The Mexican Boundary Line. The international boundary line between the United States and the republie of Mexico is marked by pyramids of stones placed at irregular distances along the line all the way from the Rio Grande to the Pacific ocean. Wherever it was found practicable to do so these pyramids were built on prominent peaks at road crossings, fords, etc. The line was not surveyed, as is the usual custom, the location of the monuments being based on astronomical calculations and observations

DISABLED JAPANESE CRUISER.

leased From a Captured Vessel. Port Arthur, March 15 .- Two Russian passengers of the steamer Argun, captured by the Japanese off the coast of Corea Feb. 7 and taken to Sasebo Peb. 17, while on board the Toka Maru, to which they had been transferred, say they saw Japanese cruiser Asuma being towed into that port. The Asuma was without smokestacks, masts or bridge and her decks had been ploughed up by projectiles.

The other Japanese prizes, the Mukden, Russia and Ekaterintoslaff besides the captured Russian whalers Michael, Nicolai and Alexander, were also at Sasebo when the passengers left there.

The German steamer Stolberg, which brought from Vladivostock the survivors of the Japanese steamer Nakonoura, sunk by the Russians, was still at Nagasaki. The two Russians addd that they saw pictures at Sasebo representing the destruction of the entire Russian fleet . They say that the wealthy Japanese are refusing to subscribe to the war fund. The president of the Japanese bank, M. AFTER-DINNER STORIES.

Story of Two Russians Who Were Re-Somewhere in this big city there is stowed away a cardinal's carriagelumbering but gorgeous equipage, lacquered in scarlet and gold, lined with satin and having elevated seats for footmen before and behind, says the New York Mail and Express. It cost $10,000, weighs about a ton and was built for the first American cardinal, John McCloskey, Archbishop of New York, and nobody was more astonished than that modest ecclestiastic when one day it rolled up to his home, on Madison avenue.

> The carriage was a present to the cardinal from a little coterie of Catholies then prominent in New York society, including James Gordon Bennett, Louis von Hoffman, the banker; Mrs. Fred. Stevens, afterward Marchioness de Talleyrand-Perigord; the late Judge John R. Brady and Gen, di Cesnola, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. They felt it incumbent on them ot help maintain the state and dignity of the newly created Prince of the Church, especially if thereby the Catholic set in Gotham might acquire something of the eclat attaching to the surroundings of cardinals in the Eternal City.

Not only did they defray the cost of building a state carriage on the most approved models in Paris and bringing it across the Atlantic, they also purchased a handsome pair of horses and subscribed an ample fund for the maintenance of all this gorgeousness. Had they not done so it would have been a white elephant sort of gift to Cardinal McCloskey. A man of simple and democratic tastes, he gave away the larger part of his income in charity and was very apt to neglect his own personal needs.

The worthy prelate was more astonished than delighted with the gift; he would have much preferred to ride in a cab or even a horse car. But if one cannot look a gift horse in the mouth, how much less can one be ungracious when given a carriage and footmen complete! He accepted his fate meekly, and even rode in the wonderful carriage-once.

It had no sooner turned into Mulberry street on the way to the old cathedral there than it was surrounded by a crowd of small boys, who ran after it, yelling:

"Hey, Chimmie, get on to de circus waggin!

One who caught a glimpse of his Eminence called out: "Der musician's on de inside."

And that was the first and the last trip of the first American cardinal's state carriage. He went home in a

In this connection, I am reminded of the fun I had one summer in a Western New York village. The villagers had ancestral fever, and eagerly grasped my suggestion that they form an order to be christened, "Sons of the Survivors of the Last Voyage of Henrik Hud-I have never gone back to the town, for, after incorporating, the pro-WHEAT - No. 2 red, $1.04@1.09 f jectors of the order thumbed their hiso. b. affoat; No. 1 northern Duluth, tories and discovered that the last expedition of the Dutch voyager was caught by the ice in Hudson Bay, and that there were no survivors."

> Two elderly men, one short, the other tall, got into a row in Washington Market the other day and a climax was reached when the short man said, apparently with great warmth: "You threaten me? You will not harm a hair of my head." "Yes I will, and I'll do it mighty quick, too," responded the other hotly. "You will not harm a hair in my
