President Roosevelt's Notable Speech at Gettysburg.

The President's Party Accompanied In Drive Over the Battlefield by Gen erals Howard and Sickles - Talk With Major Robbins of the Fourth

Gettysburg, Pa., May 21.-On historic Cemetery hill, overlooking ground hallowed by the blood of half a hundred thousand brave men and in the presence of a concourse of thousands who had assembled to pay trib ute to the memory of the nation's dead, President Roosevelt delivered a notable address.

On nearly the same spot, on Nov. 19, 1863, President Lincoln delivered the immortal address enunciating principles which have rung around the world for more than a third of a cen-

President Roosevelt was escorted to the cemetery on the battlefield by a body of several hundred veterans of the civil war. The president and his special escort were preceded by several organizations including a squadron of United States cavalry, the Third United States artillery and the Marine band of Washington, which had been ordered here for the occasion. Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the president's party followed in carriages. The rear of the procession consisted of civic organizations and citizens in carriages.

Governor Pennypacker presided at the ceremonies which were held in the rostrum in the cemetery. After the memorial day services of the G. A. R. had been concluded and the pupils of the public schools had strewn flowers over the graves of the thousands of dead, during which ceremony the Marine band played a solemn dirge. Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, chaplain of the United States senate, pronounced the invocation. The president was then introduced by Governor Pennypacker.

His introductory remarks were as follows: "The place where we now are has won a double distinction. Here was fought one of the great battles of all time, and here was spoken one of the few speeches which shall last through the ages.

"As long as this republic endures or memory of the battle of Gettysburg likewise endure and be known; and as long as the English tongue is under stood, so long shall Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg speech thrill the hearts of mankind."

The ceremony was concluded by an address by Hon. Eugene F. Ware, commissioner of pensions, and a benefrom the latter with honors in the diction by Rev. Dr. Clutz.

The drive over the battlefield occupied three hours and a quarter. The president expressed the deepest mterest in various incidents recounted by General O. O. Howard and General Daniel E. Sickels, both of whom participated in the three days' engagement on Little Round Top, where a prolonged stop was made.

Generals Howard and Sickels suc cinctly described the battle, the president, Mrs. Roosevelt and the entire party listening attentively to the graphic word pictures the two distinguished veterans drew of the siguations as they arose during the battle. At the president's request General Sickels pointed out where he received the wound which cost him nis right leg. While Generals Howard and Sickeis were talking Major Robbins, wno of the jury in the case of James N. served as a major in the Fourth Ala-Tyner and Harrison J. He was recognized instantly by General Sickels, who remarked

> "There is the fellow who tried to take the pill, but found it too hot." "Yes," responded Major Robbins, we charged up this hill, but you mowed us down like grass. We > couldn't stand it and had to get back.' The major then recounted some interesting details of the part of the contest in which he participated. After hearing cross fire of graphic descriptions from the Union and Confederate participants President Roosevelt rc-

Political Troubles and Overwork Given as the Probable Cause.

Baltimore, May 31.-Mayor Robert M. McLane of this city shot and killed himself in his bedroom at his residence, No. 29 West Preston street. His bride of less than two weeks was at the time of the tragedy asleep in an adjoining room and was awakened by the discharge of the revolver which Mr. McLane evidently fired while standing before the mirror of the dressing case.

The bullet entered the right temple and crashing through the head escaped in the rear of the left ear. Mrs. McLane and other members of the household rushed to the mayor's assistance, but he did not regain consciousness after he fell to the floor, and expired within an hour. A number of physicians who were immediate ly summoned at once expressed the opinion that the wound necessarily was

This, together with criticisms by his political opponents, is thought by many to have caused a temporary aberration of mind.

Coroner Benjamin F. Hayden signed a certificate giving suicide as the cause of death, and the remains were turned over to an undertaking firm to be prepared for burial.

Mayor McLane was elected as a Democrat to the office of chief magistrate of the municipality in May of last year, for a term of four years Under the city charter he will be succeeded by E. Clay Timanus, Rep., president of the second branch of the city council, to serve out the unexpired term. The second branch of the council, which is Republican, will elect a president, not necessarily a member of the present body, to preside over its deliberation.

Industrial Outlook Unsettled.

The situation is rather more irregu lar. Distributive trade, stimulated by better weather in some sections, has improved, but is still behind a year ago. Cereal creps, particularly winter wheat, show improvement, but cotton reflects droughty conditions in the South Atlantic and gulf states, while good reports come from west of the Mississippi.
