What this band of patriots does it does well, and the | Fountain Syringes, splendid repast was no exception to the universal rule.

The line of march was formed in from of the Post Hall and marched around the quare on the river front, up May street and tack to Elm, thence to beautiful Riverside-to-day more beautiful than ever-where the pleasing but solemn Grand Army ceremony of strewing flowers over the graves of the bonored dead was carried out with precision. The march back to the court house followed the completion of the decoration of the graves, the procession leing headed by the cornet band, where a most royal treat was in store for the immense concourse of people, and where the orator of the day, being none less then our own Joseph C. Siblay, was met by a packed house, many being unable to find seats. The peaker was preceded by a number of pretty selections by the band and a choir of our best singers.

- HAS Mr. Sibley rose to address the large growd of men and women who had as combled to hear him, he was greeted with a hearty applause. Every eye was upon the graceful orator in the expectation of an intellectual feast, and the profound silence, which hovered over the assembly as he proceeded, was broken only by repeated applause, and spoke more elequently than words of little Forest's high appreciation of its distinguished member of congress. The address breathed the scholarly attainments and the patriotic fervor of the statesman, and his tribute of honor and respect for the brave boys of the 60's who bared their breasts to the stem of battle in noble defence of their country, strengthened the ties of friendship already existing between Mr. Sibley and
- his constituents. Among the many excellent things Mr. Sibley said, was, that when a student of history he was of the opinion that all the decisive battles were won by generals and other officers of the army, and it was not until he had visited the well known cemetery at Arlington that the real truth dawned upon him, to whom the greatest redit was due. There, upon the thousands of white marble slabs containing the word, Unknown, is the unwritten history of victorious armies. To those who composed the rank and file is the nation indebted, and it is only fitting that the nation pay its tribute of love to its humble heroes. Mr. Sibley also said that as he neared the sunset of life that which he will consider the proudest act of his Congressional work is his securing pensions for the soldiers of the rank and

- Never in the history of Eli Berlin Post were they surrounded by so large a patriotic assembly as greeted them on Saturday last. Many tears were seen on all sides as the beautiful but solemn services of the G. A. R. was closely executed by the boys in blue. A very earnest prayer was made to the God of Battles and by us all for the perpetuation of our nation and for His divine guidance in all hearts, by Rev. Bradley, of Titusville,
- After the services in the cemetery all marched to K. O. T. M. hall, where amid the music of the singers and the Post martial music, all felt at home. Rev. Bradley delivered an able address, which, though unexpected on his part, was full of God and patriotism, which brought tears and amens from the souls of scores of his listeners, after which dinner was served, At one o'clock the faithful drum cailed the vast assembly again to order. Singing and martial music was indulged in for about one-half usual, was the right man in the right hour to the joy and praise of all present, after which we bad the great pleasure Miss Florence Rustler was home from of listening to our able comrade of the 76th Pa.
