nettle seemed all at once to be assailing hands, lips and tongue, and our skin. wherever it had come in contact with the ill natured fruit, was covered with a thick crop of minute, bristly hairs, apparently growing from it, and venomous and irritating to the last degree Our silk gloves, transformed sudden ly into miniature robes of Nessus, had to be thrown away, perfectly unwear able, and the inadvertent use of our pocket handkerchiefs Before we had fully realized the extent of our misfortune caused fresh agonies, in which nose as well as lips participated. For many a day did the retribution of that theft haunt us in the form of myriads of tiny stings,-"Home Life on an Os trich Farm."

The Invention of the Pinne.

The honor of inventing the piano is claimed by the English, the French and the Germans. Father Wood, an English monk at Rome, is said to have been the real inventor in 1711 and to have manufactured one, which he sold to Samuel Crispi, the author of "Virginia," from whom it was purchased by Falke Greville, though Count Carli claims the credit for Partholemmee Christiforic of Padua during his stay in Florence some three years later (1714). The French attribute the in vention to a Parislan named Marlus, who, they alleged, produced in 1716 a harpsiebord in which hammers had been substituted for the old plectrums or quills. The Germans are the last In the field with J. C. Schroder of Dresden, who claimed (1717), when eighteen years of age, to have "constructed after much consideration the model of a new clavier with hammers, upon which he could play loudly or softly."

The Most Remarkable Suteide.

The most curious suicide in the an nals of self destruction occurred at Chiquete, N. B., in the spring of 1800. Before committing the deed the self murderer, who was named W. R. T. Jones, dug his own grave and placed a rough coffin of his own handlwork at the bottom. The dirt from the opening was kept from rolling back into the exenvation by boards held in place by a trigger to which a string was attached. Everything in readiness, the deliberate Mr. Jones, as subsequent developments revealed, got in the coffin, took a dose of poison and then pulled the string burying himself beneath tons of earth. This has been put down as one of the most unique and successful cases of self destruction on record.

He asked permission to see the army drill. "We do not drill in summer; it's too hot," said the general. "Do you drill in winter?" "No; it's too cold." "Are the troops, then, only drilled in the autumn and spring?" "Sometimes. They are principally drilled a few days before the shah's birthday, so that they may look well on the parade day before his majesty."
