Never Fails

Thompson's Barosma has never been known to fail to cure any disease of the Kidneys, Liver and Bladder; also Rheumatism, Sciatica, Palpitation of the Heart, Nervous Debility, and Female Weakness, Thompson's Barosma reduces all the inflammation, neutralizes the acid and dissolves gravel, carrying off all matter that is poisonous to the blood, stomach, heart, kidneys and liver. It is purely vegetable and pleasant to take. No opiate in any form is used in its manufacture. It can be taken by all ages and has cured many children of non-retention or bedwetting.

"I had been troubled with rheumatism ever since I was eighteen years old, and when I went into the drug store I had little faith in Thompson's Barosma. I have taken six bottles of Barosma and am better than I have been in twelve years. I can work every day, something I had not done in ten years. Thompson's Barosma regulates my whole system and I am stronger and better in every way, and am glad to bear this testimony. Thanks to Thompson's Barosma."-Johnson N. Dunn, Troy

TELLTALE LIPS.

How to Judge a Woman by the Shape of Her Mouth.

"I judge a man by his eyes, but a wopeople more correctly.

Queen Elizabeth once refused to engage a waiting woman who came with every possible recommendation, "because," she said, "the woman is a talebearer. Do you not see the downward din of her lin? I will none of her."

"In choosing a wife let her be a wo man whose lips do not droop at the corners," advises a Persian sage. "If a woman's lips droop her husband's life will be a perpetual mourning time, Nor yet should they curve too much upward, for that denotes frivolity."

Select for a wife one whose lips are straight, not thin, When the curve or arch is lacking and the lip overhangs, not loosely, but well defined and firm, the owner is gentle and ready to please, The mouth of sagacity is large and always well closed, with the line of the lips firmly defined. The witty mouth is thin lipped and so polished and smooth that light glances across it. The color is fine searlet. The possessor of such a mouth will say elever, scintillating things, sacrificing her best friend for the sake of an epigram. Coonstish lips are sharply defined, with a deep pressure under the nose and the corners inclined upward. Here He laughter and fun and love of music, flowers and animals. The smile is sympathetic, never tragic. Love of ridicule will be strong, but not in a mallcious vein. If the corners dimple deeply the lips are quick at repartee.-Exchange.

Map Making.

Map making has kept pace will the progress of other arts, though its steps are not so lond and are heard oftenest in the schoolroom. It is really an art to make a map and has always been so. From the time of the earliest crude affinirs to the elaborate and exact pictures of today a great degree of skill has always been necessary to give a perfected representation. And no man ever rend it into one's hand with thoughtful kindness, mindful of the advertisement within the pages as well as of the convenience of the tourist. A City of Roof Gardens.

The majority of the houses in Buenos Ayres have but one story, whose flat roof serves all the purposes of Yankee lawns and dooryards. While the patios are frequently utilized as dining and sitting rooms, it is the universal custom to promenade in the cool of the day on the house tops, to sit there at morning and evening enjoying the refreshing breezes, extensive views and varied panorama in the street below. The children find their favorite playground on the roof. There the nurses bring their infant charges, the seamstress her sewing and the maid her mistress' bedraggled finery to put in order again. The clothes are dried and aired and froned atop, and during the "heated term" of this dewless latitude thousands bring up their beds and sleep with the starry sky for a counter-

WALL STREET BROKERS.

What the Public Pays to Keep Then

Wall street brokers hold themselves million miles higher in caste taan bookmakers. And they are right. They are the creme de la creme of finance. Bookies are the scum. Yet there are many bookmakers in the street, and not a few of them are backers of brokers. Some are big operators, supporting brokers by their commissions. There are 1,100 members of the Stock Exchange, and these represent brokerage and commission firms whose partnerships aggregate no less than 1,452 ablebodied men. It is safe to venture the assertion that each member of the exchange and his partners would turn up the nose at an income of less than $20,000 a year.

At $20,000 each year these brokers clean up net about $29,000,000. There are some 500 Stock Exchange firms which pay $3,000,000 annually for the rent of their offices. These firms em ploy 7,000 clerks and assistants, bookkeepers, runners, etc., at an average wage of $1,500, which makes $10,500,-000. Thus we have in three items alone $42,500,000 that must come out of the pockets of customers to keep the great machine well oiled. That is to say. the public pays the sum of $42,500,000 annually for the privilege of supporting in splendid style 8,452 people in order that they may try their hands at telling which way a stock will go .-New York Press.

Origin of the Letter V.

The letter V may be regarded as the mutilated remains of one of the symbols used by the ancient Egyptians in their hieroglyphics or picture writing. A common animal in their country was the two horned sand viper, a representation of which stood for V. The priests ultimately found that for the practical purposes of everyday life it was a waste of time to use elaborate hieroglyphics and invented a kind of shorthand to meet the occasion. In this the snake was reduced to a V with a dash (V----) to represent horns and

The Phoenicians adopted this letter, and from them we get our V by loss of the dash, leaving only the two little horns of the original pleture. This snake is still common in Egypt and is probably the one mentioned in Genesis xlix, 17, "Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that blieth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." Travelers tell us that it is still addicted to this unpleasant

Beauties of Ireland.

Dublin can and does boast of many superlatives. It has the widest street and the largest public park in Europe the first horse show in the world and the largest brewery, but certainly the chiefest of all its claims is that advanced in behalf of its women. It is really no exaggeration to say that in no city in the world will one see so many beautiful women as one does in the Irish capital.

There is something, too, about the Irish type of beauty that cannot be actually described. There is an expression, an air of something akin to sadness almost, in every real Irish face, something interesting, that holds the attention more than mere skin deep beauty. "I have been in most capitals of Europe," says a traveler in Ireland, To hides but never did I see so many really beautiful women as I saw in Dublin. And they were not visitors. There was no mistaking the wonderful gray eyes of 'Dark Rosaline.' "

Precocious Mozart.

At three years of age Mozart would amuse himself for hours together in picking out thirds on the piano with his wonderful ear; at four years he learned minuets and before six played some of his own compositions, actually starting on a concert tour with his sister at that age.

Before three years had elapsed be and taken by storm four of the most important capitals in Europe-Vienna, The Hague, Paris and London. His reputation as a composer was established by the time that he was only ten years old. Mozart fulfilled in maturity the promise of his early years, but at the age of thirty-five passed away, engaged on a requiem which he gradually learned was to be for himself.

The Boston Walter. A Philadelphia professor dining at a Boston hotel ordered a bottle of bock, saying as he did so: "Here, walter, bring me a bottle of hock-hic, haec, hoc."

The waiter, who had been to college, smiled, but never stirred. "What are you standing there for?" exclaimed the professor. "Didn't I order some hock?" "Yes, sir," said the waiter, "you or dered it, but you afterward declined it."-Chicago Journal.
